

The real Rainier is Here!

Look again! On this page you see a different Rainier from any you've ever known. And when you try it, you'll say delightfully different. For this is the real Rainier from the North. A long-time leading favorite in many other cities, it's now available here.

That's good news for everyone who relishes fine beer. It means that the one real Rainier is now the only beer by that name. It comes from the original Rainier Brewery* in Seattle—from a part of the country where sparkling water from mountain streams provides a head start in the brewing of fine beer.

The real Rainier is now displayed wherever beer is sold. You will notice a difference in the label. Your dealer will vouch for the great difference in quality. And most important, you will enjoy the difference in taste. For a "sampler," get Rainier in the colorful and gay Jubilee cans:

*Established in 1878

Brewed at the Original
Rainier Brewery
in Seattle

