Aqua and White Theme for Olson-Majek Wedding at Church; Reception Follows

The First Presbyterian church was the scene for one of the late summer's memorable weddings, Sunday evening when Miss JoAnne Majek, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Majek, was married to Allan John Olson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Olson.

A double ring service was used, the Rev. Donald Spaulding of Coats Mesa, Calif., cousin of the bride, officiating at the 8 o'clock rites. The entire wedding party stood on the altar platform. Gerald Neitling was soloist, Mrs. Ralph Dobbs playing the organ. At the conclusion of the service, Mr. Neitling went to the back of the church to sing the Ave Maria.

Beautiful decorations marked the wedding. Across the choir loft was festooned a garland of greens and white asters with a cluster of three large wedding bells in the center. In the background the full length of the altar were large baskets of white gladioluses, tied with aqua bows, and candelabrum entwined with greens, white asters and the aqua bows. White satin rope closed off the pews down the white carpeted aisle and at the pews were tall standards with candles and entwined with ivy and bows of aqua satin ribbon. In each window burned five graduated candles in clusters of ivy.

Candlelighters were Miss Carolyn Parker and Miss Virginia Nichols, of Halsey, both wearing pink embroidered or-gandy frocks.

Dress of Lace and Tulle

The tall blonde bride wore a dress of white imported Chantilly lace and tulle over satin. The bodice and the long sleeves, the latter extending to points over the hands, were of the lace. The scalloped low neckline was edged in the lace and with pleated nylon tulle. The bouffant skirt was fashioned with two inset bands of lace and terminated in a chapel length train from a pleated border. The fingertip veil of silk net cascaded from a crown of seed pearls. For her flowers the bride carried a sunburst bouquet of stephanotis and fleur d'amour with white orchids in the center. Mr. Majek gave his daughter in marriage.

The five attendants for the bride were all in aqua nylon net frocks, waist length. The dresses were designed with three rows of ruffling around the bottom of the skirts to form an apron effect in back. A ruffle went diagonally across the front of the bodices. They wore matching shoes and their

Some Notations . . .

By M. L. F.

A striking color theme featured the wedding of JoAnne Majek and Allan J. Olson last evening - bright aqua and white . . . It was a pageant of beauty as the bridal party moved down the aisle at the First Presbyterian church, the five attendants for the bride and the little flower girl all dressed alike in aqua nylon net, their frocks matching the aqua bows tied to the aisle candles and the altar flowers, their bouquets of rubrum lillies the perfect contrast . . . Blonde JoAnne was a radiant bride in her all white wedding dress, a handsome model of Chantilly lace and tulle . . .

The church was filled, the guests including a large number from the membership of the Lions club, of which Mr. Majek is a past president, as well as business associates with whom he has worked in many civic enterprises . . .

It was truly a garden setting for the reception—like a garden transplanted into the basement social room . . . Huge baskets of gladioluses in many colors were all around the room, and here and there a trellis entwined with greens and flowers . . . The bride's table was covered with a pink satin cloth . . . The large tiered cake in the center at one side was decorated with aqua flowers and encircling it were tiny aqua satin bows and flowers . . . At one end of the table was a large bouquet of white gladioluses and rubrum lillies with aqua bows tucked in here and there, tall pink candles in the background . . . Back of the table was a trellis interwoven with greens and pink blooms . . . The punch table was covered with a white satin cloth . . . The punch bowl was set in a basket made entirely of maced red gladioluses . . .

It was a very happy gather-
