

KNITS AND LEATHER

2 Combine for Casual As Well as Dressy Duos

(AP News Feature)

Knits and leathers are doing new tricks this fall, teaming up for all kinds of unexpected costumes, some casual and suave, some dressy enough for cocktail wear.

The utilitarian leather wind-breaker jacket beloved of outdoors men and small boys has undergone some astonishing changes recently, so that leather shows up in the glamorous category in such versions as high-style black suede evening coats and bejeweled pasted kidskin cocktail jackets.

Bonnie Cashin, young New York designer with a flair for the unusual, has teamed knits and leathers in some of the most effective outfits of the season. She shows, for instance, a lean turtle-necked sweater dress in hunting pink, worn with a greatcoat of highly polished black goatskin lined in alpaca. The same coat, she points out, may be worn at night, over a black chenille knit dinner gown.

She likes the combination of a lime suede shirt worn over a knit sheath, or teamed with a black leather skirt, and a bright pink bulky knit coat.

For dressier wear she suggests a scoop-necked black knit sheath and a suede coat with fur collar.

Little cardigan jackets of white or pastel kidskin or suede are in high demand for evening and resort wear, women having found them as practical as fur jackets, easier to carry around and more versatile. These can come in styles as casual or as dressy as desired, some of the latter being embroidered in jewels or trimmed with mink or ermine.

New Look in Sweater Girls . . . Bonnie Cashin designed these two outfits combining knits and leather. Left, vivid suede shirt over chenille knit sheath; right, alpaca lined black polished goatskin coat over sleeveless sweater with attached helmet.

300 Freshmen Begin 'Cruise'

A "shake down" cruise for some 300 freshmen began on the Willamette university campus Tuesday in preparation for a voyage of four years over the seas of higher learning.

Tuesday's operations were the first of a week's orientation, calculated to accustom the yearlings to the rudiments of university life. They will register next Saturday morning in the campus university.

President G. Herbert Smith welcomed the tyros during a general assembly in Waller hall and Jim Hitchman, of Balboa Island, Calif., president of the student body also greeted the freshmen.

The president pointed out the roads to success in the education fields and warned against the pitfalls that must be avoided if the freshmen are to secure their degrees four years hence.

Members of the university administration staff were presented to the students early Tuesday afternoon. Later meetings were held of the Inter-Fraternity Council, the Pan-Hellenic association and the Independent Association.

An activities carnival in Baxter hall, to which all new students are invited, will close Tuesday's program.

During the balance of the week the customary tests, physical examinations and conferences are scheduled.

Silverton Has Church of Year

Silverton — A Methodist periodical, "Church Management" credits the new Methodist church of Silverton with being "The Church of the Year," and gives a story of the building plans.

The problem now is a completion program.

Floyd Fox has accepted appointment to the chairmanship of the completion program committee.

In this present plan, subscriptions will be made for a three-year period.

The overall building plan calls for a sizeable wing to be built on the present new church building which is to house the Sunday school department class rooms, the nursery, fellowship and social hall and a modern kitchenette.

Floyd Fox, chairman, will be assisted by Dr. Norman Dodds, W. Dale LaMar and Harry Riches.

The first congregational affair planned to open the more active work, is a Loyalty Dinner to be Wednesday evening, September 16, in the Eugene Field gym, when all necessary plans will be announced.

Funeral Here for Mrs. E. M. Johnston

Funeral services for Mrs. Elizabeth M. Johnston, who died September 3 at Hooker, Okla., will be held in Salem from the Virgil T. Golden chapel Thursday at 2 p.m. Rev. Omar Barth will be the minister and interment will be in Belcrest.
