The road, which will develop the Straight Creek drainage 25 miles NE of Detroit, is under construction by the J. Specifications call for the usual gravel surfaced timber access road, with future plans for a connecting link with the Blowout Canyon access road.

Army Squad to Blast Shells At Monmouth

There will probably be quite an explosion near Monmouth Saturday of this week.

Causing that explosion will be a 2.5 bazooka round (a rocket type shell two feet long with a fin shaped tail that is used in a bazooka) and an old 20 mm World War II type German shell.

The local Army Reserve armory was contacted about the shells, which are the property of Mrs. Nettie Kerber, Route 2, Box 94, Monmouth. After the army's conversation with Mrs. Kerber, Maj. Blaine Mathias, ordnance man at Vancouver Barracks, and trouble shooter in the Oregon and Washington area, was contacted.

Mathias checked the shell and found them to be intact and probably loaded. He in turn informed Fort Lewis, from where a demolition squad will be sent.

The shells have already been removed to a pasture area with warning signs surrounding them.

About 17 per cent of Great Salt Lake is salt compared to three and one-half per cent of the ocean.
