

Elimination Contest Keeps Showmen Alert

By CLAUDE STENSLOFF

Oregon's greatest livestock elimination contest for selection of 604 blue ribbon winners and 219 breed champions at the State Fair went into high gear early this morning after some opening judging on Saturday and Sunday.

Guernsey, Holstein and Brown Swiss dairy cattle, Hereford beef animals, Duroc Jersey, Chester White and Poland China swine filled the out-of-doors judging arenas with temporary facilities set up for overflow. Southdown, Dorset, Corriedale and Romney sheep were being judged in the inside arena of the sheep barn.

Because of the close competition and increased entries in many departments judging is expected to run through Wednesday. By nightfall that day $35,000 will have been awarded in premiums to adult class exhibitors at the Fair.

Three porcine contestants will not be present when time comes to judge them. Pre-show excitement and high daytime temperatures over the weekend caused the death of three fat hogs. F. L. Ziellinski of St. Paul lost a yearling boar and a fat barrow, both Poland Chinas. A yearling Spotted Poland China boar owned by Elmer Stangel of Wilsonville also died. Experts explain that porkers are prone to such trouble since they are encased in a thick mesh of fat and have but six sweat glands, three on the inside of each front leg.

Strippling stock judges went to work early in the 4-H judging contest. Shifting from class to class in two rings they hope to have picked team and individual winners in time to clear the way for 4-H dairy judging at 1 p. m.

Dairy showmanship and dairy stock judging will occupy Future Farmers during the day. Jim P. Hall of Salem exhibited the champion water fowl in poultry judging completed yesterday. It was a White Chinese old gander goose.

Aldon Wilkie, Newberg, retired baseball pitcher for the Salem Senators, pitched another strike to win the champion cockerel award in Rhode Island Reds, the strongest breed of the show.

The grand champion bird of the show was a White Rock hen entered by Bob Wolfram of Portland, after a cock of the same breed was picked but eliminated because it was overweight. Wolfram also exhibited the champion hen.

Champion cock of the show was a Barred Rock entered by C. B. Wheeler of Goshen. Russell's Hatchery, Corvallis, showed the champion young pen, being Buff Orpingtons. A White Wyandotte owned by Jack Davies, Portland, was champion bantam. Turkey champion was a Bronze hen entered by E. Paul Agee, Albany.

L. E. Mickelberry of Portland, who judged the poultry, said that while there were some outstanding individual birds, the general quality of the show was a bit under that of 1951 when he also placed the winners.

E. D. Roseman of Salem exhibited the senior and grand champion Nubian doe in milk goat judging conducted yesterday. Roseman also had the sole French Alpine in individual classes. Mrs. Mary Rose of Portland had the junior champion Nubian and junior champion Toggenburg. Senior and grand champion Toggenburg doe was owned by Mrs. Leonard Kennedy of Boring. E. M. Anson of Boring had all but one first prize and both champions in Saanens. The small showing was judged by Robert Casebeer of Portland.

Salem rabbitry owners did well in rabbit contests. Carroll Harlow had "best of breed" in Silver Fox; Ernie Pyle had "best of opposite sex" in the same breed. Both awards for Rex went to Danny Fredrickson. Jimmy Fredrickson did as well in Himalayans. First for commercial roasters went to Stella Fredrickson. Rex Fur first, R & F Rabbitry.

Fritz Klaus of Dallas took the award for Best Doe & Litter. He also had best opposite sex for New Zealand Whites.

The Tuesday judging calendar includes: Jersey and Ayrshire dairycattle, Shorthorn and Aberdeen Angus beef cattle, Spotted Poland China, Berkshire, Hampshire and Yorkshire swine; Shropshire, Cheviot, Columbia and Cotswold sheep. F.F.A. boys will work on swine showmanship and swine judging. 4-H youngsters have sheep showmanship at 8:30 with beef showmanship at 10. Sheep and beef judging will be held in the afternoon.

Aberdeen-Angus breeders will hold a auction sale at 1:30 Wednesday in the auction sale arena.
