

VISITORS FROM 12th MARINE DISTRICT

Marine Officers Visit Naval Training Center

Three officers from the 12th Marine Corps Reserve and recruitment district, San Francisco, paid a brief informal visit to the Naval and Marine Corps Reserve training center Wednesday morning.

The visiting officers expressed concern over the recruiting of men for the Marine reserves in Salem, noting that Salem is behind other cities.

While discussing the recruiting problem the men noted that they would think young men would be anxious to start their service, so as to have their eight years of obligated service out of the way early in life.

Talking of the obligate service, the trio explained that it came under the Armed Forces Reserve act, which obligates every youth, who incurs a military obligation to have eight of this in active duty three years or with an organized reserve unit and the remainder as a stand-by reserve.

The act became effective January 1, 1953, and the law was passed in the spring of 1936.

Mrs. Shelbourne was a member of Dayton Christian church. Surviving her are three sons, John, Dundee, Ernest, Happy Valley and Claude, Unionvale; one daughter, Mrs. John Clow, Unionvale; 14 grandchildren, three great grandchildren, two brothers, Frank Myers, Kingsport, Tenn.; Creed Myers, Knoxville, Tenn.; and one sister, Mrs. Florence Annam, Rogerville, Tenn.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p.m. Wednesday, August 19, at the Macy and Son chapel in McMinnville.

Casket bearers will be her six grandsons. Burial will be at Evergreen Park Cemetery at McMinnville by the side of her husband.

Mr. Drinkard was born December 3, 1880, died in the Langmack hospital Friday after a prolonged illness.

Survivors include two daughters, Bernice Williams, Forest Grove, and Mrs. Lela Nelson; and a brother, Claude Drinkard, Coulee City, Wash.

Boy Held for $300 Theft

A 17-year-old Salem boy was under arrest Tuesday for the theft of nearly $300 from a Salem grocery store during the time he worked for it in the past two years.

The boy, who worked part time winters and full time summers until this summer told detectives that he took the money from the till in small sums over about three months time this spring and summer.

He needed the money, he explained to buy parts for a racing car he was building. He saved enough for two expenditures of $65 and $150 and estimated he took at least another $80.

When his folks expressed disapproval of his racing ideas, he ran away to Montana, he said. He was picked up there for his parents who returned him here.

He was turned over to the Marion county juvenile court Tuesday by police where he was ordered held in detention by Judge Joseph Felton until the case can be further investigated.
