Stull cleaned out the cash drawer of three one-dollar bills and $3.95 in silver. The robber ordered him to turn over the "rest of the money," but Stull told him that was all there was. The rest was locked up in the safe. He was then ordered to pull out the cash drawer so that it could be seen.

The robber took a quick look, ordered Stull not to "call the cops" for a full minute, and then dashed out.

About that time Officers Calvin Steward and David Bain were driving nearby when they spotted two men running across the intersection of Ferry and State streets, and saw them jump into a car parked with its engine idling, and speed off. The officers immediately took chase but were unable to catch them at speeds up to 65 miles an hour until the car slowed down for the intersection at 12th and State. It ran the red light there and was stopped shortly after that.

While the officers were questioning the two, they received a radio report of the robbery and noted that the two and their car fitted the description given. They arrested Boston on a reckless driving charge and took the two of them to the hotel where Stull identified Barker as the man who had pulled the hold-up. In Barker's left hand jacket pocket, police found $6.95 in coins and bills. Stull had earlier told them that the robber had picked up the money with his left hand and put it into his jacket pocket.

They were held the remainder of the night, Boston on the reckless driving charge and Barker on an open charge. District Court warrants charging robbery were obtained later in the morning. The two are being held in lieu of $3500 bail each.

Boston had admitted in a signed statement that he had driven the car and that Barker had entered the hotel "to get some money." Barker has refused to admit anything, police said.

Boston said they met a few weeks ago in California and came to Oregon just recently. They have been staying in a Woodburn motel, he said.

State police said Friday that they have no previous record listed for either Boston or Barker. A check with the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Washington is being made on that line, city police said.

Fire Caused by Heated Pipes

A hot water heating system ran out of water Friday morning and the resultant overheated pipes started a fire in the floor of the Hawthorne Apartments, North Capitol and E streets, burning two holes through the floor despite heavy insulation around the pipes, city firemen reported.

The fire was discovered by Hugh Aspinwall, a superintendent of California Packing Corporation, who had returned to his apartment about 9 o'clock with his young granddaughter to pick up a book for her.

Firemen said the fire started above the furnace between the basement ceiling and the apartment flooring around the unprotected joints of the hot water pipes.

The pipes led beneath the flooring to the radiators. The pipes and furnace were red hot and wood scorched even through the thick insulation around the pipes, firemen said.

Two holes about three feet in diameter were burned through the floor of the apartment. The living room rug and a throw rug were burned and smoke filled the apartment so thickly that firemen were forced to wear masks to enter. Damage inside the flooring was not immediately apparent, firemen said.

Aspinwall's apartment was the only one of the court-type apartments damaged by the blaze. The apartments are owned and operated by A. L. Lewis. Lewis reported later that the water control was apparently cut off by a short in an electrical control box. With the automatic control off, the furnace soon became overheated. There was evidence of a fire in the control box which was several feet from any of the other fire, he said.

Ike Sends Message To School Teachers
Los Angeles—President Eisenhower messaged the National Council of Teachers of English convention that it is the responsibility of English teachers to pass on to America's youth the ideals of democracy. The message, read to the convention's opening session Thursday night, said:

"You bear the responsibility for passing along to the youth of America a love for an understanding of those ideals of our heritage which find repeated expression in our rich and flexible mother tongue—the ideals of peace, freedom, dignity, reverence for God and respect for our fellow men."

Suomela Appointed To Wild Life Service

Washington (AP)—Secretary of Interior Douglas McKay today announced appointment of Arnie Suomela, Oregon state fisheries director, as assistant director of the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

He is expected to assume his new duties in the near future, although no definite date has been set, McKay's office said.

RESTORES PAPERS AFTER FBI RAID

Wollaston, Mass., Nov. 27—Mrs. George D. O'Brien replaces family papers and records in her home here which were removed from bureau drawers by FBI agents investigating the $681,700 Danvers, Mass., armored car robbery March 25, 1952. Her husband and 19-year-old son, George D. Jr., are being held in Suffolk County jail in connection with the robbery. Mrs. O'Brien was also arrested but freed under $1,000 bond on a charge of receiving stolen property. (AP Wirephoto)

from an armored car of the United States Trucking company which was left unattended on Danvers Square while its three guards sipped coffee in a nearby drug store. Held in $100,000 Bail

Arrested Wednesday night were George D. O'Brien, 43, an ex-convict; his wife, Margaret, 42, mother of three children; and their son, George, Jr., 19, a third-year student at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The father was charged with the theft of property from a federal reserve bank. He is being held in $100,000 bail for hearing December 9. The mother and son were charged with receiving stolen property. The son is being held in $5,000. The mother is free on her personal recognizance.

Race Track Watched
Local police officials reported they were informed that FBI agents went to the Lincoln Downs horse race track in Rhode Island Thursday in search of other suspects but the FBI refused to confirm that.

The FBI also refused to confirm a report that they arrested the O'Briens in connection with the robbery in Danvers, 20 miles north of Boston, although O'Brien originally was being investigated for the $1,219,000 Brink's Boston counting room robbery of January, 1950.

Viewed as Move

Evidence that the note was a thrust at European unity and strength, the state department said, was found in the fact it was timed to coincide with the foreign policy debate in the French Parliament on the European Defense Community which would mean West German rearmament.

To Impede Progress
The statement called that "one of the most significant and obvious aspects" of the notes and added that it "would appear therefore, to represent another Soviet effort to impede progress on EDC ratification and other steps toward greater European unity and strength."

A digest of the note Russia sent Thursday night to the United States, Britain and France became available in Paris. It indicated that if a Big Four meeting of foreign ministers were held the Soviets would immediately press for a follow-up meeting including communist China.

