

NAVAJO BOYS BEAN HARVESTERS

YOUNG CHIANG IN U. S.
San Francisco (AP)—Lt. Gen. Chiang Chin-kuo, son of Nationalist Chinese President Chiang Kai-shek and commander of the Nationalist Air Force, arrived by plane early today. Chiang will leave Wednesday for Washington.

Playing an important part in the Marion County bean harvest were fourth and fifth year boys from Chemawa Indian School. At left, Mrs. Wood and Earl Hunt, Werline ranch employes, check a sack of beans as John Thompson and Tom Woody, Navajo students, look on. Right, David Mark, Dan Anderson, Francis Nez and unidentified boys in the background labor on, unaware of having their pictures taken.

Sawyer Raps Traffic Plan

Robert W. Sawyer, chairman of the Capitol Planning Commission is opposed to any directional change of traffic on East and West Summer streets, as has been proposed.

Sawyer, in a signed statement, declares that the routing of traffic as provided in a proposed city ordinance and installation of poles and traffic lights on East Summer at Court street would "detract from rather than enhance and preserve the beauty and dignity of the capitol area."

The ordinance would reverse the flow of traffic on the two streets making East Summer a south rather than a north-bound street and West Summer a north instead of a south-bound street.

The State Highway Commission at a recent meeting endorsed the change with the stipulation that such change of traffic would continue only until the capitol mall is developed further north. Such development, it was pointed out, will not be made for some time.

Judge Sawyer in his statement urges that the two short streets be not included in the traffic grid.

The City Council Monday night will consider a one-way grid ordinance covering the downtown area, as well as the two streets in the capitol mall.

BUSINESS MAN OF THE WEEK

Portland's loss is Salem's gain in the instance of Clyde O. Sianning of 1640 South 13th. This energetic young businessman, born and raised in the big city to the north, found Salem to his liking, and is now an up-and-coming retail distributor for Marxz Bakery here.

Born in 1922 and educated in Portland's Fernwood and Grant schools, Clyde did a three-year hitch in the Marine Corps during World War II, participating in the action on Guadalcanal and also on the heavy cruiser Bremerton.

Since then he has been employed by the U. S. National Bank and the Commercial Bank of Oregon, both of Portland. Here in Salem he was associated with Western Aluminum Corporation as office manager before going into his own business, that of selling Famous Marxz Bakery Products.

Clyde and Nanette, his wife, have two children: Peter, 5, and Diana, 3½. Another member of the family is expected around November 1.

When Clyde decided to go into business for himself, he became a retail sales distributor for Marxz Bakery. Now he is in his own boss, owns all his own equipment, and finds his previous business and managerial experience valuable. It helps him give his customers the excellent, courteous service they enjoy, as well as enabling him to operate his business with the greatest efficiency.

Report Plan for More Newsprint

Washington (AP)—A House judiciary subcommittee has recommended a broad program under government sponsorship designed to brighten what it calls "far from reassuring" prospects for future newsprint supplies.

Stress would be placed on the development of new sources for newsprint raw materials, such as sugar cane waste bagasse, hardwoods and used newsprint which has had the ink removed from it.

"We must plan now to forestall a repetition of newsprint shortages which have continually plagued our newspapers—especially our smaller newspapers—for the greater part of a decade," Rep. Reed (R., Ill.), said Sunday in making public the subcommittee's report on its three-year study. Reed heads the Judiciary committee.

The group's report said that while supplies appear to be adequate for U. S. newspapers this year, consumption may rise from the present 6 million in a year to 6,900,000 by 1955, 7,500,000 by 1960 and 8,700,000 by 1975.
