Cambodia to Desert Allies

Phnom Penh, Cambodia, Indochina (AP)—Cambodia's Premier Pen Nouth told the Communist-led Viet Minh by radio Friday that if they would get out of his Indochinese kingdom, the Cambodians wouldn't fight them in neighboring Viet Nam.

The premier's broadcast, reportedly approved by Cambodia's King Norodom Sihanouk, caused consternation in French and American circles in Indochina. Both the United States and France have been counting on Cambodian cooperation in the fight against the Communist-led rebels.

"While we are not Communists, we have no quarrel with Communism as long as it doesn't impose itself by force on our people," Pen Nouth said in a broadcast addressed to the estimated 10,000 guerrillas of the Communist-led Vietminh operating in Cambodia. He added:

"It isn't up to us to contest your right to busy yourself in the Viet Nam. We ask you simply to let us live our life and leave our soil."

Newport, R. I. (AP)—U. S. Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) and dark-haired Jacqueline Lee Bouvier, former Washington newspaperwoman, were married Saturday in old St. Mary's Church in one of the most lavish weddings Newport has seen in recent years.

Social, political and business leaders packed the little church which seats only 800 and Police Chief Sam Dugan estimated 3,000 to 4,000 persons were jammed around the church lawn and on the street.

The Most Rev. Richard J. Cushing, Roman Catholic archbishop of Boston, performed the wedding ceremony and celebrated the nuptial mass.

Roadways were blocked off in the vicinity of the church and room was left only for the passage of guests.

The bride had 12 attendants. The bride is the daughter of John V. Bouvier II, a New York stockbroker and Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss, of Hammersmith Farm, Newport.

Kennedy, 36, often is mistaken for a teen-ager. He is the son of Joseph P. Kennedy, financier and philanthropist and former U. S. ambassador to Great Britain.

These Men Keep State Fairgrounds Shipshape

By MARGARET MAGEE

Johnny Graber. When people talk of old timers working at the Oregon State Fair Johnny Graber usually heads the list for he's been there many a year, seeing that the plumbing is functioning properly.

Ask Johnny how long he's been at the State Fair—his title is sanitary engineer—and he'll tell you.

"Oh, it's been about 40 years or so. I started about the same time Ella Wilson did. She was here a little before I was, I think."

Then he may remember to tell you that before he took his steady job at the fair he worked here as a member of the firm of Graber Bros. and adds that he helped put in the two inch pipe that ran from the state prison to the fairgrounds to supply water there.

That pipe became inadequate as the fair grew and the State Fair put in its own water system and used that for six or seven years—until it became too small. Now one eight inch pipe and one six inch pipe from the city water main supply the fairgrounds.

Johnny Graber is one of those persons who remembers when the agricultural building was located in the center area, where you now find the carnival. He also remembers back when there was creek running through the fairgrounds and that he helped put in the culvert that drained that creek.

When Graber started at the fairgrounds there was nothing in the way of plumbing but an old trough that he has 10 rest rooms with 210 toilets to maintain and the entire water system, including the water that goes to all of the barns.

A sideline on Johnny Graber that has nothing to do with the State Fair is that for about 50 years he managed the Salem band, and he recalls that they first practiced in the old Opera house, which was over Millers. Also he had one of the first cars in Salem.

Joe Cook. If you need a fence repaired or a piece of tin tacked over a hole in the roof in one of the buildings at the State Fair you will call Joe Cook, the caretaker and the maintenance man.

Joe's year around job is to see that the buildings at the state fairgrounds are kept in repair and that when trouble comes up during the fair repairs are quickly made. If a race horse goes through the fence Cook sees that men are sent to repair the fence and when there was a hole in the floor at the textiles building he sent someone to take care of that.

Cook, for the past seven years has lived in the cottage on the state fairgrounds and State Fair Manager Leo Spitzbart says that Joe makes his job a 24-hour a day and seven day a week job, year round.

"He's better than any five men I could get. Tell him what you want done and it's done," Leo said.

Joe Cook doesn't remember the exact year that he started to work for the State Fair, but when he first came there he worked as a helper to Henry Schultz, the father of Ella Wilson, who then was caretaker. Then as the years passed Joe followed Schultz as caretaker.

When Joe started to work at the fair Sam Bush was there and he recalls he worked under Max Gehlhar.

A carpenter all his life, Cook came to Salem from the east and located in Salem. After working around for a time he applied for work at the State Fair and got it—he thinks he received 15 cents per hour at that time.

Joe grew up with all of the buildings that are now on the grounds. Back when he came to the State Fair the red livestock barns were there in a star form.

