Trip to Chicago Won By Jean Eyman, Canby

Tall blonde Jean Eyman, 18, who has been taking 4-H sewing for the past eight years Friday was announced as the 4-H Sewing club member, who will make the trip to the National Club Congress in Chicago in November.

It was in the tailored suit division that Jean took her championship.

Others taking championships in their divisions were Annette Denning, Portland, play clothes; Esther Kehrl, Gresham, party gown; Diane Jones, Albany, best dress; Barbara Linens, Prineville, cotton school dress, and Nancy Goodrich, Prineville, school or street dress.

The winner of the trip to Chicago is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Eyman of Route 2, Box 184, Canby. She was graduated from the Molalla high school last June and this fall will enter Oregon State College as a home economics major. Champion Jean also won a championship for the workmanship on her suit this year. Last year she took a blue ribbon for styling on a dress she entered and a red ribbon on the dress. Her club leader is Mrs. Inez Gottwald, Route 3, Molalla.

The suit that won the trip for Jean cost her about $20 and is made of Navy blue Forstman suiting. She estimates that she spent about five months working on her suit, though that was not continuous. The suit was completed in August of this year.

Many other 4-H club activities have also claimed the attention of Jean during the past eight years. These have included cooking, canning, home-making, knitting, home beautification, rose and flowers, gardening, camp cookery and livestock.

In addition to these activities in 4-H club she also was active in high school, where she belonged to the Future Homemakers of America, took part in girls athletics, was a member of the chorus and a member of the Girls' League.

Three 4-H club sewing girls from this area were among those receiving blue awards at the fashion revue. They were Janice Gear, Seio, tailored dress or suit; Ruth Carlson, Rickreall, best dress; and Zora Ann Hiebertal, Monmouth, play clothes.

Red ribbon winners from this area were play clothes, Carolyn Bishop of Salem; cotton school dresses, Jeanette Siddall, Selem and Marjorie Jones, Albany; winter school or street dress, Irene Vetter, Albany, and Nancy Kay Reiley, Seio; tailored dress or suit, Frances Hughson, Albany; and best dresses, Sandra Smith and Janice Siddall, both of Salem.

The style show, which had an Hawaiian theme, had 135 participants. Lovely Elana from the State Fair night revue opened the annual event for the group with a welcome from Hawaii and Hawaiian music. The first group of girls then came down the gangplank from a ship and were greeted and presented leis by Joyce Mount and Carol Stettler, dressed as Hula girls.

Another member of the night revue cast visiting the style show was Princess Luana, who danced the Hula for the group.

Awards for the champions and for the winners of blue and red ribbons are provided by the Oregon Bankers association.

Commentator for the style show was the Marion County 4-H club leader, Bea Humphrie. The judges were Mrs. Marjorie White, Janet Taylor, Murie Scales, Frances Harvey, Mrs. Anne Foster and Jane Gates.

Some Drop in Tourists Seen

L. R. Knepper, manager of the official AAA appointments for the Oregon State Motor association has just completed a late summer survey of travel business in Oregon and his findings indicate travel business in Oregon on a dollar basis is down in some areas, although over-all travel in the state may be up.

"Some motels and resorts on all highways report a decrease in both tourist traffic and business volume from last year," Knepper said, "but only on the Oregon coast is the over-all business and traffic substantially lower."

Weather conditions and highway construction on the coast, Knepper said, have not been "ideal" this year and the "greatly accelerated rate of road repair and construction on the coast has slowed traffic somewhat."

Summarized, his report says: On Highway 99 tourist volume down 3 to 7 per cent during spring and early summer with indications early fall business is going up.

On Highway 97 business volume about same as last year or better with traveling over it into Canada now facing competition from Highways 101, 99 and 395 as construction on those roads is finished.

On Highway 30 volume generally up but that highway feeling competition from the good promotion of US Highway 26. Elimination of Rowena loop and improvements between Pendleton and LaGrande makes future promising. Over-all traffic volume up about 10 per cent.

Highway 395 shows traffic increased and some places showing larger business volume notwithstanding increased number of units for service.

The Willows lake area has reported a good year due to better and more advertising and completed road improvements.

On the lower section of Highway 101 greatest drop in business was reported but most businessmen along that highway "confident that major construction that must be done in summer on the coast means improved business in the future."

Austrian Pea Crop Shrinks

Seattle (AP)—The U. S. and Washington departments of agriculture said Thursday the indicated production of Austrian winter peas this year was only half the 1952 crop, due chiefly to reductions in acreage.

The heaviest drop was in the Idaho acreage, where 25,000 acres were harvested last year and only 8000 are producing peas in 1953.

Oregon's crop is up from 11,000 to 15,000, making it the leading producer this year. The anticipated Washington crop is unchanged from the 2000 acres of 1952.

All three states are sharply down from the 10-year average, which is 35,000 acres for Oregon, 27,500 for Idaho and 13,920 for Washington.
