Linn Co. Banks Deposits Grow

Albany—Depositors in Linn county banks and post offices have in all $2,831,689.99 more money in the bank than they had at this time last year, but Linn county borrowings are collectively $4,907,779.56 more deeply in debt now than they were in the summer of 1952.

A survey of loans and deposits throughout the county as shown in the reports as of June 30, end of the fiscal year, revealed Wednesday that the total of deposits in the county is $43,534,254.48 while the total of loans outstanding is $27,509,490.93.

Last year at this time deposits totaled $40,702,564.49 and loans $23,018,711.37.

Deposits in the four Albany banking institutions and in postal savings totaled on June 30, $20,147,391.84, a gain of $936,016 in the year, but deposits in Lebanon, reflecting addition of a bank there, totaled $13,287,289.62, an increase of $2,108,865.62.

The First National of Lebanon leads the county now in both loans and deposits, showing totals of $11,178,424.85 and $6,995,076, respectively. Second place in deposits is held by the Bank of Albany, with $6,143,111.90 of customers' money in its vaults but in loans the local bank ranks sixth, with $1,805,752.86 outstanding.

Blowout Creek Road Planned

Detroit—Location of an access road that will eventually open a tract of approximately 100,000,000 board feet of timber is in progress in the Blowout Creek drainage of the Detroit district of the Willamette National Forest.

The six or seven miles of road, which is to connect with the Straight Creek drainage access road, will complete the Blowout Canyon main line as part of the planned development on the district to open up the back country for logging and fire protection.

S. T. Moore, Detroit District Ranger, states that the initial sale on the extremely inaccessible area will be held in 1955, when 30,000,000 board feet of timber will be sold at auction.

The head road locator for the Willamette National Forest, Ed Stout, and his assistant, Charles Honey, were packed into the Hula Shelter area of Blowout Canyon Tuesday to begin the location work on the road.

Oregon Coast Gets Life Magazine Play

The Oregon coast is featured in this week's issue of Life magazine by a series of photographs in color by Eliot Elisofon, who has in the past photographed the coast of Europe and the Atlantic coast.

The pictures include scenes of Ecola Point, clam diggers in the Tillamook area, sand dunes, "scaloped cliffs" and one in dark blue of the coast near the southern border of the state.

The text, or at least a portion of it, cannot be declared exactly accurate. This is particularly true of the statement: "The Oregon coast is a wild and varied fringe of land almost untouched today as when the explorers Lewis and Clark first looked through the fog there in 1805 and saw the Pacific."

JAP STRIKE ENDS
Tokyo (AP)—A four-day strike of 3,800 Japanese workers at a U.S. security forces base in Kure was called off Thursday. A settlement was reached between the union and the U.S. forces. Kyodo News Agency reported.
