Chief of State Military District Visits Salem

Col. Alfred E. McKenney, new chief of the Oregon Military district, Thursday paid his first official visit to Salem since taking over his new assignment August 13.

Purpose of the visit was to call on Gov. Paul L. Patterson, with the visit made in company with Oregon's adjutant general, Maj. Gen. Thomas E. Rilea.

The colonel, however, managed to squeeze out a little time to visit the U.S. Army Reserve armory and the instructor personnel there. Wednesday he was visiting Oregon State college and paid a call on the president, Dr. A. L. Strand.

The new district chief, who admitted that he asked for duty here, with the thought of retiring here, is on his first assignment in Oregon. His only other assignment in the north-west area was at Spokane with the Fourth Infantry for two years from 1937 to 1939.

Training of the men of the Armed Forces and of the reserves is a subject close to the heart of Col. McKenney. He spent 14 years as a professor of military science and tactics at ROTC units at various colleges and universities and spent four years as a member of the faculty of the infantry school.

In addition to his instructor duties the colonel has also authored a number of military articles, introduced the use of film strips as training aids and wrote the infantry motion picture training films in 1939 and 1940.

Of the present training of civilian components the district chief remarked that it was of a much broader scope than when he served with the National Guard back in 1917 at the beginning of his military career - he has been regular army since 1920.

The training ties in more closely with the regular services and is more comparable with their training," McKenney said. He then noted that the many service schools members of civilian components could attend, the type of training they receive and extended active duty tours help to blend the civilian components with the regular service.

"That is the way it should be," he said, reminding, "in times of emergency the regular army is only a small part."
At the start of the colonel's new duty army reservists from several states were attending a two weeks Command and General Staff school at his headquarters. His comment of the school after noting he was too late to see much of it was "I was very interested in the school. It was rather a high level Command and General Staff course." Here he reminded that the instructional material was from the Command and General Staff School at Fort Leavenworth.

UN Victory Won

Russia made an unsuccessful attempt to delete the phrase lining her up on the Communist side, but then voted for the proposal as a whole, indicating she would attend as a representative of the Communists.

U.S. Given Authority.
4. Gave the United States the authority to consult with the two sides and work out arrangements as to the time and place of the conference. Geneva is generally considered the most likely site.

5. Recommended that no decisions of the conference be binding on countries which do not agree with them. This means any of the countries who have to implement decisions of the conference would have a veto.

Under the committee's decisions, the conference could be expected to include Red China, North Korea and Russia on the communist side, and South Korea and probably 10 other countries on the U.N. side. Some of the 16 U.N. countries which sent troops to Korea have indicated they would not participate.

Vote by Nations
India's majority was much smaller than had been anticipated.

The following countries supported her: Afghanistan, Australia, Burma, White Russia, Canada, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Egypt, Ethiopia, Guatemala, Indonesia, Iran, Iraq, Lebanon, Liberia, Mexico, New Zealand, Norway, Poland, Saudi Arabia, Sweden, Syria, Soviet Ukraine, Russia, Britain, Yemen and Yugoslavia.

Against India: Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, China, Colombia, Costa Rica, Cuba, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, El Salvador, Greece, Haiti, Honduras, Nicaragua, Pakistan, Panama, Paraguay, Peru, United States, Uruguay and Venezuela.

150 Americans

Reilly and Vadala said they and 43 other men in Camp 1 were told they were going to a "readjustment camp" because the Reds "were afraid we would be a bad influence on the others."

They were taken to a separate camp near main Camp 3. Finally, on Aug. 16, about three weeks after the truce was signed, they were told they would be repatriated.

Cpl. Gerard A. Francois, 23, of Jersey City, N. J., said 30 U. S. enlisted men and 15 officers have arrived in Keosauqua after previously being sentenced by the Reds and told they would not be repatriated.

He said the 45 were told in Keosauqua they will be free—but only after everyone else.

However, Francois said the 45 were not all of the Americans being held back by the Communists. He said he believed a few still remain in Camp 5 at Frykton, serving their terms.

The Reds had claimed a right to hold some prisoners on trouble-making charges. But U. S. and U. N. officials sharply warned them to free all Allied POWs who want to return.

Thursday's delivery brought the number of released U. S. prisoners past the two-thirds mark with only one week of the POW exchange remaining. Ten were officers and 140 were enlisted men.

Seattle (AP) - Another 96-hour extension has been agreed upon by the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Co. and the CIO Communications Workers of America in their negotiations for a new contract.

The new extension fixed midnight Thursday as the deadline for negotiating a contract for approximately 7,500 employees of the company in the Washington-Idaho area.

A PT&T spokesman said no progress was made in negotiating sessions Wednesday but that prospects for a settlement of the dispute "are hopeful."

The union seeks an increase of $1 a week in the traffic department and $3 weekly in the plant department. The company has offered $1 to $1.50 in the traffic department and $1 to $3 to plant employees.

Secretary of State Dulles Wednesday told the association the United Nations charter is "obsolete."

He defended the President's powers in treaty-making and executive agreement negotiations as important tools "to produce for our nation an environment of security."

However, after two hours of debate the House of Delegates the ABA governing body; by a 117-93 vote reaffirmed its support of a proposed constitutional amendment which would limit the treaty-making powers of the executive branch of the government.

This action also rejected the recommendation of the ABA's section on international and comparative law which had adopted a resolution opposing the amendment.
