

Governors Sidestep Power Fight on Snake

Seattle (AP)—President Eisenhower heard both criticism and praise of federal power policies at the national Governors' Conference.

The sidestepped the controversy now pending before the Federal Power Commission before the Federal Power Commission but touched on such items as the Tennessee Valley Authority, mining, natural gas, oil, and soil conservation.

TARGET

Eisenhower listened attentively but made no comment. At the outset of the round-table discussion, Gov. Howard Pyle, Arizona Republican and panel leader, said the administration is "ready, willing and able—and determined —" to oversee natural resource problems with a "minimum of discord and a maximum of benefit" for the public at large.

Power Subject Of Meeting

Seattle (AP)—Secretary of the Interior McKay and Pacific Northwest public power representatives discussed possible new power projects the government may start during a 90-minute closed-door meeting here Tuesday.

Members of the public power group said before the meeting they hoped to take up the controversial Hells Canyon Dam issue with McKay. Larry Smyth, McKay's public relations representative, said however, the subject was not discussed. Smyth did not disclose which potential power projects were considered at the session.

Dorothy Lee To New Post

Portland (AP)—Mrs. Dorothy McCullough Lee, former mayor of Portland, left for the nation's capital Wednesday to become a member of the Federal Board of Paroles. She was confirmed by the senate last week to the $10,600-a-year position.

Her husband, W. Scott Lee, who works for an oil company, also has been transferred to Washington. He and their two children will join her in about a week.

Leaps 53 Feet To Save Boy

Greenville, S.C. (AP)—A gallant mother defied injury and death when she leaped into a 53-foot well to save her 19-month-old son, who had fallen in it yesterday.

Mrs. Thelma Eshleman jumped down the well into four feet of water to rescue her son Teddy. They were pulled out by firemen and policemen with a hose roller.

Mrs. Eshleman said she was pushing to wash the porch. "I had taken the cap off the well and had gone to look at the chickens when the older children came around the corner and said Teddy had fallen in."

She said she remembered nothing about jumping into the well.

The child was scratched and bruised, but otherwise uninjured. The mother also was uninjured.

Scio Man Does Well on State Vocational Plan

The benefits to be derived by former servicemen and servicewomen through the program administered by the state department of vocational education is well demonstrated by the experiences of George Butler of Route 2, Box 219, Scio.

Described as a "typical graduate of this training plan" as set up by state law which now incorporates veterans of the Korean war, Butler reviewed his four years of training during an interview with Garth Rouse, veteran agricultural instructor at Cascade Union high school, Turner.

Before he went into the army, Butler lived in Sublimity and helped his father in the production of strawberries and cane berries. A product of Iowa, the father found it difficult to adjust to Oregon farming conditions but gave his son all the help he could.

After the war George farmed with an uncle in the Silverton district, but subsequently moved to the Linn county farm he is leasing. Shortly thereafter he enrolled in the veterans agricultural class taught by Charles Fulton in Salem and then transferred to Cascade Union high when the course was installed there.

Butler feels he has learned a great deal about the Grade A dairy business and is currently building a dairy on the place he purchased near Marion. He continues to operate the leased land.

The seed business has provided Butler with an opportunity to take advantage of the knowledge gained through his class work. However, through farm management classes, he has learned to shift his crops with the tide of profit and loss and is placing more emphasis on other farm products this year.

Shop courses, states Butler, have been of benefit in the maintenance of farm machinery and scientific farming methods including the use of fertilizers and weed spraying are paying off.

"I learned a lot at night classes, but got more from the field classes," Butler sums up. "Sometimes I was a little skeptical of some of the practices that were taught but when we got into the field and could see with our own eyes the results that were possible and talked to farmers and learned the mistakes that were made, it really soaked in."

Dick Haymes Linked With Rita Hayworth

Hollywood (AP)—An attorney's disclosure today that crooner Dick Haymes wants a quick divorce gave impetus to gossip romantically linking the singer and actress Rita Hayworth.

S. S. Hahn, attorney for Nora Eddington Flynn Haymes, said conferences are continuing as she and Haymes attempt to agree on divorce plans. He said a financial arrangement has tentatively been agreed upon.

Haymes and Miss Hayworth, who divorced Moslem Prince Aly Khan in Reno last Jan. 26, have been dating steadily.

Corvallis and Salem Divide

Corvallis and Salem divided top honors at this week's first tournament of the local Elks Duplicate Bridge club. Jack Shepard and Dale Hutchinson from the college town were high east-west, while Mrs. Paul F. Burris and Mrs. Charles Newsom won on the other side of the boards.

Others getting points in the 15-table meet included Mrs. F. C. Lutz and Marguerite Drysdale, Mrs. Leona Taylor and Mrs. Walter A. Barsch, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Lewis, Mrs. Arthur S. Binegar and Mrs. Dewey Howell, Walter M. Cline and Charles Tambling, Mrs. C. B. Benton and Mrs. Harry Wiedmer, Mrs. Myrtle Watson and Mrs. Frank R. Mohlman, Mrs. Lucetta McCoskie and Ellis H. Jones.

In the summer series Mrs. Elsie Day continued in the lead after four weeks, while Mrs. C. L. Newsom and Walter M. Cline were not far behind. Three tournaments remain, but the Friday evening affair this week is reserved for the first August master point.

Others gaining points in the series games also include Mrs. Jose Moritz, Mrs. McCoskie and Mrs. Arpke, all of Corvallis, Mrs. R. F. Baxter, Mrs. Ward Graham, Mrs. Roy Tokrud and Ray Ward.