To Stall Discussion
Informed observers here said the result might be that instead of further postponing a four-power meeting by dispatching repeated notes on the Chinese question, the Russians conceivably might allow the meeting to assemble, and then stall discussion of European problems while the Chinese issue was worked over again.

In any case, the Russian note was under intensive study by Secretary of State Dulles and his principal policy advisers to determine whether it is a serious step toward easing world tensions or a clever stab at the unity of the west.

Available information in Washington and Paris was that the note laid down no preconditions for a Big Four meeting, but gave clear evidence of Russia's continuing preoccupation with the status of Red China; that it proposed a meeting of foreign ministers without previous consultation on agenda, suggested Berlin as the meeting place and left the date open.

At the afternoon session, however, the personal animosities faded as the deputies sought to give outward appearance of harmony.

Foreign Policy Debate
The vote came on a resolution winding up a foreign policy debate that has occupied the Assembly for two weeks. Most of the debate had centered on the European army.

The resolution made no mention of the army itself, but approved government statements which noted that three conditions must be met before the army treaty can be ratified by France.

These were settlement of the Saar question, British agreement on close association with the European army and acceptance of additional protocols asked by France.

Laniel had told the Assembly earlier Friday he would quit unless he got a clear-cut approval of his policies.

"I do not want a government with reduced powers and limited responsibilities," he asserted.

Committee of 30 Trying To Complete Chest Fund

Thirty men met Wednesday afternoon and volunteered to try to get another $3,000 for the Community Chest to bring the total of the campaign up to $120,000.

Otto J. Wilson, general chairman, explained that the Chest agencies budgets have been carefully prepared and the amount asked was the minimum necessary to carry out their programs, that they are now faced with the problem of either reducing their services or raising some money by a supplemental campaign.

The 30 men have worked as volunteers throughout the campaign but are willing to make some more calls. A list was prepared of firms and individuals who were out of the city earlier in the campaign or who were inadvertently overlooked.

They are now being given an opportunity to contribute to the Chest. Another list was made of firms and individuals who reduced their contribution below previous years.

Cheese and Butter Examinations Dated
The State Department of Agriculture announced today that it will receive applications until December 10 for the annual cheese making and buttermaking examinations to be held on the State College campus at Corvallis December 21 and 22.

Applicants may write in either or both of the examinations, according to Kenneth E. Carl, assistant chief of the department's foods and dairies division. These are the first examinations scheduled under the 1953 dairy products plant act.

Those desiring to take the examinations should direct their applications to the state department of agriculture at Salem.

Premier Laniel

There seemed little doubt that Laniel had been aided by the Soviet offer of Thursday night. Almost all sections of the National Assembly had long urged such a meeting.

Early in the day it seemed that Laniel would have difficulty in getting approval from the deputies of his policy on European unity. Then at one point Foreign Minister Georges Bidault threatened to resign because he felt he had been slighted by the Premier.

At the afternoon session, however, the personal animosities faded as the deputies sought to give outward appearance of harmony.

The vote came on a resolution winding up a foreign policy debate that has occupied the Assembly for two weeks. Most of the debate had centered on the European army.

Social Security Probe Brings Stormy Meeting

Washington (AP)—A house ways and means subcommittee studying the social security system fell into stormy argument Friday over the way Chairman Curtis (R., Neb.) is running its hearings.

Arthur J. Altmeyer, former social security commissioner, was in the witness chair for questioning about the development of the system to date but more often than not agitated while the members roared off themselves.

First off, democrats protested that Curtis had sent a subpoena, a legal order requiring appearance, to Altmeyer rather than merely asking him to testify.

Rep. Dingell (D., Mich.) told Curtis: "You ought to be ashamed of yourself."

Dingell accused Curtis of inserting "tripe" into the record and asked whether Altmeyer was appearing in "chains and wristlets."

Rep. Eberharter (D., Pa.) declared that subpoena powers never had been used before by committees considering legislative matters, as distinguished from investigations.

Altmeyer was one of the framers of the social security system in 1935 and headed the program until he was ousted by the Eisenhower administration.

Not a Single Holiday Traffic Fatality in Oregon

(By United Press) Oregon apparently passed the Thanksgiving holiday without a single highway traffic fatality. State police had no reports of fatal accidents from 6 p.m. Wednesday until midnight Thursday.

Three persons were killed, however, in highway mishaps Wednesday afternoon and one person was drowned Wednesday night.

The highway accident victims were 25-year-old John W. Stanley of Hillsboro who died of drowning when his car plunged off the highway into a roadside pond near Hillsboro; Irvin Monroe Nicholas, 19, of Newport, and the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Aldropp of Langlois who died in a head-on collision near Grand Ronde.

George Masnos, 42, Coos Bay, drowned Wednesday night in Tenmile lake on the Oregon coast when a boat carrying him, his wife and two teenage sons capsized.

Oregonians generally spent a quiet holiday with biggest crowds reported in churches throughout the state. There were no large sports events and police reported highway traffic was "not very heavy" despite mild weather.

A U. S. Army officer said that controlling the flames that leaped 50 feet high, "now depends on the wind." If the wind veers, or lets up, then the fire fighters may have a chance.

Yongdo an island near by. A U. S. Army officer estimated 300,000 Koreans and Americans had fled the flames. He said that from 2,000 to 3,000 buildings—shacks, houses, shops, stores, small offices and some large buildings—had gone up in flames.

By 3 a.m., the fire was consuming the three-story building housing the headquarters for the U. S. Army's Korean base section. This is the huge military command which directs the shipping and handling of millions of dollars worth of war materials.

The railway station, which is just down the street, appeared doomed. It is from here that military supplies feeding into the port are shipped northward.
