160,000 Pounds Food to Korea

More than 160,000 pounds of food have been subscribed by residents of Oregon state and sent through CARE to Korea in the three years since the outbreak of the Korean war, it was reported today by Kay Maloney, Oregon CARE director.

The report estimated that 11,000 Koreans were fed for more than a month by these CARE food packages. Of the total, more than half have been subscribed during the past year, with about 40,000 pounds being sent during the CARE for Korea drive of the past two months. The food is in addition to the thousands of pounds of underwear and stockings, blankets, and cotton material that have also been subscribed by generous residents of Oregon.

The CARE report, issued as the truce was signed, also emphasized the continuing need of the South Koreans of help in putting their war shattered farms and homes back into

Stayton Wars On Shoplifting

Stayton—Local dealers and proprietors recently formed a well-organized group, the Stayton Businessmen's Protective Association in an all-out effort to curb petty larceny in the stores.

A plain clothesman, who circulates through the entire business district at all times, caught two transient boys, ages 12 and 14, shoplifting Saturday afternoon. They were turned over to the Stayton police. The boys were forced to return part of the loot and pay for the rest and were issued a warning.

In the future, states Police Chief Everett Norfleet, the S.B.M.P.A. will prosecute offenders to the full extent of the law.

During Saturday night bean festival activities, a hired wrestler with the carnival, an AWOL army private from Ft. Lewis, was apprehended on the grounds by the Stayton police force and turned over to the provost marshal.

Traffic violations during the festival week were more numerous than ever before recorded in Stayton.

INDIA ARGUES REDS
New Delhi, India (AP)—Food Minister R. A. Kidwai told Parliament Tuesday that the Indian government is still arguing with the Russians about the pay for 100,000 tons of Soviet wheat shipped to India in 1951 under a barter trade agreement.

Bill for School Aid Enacted

Washington (AP)—The House Monday approved Senate-House compromise bills for continuation of federal school aid to communities whose school facilities are over-burdened as a result of federal activities.

The bills provide for a two-year extension of government assistance in constructing new schools and in maintaining existing facilities.

Senate-House conferees lopped approximately 53 million dollars off the 227 millions originally authorized by the House for federal participation in constructing minimum school facilities in the so-called federally impacted areas.

The bulk of the cut came from the 95 millions earmarked by the house for local school districts which qualified for aid, but did not receive it before expiration of the original law last month.

Conferees cut the House figure to 55 millions. The Senate bill made no provision at all for back entitlements.

Hall Blames Slot Machines

George Hall, former state vocational rehabilitation counselor, prominent in PTA and church circles, will appear before Circuit Judge Rex Kimmell Wednesday morning for sentencing on a charge of forgery.

Hall, 52 years old, pleaded guilty to the charge Tuesday afternoon after stating that a mania for playing slot machines led to his downfall.

Hall is alleged to have intercepted substitute checks intended for handicapped persons and then, after forging the paper, cashed them for his own use. The loss is said to be about $2800, with a check made out to Johnnie Gray, polio victim of Salem, being the specific instance upon which Hall was brought into court.

A number of character witnesses appeared on behalf of Hall. They included a minister, two doctors, and a state official. They spoke of the exemplary life that Hall led for many years of his work in the P.T.A. and the First Methodist church, where he was a member of the official board.

Appearing on his own behalf, Hall explained that his mania for playing slot machines—in Bend, Albany and Lebanon—resulted in financial losses which he attempted to cover up by forging his name to the rehabilitation checks.

Judge Rex Kimmell replied to the request of Lawrence Osterman, Hall's attorney, for a psychiatrist's examination of his client, by declaring the defendant's crime was "reprehensible." "You have violated not only the civil but the moral law."

In an effort to make restitution, Mrs. Hall informed the court that she had been able to collect some $1900

Lawyers Told to Improve Laws

Portland, (AP)—Lawyers have an obligation to the public to improve laws, Robert G. Storey, president of the American Bar Association said Monday.

The Dallas, Tex., attorney urged members of the legal profession to take a more active interest in public affairs so they could provide the needed improvement.

He was principal speaker at a joint meeting of the Oregon State Bar and the Multnomah County Bar Association.

The Multnomah association approved resolutions calling for appointment of U. S. District Judge James Alger Fee to a vacancy in the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals, and for yearly salary increases of $10,000 for congressmen and U.S. judges.
