A Good Hostess

A Few 'Don'ts' Listed in Assuring Party Success

(AP Measurements) Now that you have planned and carried out arrangements for the perfect party, don't spoil it all by the way you play hostess. Of course you know that you and your husband should be in the living room at least five minutes before the hour at which your guests are invited and that all should have a warm welcome and equal and impartial attention. But there are many more things to remember if you want to be a successful hostess — and many of them start with "don't."

the flutters, constantly darning about emptying ashtrays, or asking if your guests would not like this or that. This can create such a nervous atmosphere that it ruins a party. Try for that happy medium which is alert, but relaxed, and — if you have no servants — let your guests wait on themselves a bit.

Don't display annoyance if a guest is late. If one is delayed, it is gracious to wait a few minutes after the dinner hour — 20 at most — and then have dinner served. When the late guest does arrive, pass it off as smoothly and kindly as possible, and let the party roll on.

Don't be irked if anything goes wrong. If a beautiful piece of china is broken or your costliest rug stained with coffee, keep your face and manner serene. Remember the one who did the damage feels far worse than you, and this is a place for kindness, if there ever was one. Say it doesn't matter and do whatever else you can to put the damper at ease.

Don't be so eager to keep the conversation from dying that you bounce into every second's silence with another subject. Of course the conversation shouldn't really die or get into a rut. But a few short silences won't do it any harm.

As hostess, of course, you are responsible for keeping the talk flowing smoothly and for steering it away from troubled shoals. The way to do this most skillfully is to give considerable thought to your guests, their interests and some topics of general interest before your party begins. Then, when a pocket of silence opens, you will have something to drop into it easily to start conversation again.

Don't make your guests watch television all evening unless you know that they want to. It may put a strain on the eyes of some and it will be kinder to learn their preferences first.

Finally, don't interrupt your husband's stories, even if he does not tell them very well. Better let him prove it, than to prove that he married a fuss-budget or a shrew.

carried rose and carnation nosegays.

Gordon Bronson was best man and Randall Tatom and Dean Tatom, both of McMinnville, brothers of the bride, were ushers.

The reception was in the church parlors after the ceremony. Mrs. Randall Tatom served the wedding cake which was baked by Mrs. Harry Lux, sister of the bride. Mrs. Don Tatom served coffee, assisted by Donna Lux. Mrs. Harry Lux served punch. For their wedding trip Mrs. Newson wore a gray and green suit with white accessories and an orchid corsage. They are now at home in Sheridan. Mr. Newson is employed at the Associated Plywood mills in Willamina.

Miss Lewis Wed at Silverton

Silverton—Miss Marvel Jean Lewis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Lewis of Wall street, Silverton, and Norman Qualey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Qualey, Silverton, were married at Trinity Lutheran church Friday evening, July 17, in an 8 o'clock candlelight ceremony. The Rev. Joseph A. Luthro read the lines of the double ring ceremony before the pink and white floral decorated altar. Albert Overlund sang assisted by Mrs. Joseph A. Luthro who also played the wedding marches. The ushers, Fred Lucht and James Moon, lighted the tapers.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore an all white ballerina length dress of taffeta fashioned with close fitting bodice and bolero, and net over a ruffled skirt. The fingertip veil of net was secured by a Juliet crown of seed pearls. The bride carried a white Bible topped with a small bouquet of white carnations and pink rosebuds from which fell white satin streamers of tiny bows. The bride's only ornament was her mother's single strand of pearls.

For her only attendant the bride chose her sister, Mrs. Norma De Forest, who wore a ballerina length floral pink taffeta with an over net skirt of light blue. The dress had a strapless bodice and balero jacket. Mrs. DeForest wore a beret of pink carnations and a rhinestone choker necklace. Eldon Jaquet was best man.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Lewis wore a pearl gray dress with white accessories. Mrs. Qualey wore a medium blue suit. The mothers' corsages were identical ones, white carnation sheafs.

At the reception in the church social rooms for the more than 150 guests, Mrs. George Lovett and Mrs. Arthur Mulkey cut and served the bride's cake. At the gift table were Miss Sharon Starrett, Miss Mary Ann Woodard and Miss Carol Pearson. Miss Beverly Anderson served punch, and Miss Arlene Stam presented the guest book. Presiding at the coffee urns was Mrs. Victor Grossnickle.

For traveling the bride wore a cream beige coat dress, red accessories and her wedding corsage. Following a few days at the Oregon beaches, Mr. and Mrs. Qualey plan to leave for Pensacola, Florida, where he is located in the U. S. service of the Navy.
