It's Once a Marine, Always a Marine

Once a Marine, always a Marine, seems to hold true for one of the young men enlisted in the Marine corps during the month of August by the local recruiting office.

The enlistee, James A. Samuels, III, of Corvallis, was born at the Naval hospital at Quantico, Va., when his father was in the Marine corps. The father, James A. Samuels, Jr., spent 30 years in the Marine corps prior to his retirement as a Warrant officer.

During the month of August six other men besides Samuels were enlisted in the Marine corps through the local recruiting office.

They were Francis C. Cunningham, Dallas, Ore.; Stanley T. Irvin, Los Angeles; Richard D. Pflug, Turner, Ore.; Carmon R. Estheimer, Kennan, Wis.; Lester R. Stockbridge, Hubbard, and Harold E. Howe, Silverton.

Implement row at the State Fair is filling rapidly with all sorts of farm and industrial equipment which leads Leo Spitzbart, fair manager, to believe that the implement display this year will not only be the largest but also the most comprehensive in fair history.

Search Made For Two Bodies

The Dalles, Ore. (AP)—Coast Guard boats, Wasco county deputy sheriffs and private river craft today searched for the bodies of two men who fell into the Columbia river yesterday in two separate accidents.

L. R. McKinney, 35, Oakland, Calif., fell 80 feet from the unfinished interstate bridge near The Dalles dam. Witnesses said his body struck a concrete abutment and rolled into the river. McKinney was a steelworker employed by the Judson-Pacific-Murphy Company. His death would be the first fatality on the project.

Jimmy Hugson, 27, a Cello Indian fisherman, slipped while fishing from a sloping derrick platform at Cello Falls. His body was swept away before companions could come to his aid. Other Indians said Hugson was not using the customary safety line around his waist.

Commissioner Thurston Passes at Georgetown

Washington (AP)—Dr. Lee M. Thurston, U.S. commissioner of education since July 2, died early today at Georgetown University Hospital. He was 58.

An appointee of President Eisenhower, the Lansing, Mich., native had been at the hospital since suffering a heart attack August 29. An office of education spokesman said he died at 3:45 a.m. EST. At his bedside was Mrs. Thurston, who had originally come to the capital to look for a place for her and her husband to live.

Dr. Thurston was plunged into official financial problems immediately upon assuming his duties here last July. With Eisenhower's backing he fought in congress for restoration of some funds the house had cut from federal education appropriations for this fiscal year.

Associates said that the night before Dr. Thurston was stricken he reviewed the office's proposed budget for 1954-55, which is supposed to be in the hands of the budget bureau by September 15.

Besides the load of work in Washington, the new commissioner in his less than two months in office had made speeches in Nashville, Tenn., and Lansing.

Dr. Thurston was dean of the School of Education at Michigan State College at the time he moved to the federal post. He recently completed four years of service as state superintendent of public instruction for Michigan.

Wreckage of Bomber Found

McChord Air Force Base, Wash. (AP)—Wreckage of a plane discovered in Northern British Columbia Wednesday is that of the first B36 bomber ever lost by the Strategic Air Command. Capt. James Lynch, public information officer at this base, said Thursday night.

The wreckage was sighted about 90 miles north of Smithers, B.C., by airmen searching for Ellis Hall, Albuquerque, N.M., oilman, and four others who disappeared in Hall's plane August 17.

Fuselage numbers and other information were relayed to McChord and from them the identity of the plane was established. The big plane was lost February 14, 1950, while on a flight from Alaska. Its crew members parachuted when the plane experienced motor trouble near Princess Royal Island, just off the British Columbia Coast.

Twelve of the crewmen were found but the other five never were heard from again. The spot where the crewmen parachuted is over 200 miles southwest of where the plane wreckage was found.

Capt. Harold Barry, pilot of the B36, said he put the craft on automatic pilot before jumping. The plane flew past a long series of mountains, some of them 8,000 feet high, before cranking up on the 6,000 foot level of one in its path.
