COAST FISHING PROSPECTS IMPROVE

There is a good possibility that coast streams may clear enough for drift fishing this week-end. When steelhead are in in sufficient quantities, drifting has paid off even during periods of quite murky water. Since fish apparently locate food by scent aimost as much as by sight, a glob of salmon food by scent almost as much as by sight, a glob of sainful eggs can be very effective.

While artifical lure "purists" will scorn coast angling until the water clears, it is surprising the luck an angler can have on certain bright lures, even in muddy water. We recall booking a steelhead on the Little Nestucca some time ago in very murky water. The visibility seemed scarcely more than a foot—but apparently we dropped the daredevil right by the fish. He struck almost as soon as the red and white lure hit the water, made a slashing run and wound the leader around a snag.

FABULOUS "CHERRY BOBBER"

Speaking of lures, an advance bulletin from Outdoor Life magazine, informs us that the December issue of magazine will carry two articles on the fabulous "Cherry Bobber" lure. Encs Bradner of Scattle writes one, and Francis H. Ames of Portland pens the other. The gist of the articles is that the Cherry Bobber is one terrific steelhead lure for both Oregon and Washington winter run fish. The articles will tell how to use the lure, and should be interesting to Oregon steelheaders.

On Thanksgiving morning we spent a couple of hours scanning the sky near McMinnville for ducks. The high water from the Yamhill was subsiding, leaving many potholes that looked ideal for enticing ducks. Conditions looked good—but the ducks seemed to think otherwise. Very few were in evidence, and little shooting was to be heard. However, we did have some fun with one old greenhead mallard.

We called him out of a flight that passed high overhead.
There were possibly fifty mallards in the flight, all definitely not interested in our decoys—with the exception of this one not interested in our decoys—with the exception of this one drake. He cut out of the flight, and we could hear his rusty "quack quack quack" as he made high circles over the decoys.

"quack quack" as he made high circles over the decoys. We really went to work on the duck call—pleading, cajoling and promising the old boy a happy landing. He dropped down a bit, his neck bent as he gave the decoys, a good going over. At the time, there was no breeze, and the decoys looked lifeless on the water. Since we were to be out only a short time, we hadn't rigged up a "dipping duck" among the decoys, so there was no way to put a ripple on the water.

Finally the drake dropped down with serious intent, By this time we had blown so much moisture into the duck call that the reed was right on the point of Jamming, and we knew a sour note would spoil things. Five times the duck swung is a sour note would spoil things. Five times the duck swung in not ten feet over the decoys, wings cocked, feet down, Each time he was not quite satisfied, and climbed back into the sky in a rush. He circled almost out of sight after the fifth pass, and we felt sure that the next time, he would keep right on going. So, as he dropped in again, we stood up, swung right on going. So, as he dropped in again, we stood up, swung ahead of him and pulled the trigger.

It was an easy shot—scarcely forty-five yards. The dog was ail ready to leave the blind and bring in the bird. But, somehow, the bird kept right on flying. We fired again. Still flying. We fired the last shot. The drake never dropped a feather. As we looked down at the disaproving look on old Sarge's face, we recalled the comment by Confucious (?): "One shot, one duck. Two shots, one duck, maybe. Three shots, no duck at all".

On Dec. 5th and 5th, there will be a pointing dog field trial at Camp Adair. On Saturday, puppy stakes and amateur stakes will be run, while on Sunday the veteran dogs take over in the Open All Age, with a purse of $250. Should be an interesting affair.

Sore-Armed Layne Passes Lions Nearer Pro Crown

Detroit W.B._The Detroits Lions were a game nearer the National Football League's Western Division title today through the efforts of a sore-arm passer and an end who had been ineffective most of the Quarterback Bobby Layne, who hadn't thrown a pass in practice this week because of a painful arm ailment, connected with end Cloyce Box for a 97-yard touchdown in the third period to start the Lions on a comeback that produced a 34-15 Thanksgiving Day vic-tory over the Green Bay Pack-

Box, the league's second highest scorer last season with 15 touchdowns in Detroit's drive to the championship, had grabbed only one touchdown ass in nine previous games.

That quick touchdown was the turning point in the game. Green Bay, leading 15-7, had marched to the shadow of the Detroit goal. But halfback Al Carmichael fumbled and de-fensive end Jim Cain pounced on the ball for the Lions.

Layne stepped back and un-loosed a towering pass to Box who raced untouched to the end zone. It was the third longest touchdown pass in NFL Present champions are expected to retain their crowns tonight when two classes of Oregon high schools hold championship football games at Port-land and Prineville.

Meeting on the Multnomah stadium turf in Portland will be the Rams of Portland's Central Catholic high school and the Grants Pass Cavemen. The Rams were heavy favorites to keep their title and win their 22nd straight game. It will be the 12th official contest for the Oregon high school champion-ship in the A-1 class.

Rosen Unanimously Gets AL Most Valuable Honor

New York @ - Third base-man Al Rosen, the belting bridegroom from Cleveland, won the American league's most valuable player award today by the first unanimous vote in history.

Never before since the base ball writers started making the annual awards in 1931 had a player received every first place vote of the special com-mittee of 24 scribes—three from each league city. That gave him a perfect score of 336

Rosen also was the first third baseman in American league annals to be chosen for the award. Bob Elliott of the Bos-ton Braves won the National league honors as a third baseman in 1947.

Rosen Credits Bride

The slugging Rosen, who attributed his fine season to the inspiration of his pretty bride, Terry, led the majors in runs batted in with 145, and the American league in homers with 43 and in runs scored with 115. OSAA Discusses 8-Game Limit on Prep Schedules

Portland (#) — A proposal to limit high school football teams to eight regular-season games came before the Oregon School Activities as-

Oregon School Activities association here Friday.

Delegates to the annual meeting also are considering two other proposed changes.

One would require a team to play all schools in its district before it could take part in a state playoff.

Another would change the designation of class B teams to class 3-A.

The proposal to limit the regular season to eight games also would forbid start of practice before Sept. 1 No games would be permitted before Sept. 15.
