Court Hears Pinball Case

Rights of a city to abolish pinball games used for amusement only were argued before the Oregon Supreme Court Tuesday.

The city of Portland passed an ordinance to ban all pinball games, including those used for amusement only. A 2-1 circuit court decision, holding the ordinance invalid, was appealed by the city to the high court.

The state laws prohibit those pinball games which pay off in cash or merchandise, but the Portland ordinance would also include those used for amusement.

The attack on the ordinance was launched by Stanley G. Terry, Portland, whose lawyer argued that a 1943 state law, which taxes amusement devices, makes them legal throughout the whole state.

Portland City Attorney Alexander Brown said the 1943 law was merely a tax statute, and that a city, under its home rule and police powers, could ban the pinball games used for amusement.

While David Fain, Terry's lawyer, argued that the city of Portland was invading the state's exclusive right to regulate pinballs, Brown claimed that to prevent the city's ordinance from going into effect would be to invade the city's home rule rights.

Snack Bar and Cafeteria Policy Studied by Board

Suggested changes in cafeteria and snack bar equipment at the new South Salem high school, advanced by a representative of the architectural firm were taken under advisement Tuesday night by the school board.

Serving of soft ice cream instead of the hard variety would necessitate heavier power conduits at a consequence additional cost of around $500. It is probable mechanical milk shakers will be introduced, meaning a larger profit.

A change in the manner in which the ceiling of the gymnasium will be suspended was authorized in order to conform as nearly as possible to the building code. The additional cost to the district will be $1,550.

Providing athletic equipment at South Salem creates quite a problem, it developed during a discussion of the matter. Under normal conditions such equipment is purchased from student body funds. However there will be no immediate student body funds at South Salem and it is probable the board will have to advance money with which to purchase football, baseball and similar equipment. It costs about $75 per man to provide equipment for football players.

Incidentally, it was revealed that athletic operations at North Salem have been running in the red for a number of years.

The directors agreed that it would scarcely be cricket to purchase all new equipment for South Salem while North Salem retained all of the old

A Tribute to Thanksgiving Day!

As was done by the Pilgrims many years ago, we give thanks for the many harvests with which God has made our lives so abundant. It is fine and fitting that a plump, roasted turkey... symbol of Thanksgiving Day... should grace our table for all to enjoy. Yet it is fitting, too, that we should pause in our beautiful feasting and really give spiritual thanks to Him who has made all these things possible. Let us be reverent... as well as just humanly hungry... this Thanksgiving. Let's look beyond that table loaded with food... and remember our blessings in all humility!
