Local Robbery Cleared up

The armed robbery of the Safeway store at Center and 13th streets last March is considered cleared with the death of a gunman in a similar holdup attempt of a Safeway store in San Jose, California.

Investigation by Salem detectives since the death of Carl Ernest Clayton, who was killed by police bullets in the San Jose robbery attempt on June 4, has led us to be quite certain that he is also the man who held up the Salem store.

In the March 8 holdup, the robber waited until the store closed at 10 p.m. and then held up four employees as they started to lock up. He forced assistant manager Clyde Meighen to open the safe and, after forcing the men into a storage room fled with the money.

In the San Jose affair, the situation was much the same except that police were waiting and Clayton was killed when he attempted to shoot his way out.

The method of operation was the same, Clayton's description tallied with that of the man here, his picture was identified here as a "very good resemblance" of the local holdup man, and his car is known to have crossed the border from Oregon into California between midnight and 3 a.m. of the 9th, just a few hours after the robbery.

In addition, detectives said, Clayton had with him a 9mm. Raton gun when he was killed. This gun is very similar in appearance to a .45 caliber gun which witnesses thought he used in the Salem robbery.

Blizzard Hits Peak Climbers

Lahore, Pakistan (AP)—A three day blizzard and a bitter cold wave have endangered the success of the American climbers who seek to conquer 28,259-foot Mt. Godwin Austen, it was disclosed today.

An exhausted runner carried the report from the expedition's camp on the mountain, which is also known as K-2, to the nearest communications center at Skardu. It took him two weeks to travel the 175 miles over the rugged Himalayan area.

The storm broke Aug. 2, the runner said, as the climbers were preparing to start their final attack on the peak of what is now the world's highest unconquered mountain.

Freed GIs Tell Tales Of Red Barbarity

Freedom Village, (AP)—Three Army corporals reaching freedom today told how an American flier was "lashed to a pole and died in the sun because he would not confess to germ warfare" charges.

The corporals, two of whom served 10 months in the hard labor camp annex to Camp 2 at Pyoktong, said another flier was chained to a wall in a place where he could neither stand up nor sit down.

At first the three were reluctant to talk for fear of causing hardships for Americans not yet repatriated.

Cpl. Irvin Edwards, 22, who was captured Dec. 2, 1950, while with the U.S. 7th Division, said the aviator who died had been taken to Manchuria for questions but would not "confess."

"They brought him back to Camp 2 and tied him to a post in the hot sun until he died," Edwards said. "He was starved. I don't know how long he had been without food. He was already three quarters dead and was so weak that chains around his arms and legs held him erect. He never confessed and died in about 24 hours."

Edwards said the pilot was dressed in GI clothing and was unable to say anything because of a gag in his mouth.

With Edwards, of Knoxville, Ill., were two other Camp 1 repatriates—Cpl. David E. Fortune, 21, of Pickens, S.C., who was captured Jan. 3, 1951, while with the 25th Division, and Cpl. William J. Carpin, 23, of Fulton, N.Y., who was captured Nov. 5, 1950, while with the 1st Cavalry Division.

All three agreed that aviators—enlisted and officers—received special attention from the Chinese. They said that "all airmen are now held in Camp 3 (the officers' camp).

State Ordered to Act on Bonus Claim

Circuit Judge George R. Duncan by issuing an alternative writ of mandamus Thursday directed H. C. The writ sets forth that Harbison entered the armed forces of the United States, April 15, 1942, and was honorably discharged March 15, 1952. Subsequently Harbison is said to have made application for Oregon World War II Veterans compensation. The claim was refused.
