Mariann Croisan Bride Today at Service in St. Paul's Chapel

At a simple, impressive service solemnized at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon in St. Paul's Episcopal church chapel, Miss Mariann Croisan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George William Croisan, was married to Edwin Earl Allen, Eugene, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wolff Lenoria Allen of Cottage Grove.

Only members of the immediate families were present for the service, the Rev. George H. Swift, church rector, officiating. Old-fashioned bouquets of pink flowers, tied with pink ribbon, decorated the alternate pews. At the altar were bouquets of double pink and white petunias and pink and white stock. For the music, Miss Ruth Bedford played the organ and Ronald Craven sang.

Couple Unattended
Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attractive in a dress of imported pink-beige taffeta designed in quaint style with a fitted bodice, puffed sleeves and a full skirt. The veil of pale pink-beige nylon net was chapel length and was attached to a cap of pink Chantilly lace that was outlined with seed pearls. The bride carried a nosegay of pink roses and pink stephanotis.

The couple was unattended. Ushering were George W. Croisan, Jr., brother of the bride, and a cousin, Courtney Kurtz.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Croisan wore a light blue linen dress with navy blue flowered hat and navy accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore a beige linen dress with small beige felt hat and white accessories. Both mothers wore corsages of rubrum lilies.

Luncheon at Home
Immediately following the service a luncheon was given at the Croisan residence on North 14th street. The bride's table was a round one covered with a full-length embossed Victorian cloth. The tiered wedding cake was all in white with two tiny cupids atop entwined with smilax. Smilax also decked the cloth with nosegays tied with white satin ribbon, and the smilax and white stephanotis encircled the cake. At either side was a candelabrum decorated with stephanotis.

For traveling, the bride wore a navy blue silk dress designed with pleated bodice and skirt, faille trimming the collar and cuffs and the tiny buttons down the front. With the costume, the bride wore navy blue accessories and carried a pale blue, full-length cashmere coat.

Following a trip to San Francisco and Carmel, the couple will be at home in Eugene, Mr. Allen being with the law firm of Reid, Bartle and Allen.

FROM Peg in Washington

BY ALENE (PEG) PHILLIPS

Washington, D.C., July 28.

Dear Marian:
Mrs. Douglas McKay entertained for several Oregonians the past week. At a luncheon at Mrs. Kay's Toll House, Mrs. Frank Sever and Mrs. Harold J. Turner, of Portland, and Mrs. Ralph A. Tudor, a former Portland resident and wife of the Undersecretary of Interior, were her guests. Mrs. Sever is here with Mr. Sever, who is occupied with Congressional hearings, and Mr. and Mrs. Turner are visiting their son, Joe, and his family. The young man is stationed at the Pentagon and Mrs. Turner has been doing a bit of baby sitting for the couple, which affords a pleasant contrast to the busy life she leads with her lobbying husband during the legislative sessions in Salem.

Miss Margaret Forsythe, daughter of the E. C. Forsythes, of Salem, was a dinner guest of the McKays one evening last week. Margaret is a friend of the McKay daughters and received her master's degree in foreign service at the University of Washington in June. She has an assignment with a federal department. She has been getting acquainted with Washington by bus and trolley trips, admittedly getting lost at times, but having a wonderful experience in learning first hand of the beauty spots and interesting buildings and exhibits in the national capital.

In spite of good times with new friends and all the thrills of this city, her affection for the Pacific Northwest has not been dimmed one iota, she says emphatically and a bit longingly. Mrs. McKay knew that a home prepared meal would be a novelty for Margaret and me and when the Secretary and Mrs. McKay, in the midst of the only electric storm and deluge of the last three weeks, took us home in their recently purchased car, we felt they had shown us the acme in hospitality, as it was a miserable night for driving.

On Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Dryden and their three children were guests of the McKays. Mrs. Dryden is the former Beryl Marks, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Willard Marks, of Albany. Her husband is co-owner of a newspaper at Tappahannock, Va.

One of the surprises that the McKays had at Glacier Park last week was to see William Warren, United Press correspondent at Salem, and Mrs. Warren, and a little later, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Heider, of Sheridan.

I mentioned last week that Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Weiss, formerly of Sweet Home, have been here. They dropped in to see the Secretary this week and reported that the "thrill of a lifetime" was the opportunity of attending the press conference of the President, to which they were invited by James C. Hagerty, press secretary to the President. Their friendship with Mr. Hagerty dates back to the Dewey campaign in Oregon. Attendance at the conference was a rare privilege as it is a restricted group of newsmen that are permitted to be present and visitors are a minus quantity. Mr. and Mrs. Weiss have sold their lumber business and home at Redding, Calif., and after two months of touring in the south will settle for a while at Palm Springs.

The Rev. Alcuin Heibel, of Portland, formerly at Mt. Angel, was another caller at the Department this week. Father Alcuin has been in the midwest for some time carrying forward his program of food relief for certain German areas. He is returning now to Oregon. Carvel Linden, Marshall N. Dana, and Stuart Moir, all of Portland, have been busy here on forest financing legislation but found time to enjoy individual chats with the Secretary. Mr. and Mrs. George Scott and their two daughters, have completed their move from Baker to Washington and have found a sizeable apartment in one of the newer suburban developments.

Hazel Markel, well known in Oregon newspaper circles with which she formerly worked, is the newly elected president of the Women's National Press Club. She is women's news commentator for a local station and the Mutual Broadcasting System, and has a television show. There are two women's press groups here and both of them have topflight programs and parties. Getting acquainted with some of the members of the two organizations has been another interesting experience for this displaced Oregonian.

MRS. JAMES MCFARLAND AND DAUGHTER

NEWCOMERS in Salem include Mr. and Mrs. James McFarland and daughter, who have come here from San Jose, Calif., Mr. McFarland being with the Oregon Fruit Products company. Mrs. McFarland and the little daughter, Mary Elizabeth, are pictured above. Mrs. McFarland is an Oregon girl, her parents being Dr. and Mrs. Martin Howard in Portland. She is a granddaughter of the late Mark Skinner, who was state superintendent of banks years ago.