Patch work, general construction work, new building, tearing down of old buildings—all of this is the responsibility of Joe Cook. And he's in charge of all men working on maintenance on the grounds.

dollars for 2 1/2-ton trucks had been awarded to General Motors. He said contracts totaling $1 million dollars for similar vehicles went to Reo Motors Corp.

The Reo bid was slightly higher, he said, but it was decided to keep both plants in production "to maintain a broader production base and reduce delivery rates."

An Army spokesman said Secretary of Defense Wilson, former president of General Motors, "definitely was not consulted" on the awarding of the contracts. The spokesman said Stevenson himself made the decision.

"In Public Interest" He disclosed last July that only one manufacturer of the Patton tank would be left in the field, after the spring of 1954, the survivor to be decided on the basis of competitive bidding between Chrysler and GM.

In Detroit Chrysler President L. L. Colbert said the secretary's statement "seems to speak for itself."

"All I can say at the moment is that we worked very hard to get this business," he said.

General Motors said the work would be done at the Fisher plant at Grand Blanc, Mich.

Stevens said he decided the tank contract award was "clearly in the public interest."

Friday's rain apparently dampened the enthusiasm for the fair for attendance figures were down from the same day last year and even the pari-mutuel take was down, which is the first time this year. Five scratches contributed to the decline there.

The Friday attendance figure was 14,700, compared to 16,004 last year. The pari-mutuel take was $79,187, while last year for the same day it was $85,680.

Rece attendance figures were 1,626 this year and 1,833 a year ago. The evening's rain prevented use of the apron in front of the grandstand for seating those attending the night revue and brought the attendance figure there down to 3,268. Last year the figure was 3,877. Two thousand and fifty-one persons attended the rodeo Friday and in 1952 on the same day there were 2,478 persons in attendance at the rodeo.

Trophies awarded included: showmanship, Annabel Edwards, Linn county; beef showmanship, Merle Eakin, Crook county; dairy showmanship, Richard Harmes, Clackamas county; beef herdsmanship, Grant county team; sheep herdsmanship, Deschutes and Multnomah county team; dairy herdsmanship, Coos county team—this trophy is awarded by Eugene Evers, Forest Grove, who was in the last group of prisoners of war to be released in Korea and is a former 4-H clubber, having won a national college scholarship which is being held for him; and swine herdsmanship, Jackson county. Livestock Presented Club members presented livestock were: Duroc gilt, Harold Seeley, Hubbard; Chesterwhite gilt, Don Bradshaw, Hulsey; Black Poland China gilt, Russell Elmore, Jackson county; Berkshire gilt, Robert Barnes, Benton county; Yorkshire gilt, Jerry Linn, Molalla; Oregon milking shorthorn calf, Merwyn Powell, Albany; Holstein heifer calf, Marilyn Ireland, Washington county; Guernsey heifer, Jean Penrose, Tigard; and Ayrshire heifer calf, Dean Eggman, Silverton.

Earlier in the week the Jersey people awarded their calves and the Jersey trophy was also awarded.

Four-H bread baking was being judged Saturday morning but would not be completed until in the mid-afternoon. Three other contests will not be completed until evening. They are the Wool Sewing contest, championship demonstrations, and the Dollar Dinners, Style Show Results.

Sewing awards were announced at the style show Friday afternoon with Jean Eymann, Route 2, Canby, chosen to make the trip to the National Club Congress in Chicago.

Another award made Friday was champion in the Valley Packing company 4-H pig feeding contest. This was won by Barbara Koch, Sherwood, who also had taken it the two previous years and now has permanent possession of the trophy. Barbara, the only girl entered in the contest, receives $25 in addition to the trophy.

George Smith, St. Paul won the reserve champion title and $20. Richard Bernards, St. Paul, and John Linn, Molalla, were among the blue ribbon winners; and among those winning red ribbons was Eldon Andres of Woodburn.

944 Americans

The fliers were part of a list of 944 American names the U. N. Command compiled as missing and believed held back by the Reds after the conclusion of operation big switch last Sunday. The U. N. command urgently demanded an accounting for them.

However, only 917 names were listed by the Defense Department, 27 short of the original number.

Explains Discrepancy The discrepancy was explained as due to a last minute change caused by fresh information, possibly including some verified deaths.

Van Fleet Jr. of Elmhurst Long Island, N. Y., was 26 at the time of his disappearance last year.

Previously the 5th Air Force and the 8th Army had said it had received no information indicating that young Van Fleet or members of his crew were alive. A spokesman said that word received in Portland, Ore., that the general's son and another crewman were rescued "just isn't true."

Meanwhile, the Polish member of a 4-nation commission policing the Korean truce formally charged a Polish interpreter who fled to freedom was kidnapped by U. S. Army officers. His immediate return was demanded.
