VICTIMS OF TRAGEDY

Waldo V. (Jack) Hardman who was found dead by suicide in a car on a branch road south of Salem Sunday morning, and his estranged wife, Frances Hardman, who was found slain by strangulation Saturday morning in her apartment in the Minnesota Motel, and for whose murder Hardman was sought by police.

Murder Suspect

tears in my eyes. As you know my life was all tied up in you, which I can't carry on with out you. As you know of course you will get everything I have which isn't much. Please give me a nice funeral and I will haunt you all your life. This is the last words from your lover. Goodbye, Jack"

Mrs. Hardman was found dead of strangulation in the cabin at the Minnesota Motel by her roommate, Mrs. Edna Baker, with whom she had been living since leaving her husband in mid-September.

Salem Police Chief Clyde Warren said Monday that the murder of Mrs. Hardman had not definitely been pinned on the dead man but the evidence was so strong against him that a warrant would have been obtained charging him with murder had not his body been found. Meanwhile an intensive police search ended with the finding of the body. Investigation will continue, Warren said, until it is definitely established as to Hardman's guilt, but at present the case is presumed to be a definite murder and suicide by Hardman.

The death of Mrs. Hardman apparently came as the culmination of a stormy, six-year marriage marked with several separations and, recently, an application for divorce. Since moving in with Mrs. Baker, she had been working at the Oregon Flax Textiles plant. Hardman had attempted to see her on several occasions since the separation, friends said, but she refused to see him. Friday, he had come to the cabin and there was a violent quarrel in which he tried to choke her, she told Mrs. Baker later. That night the two women saw Hardman in town at which time Mrs. Hardman reportedly threatened to get a court order to force him to leave her alone.

Saturday, Hardman appeared at Vista Cleaners where Mrs. Baker is employed and inquired about his wife. A short time later a man answering his description was seen at the cabin door by neighbors. At first, she wouldn't admit him, a witness said, but when he told her he had brought her some money, she let him in. No one remembered seeing him leave.

A couple hours later Mrs. Baker became worried about her roommate and went home to find her lying on the bed. She called first aidmen and police but application of oxygen by first aidmen and a stimulant by a doctor failed to revive her.

An immediate manhunt for Hardman was ordered and police in other states were notified to be on the lookout for his car. He apparently had driven to the spot of the suicide shortly after the murder, however, and shot himself, police said. A woman reported seeing the car there before noon on Saturday when she drove by and the coroner's report indicated that he had

Woman Held for Fire in Pusan

Pusan (AP)—South Korean Police said Monday night they are holding a Korean housewife on charges that her "carelessness" caused Friday night's disastrous 40-million-dollar Pusan fire—the worst in Korea's history.

The police would not say where they are holding the woman and refused to answer other queries. A police spokesman said she is accused of leaving a small charcoal stove burning unattended when she left her home. It burned down her house and high winds spread the blaze over one sixth of Pusan, a city of more than a million people.

The government also reportedly removed Pusan's provincial police chief because of the fire and also because of a recent successful guerrilla raid against a provincial police station. Government sources would not discuss the action.

The fire toll was 4 known dead, 105 injured and 31,300 homeless.

Ike Commends Soil Exhibit

Washington (AP)—President Eisenhower Monday viewed an exhibit showing how the agriculture department is attempting to hold rainfall in the watersheds where it falls, and expressed his full approval of the program.

The exhibit in the patio of the department's administration building was explained to the president by Secretary of Agriculture Benson, Undersecretary True D. Morse and Asst. Secretary J. Earl Coke.

The program is designed to retard flow off of water so as to provide more plentiful supplies of moisture for adjacent farmlands to prevent erosion, and to help prevent big floods downstream. A 28-foot painting and relief map were set up to show how this is done.

Eisenhower told Benson, after spending 20 minutes viewing the exhibit, that he would like to see federal appropriations for the program increased. For the current fiscal year, congress appropriated five million dollars, largely for technical assistance to local groups carrying out the conservation projects.

Bank Chain

Appealing to the Supreme Court on behalf of the board, the Justice Department said that under the Circuit Court decision, "a few bank holding companies similar to Transamerica, operating in various sections of the country, could completely control the banking of this nation, with the board powerless to intervene."

Court Upholds

4. Granted a hearing to Harold Sacher, attorney disbarred by the U. S. District Court of New York because of his conduct at the 1949 trial and conviction of top Communist Party leaders. Sacher defended them. The question for the Supreme Court will be whether disbarment was excessive punishment for contempt.

Dudley Impressed by Airfield Factory Site

John R. Dudley, executive secretary of the Salem Industrial Development Council, Monday viewed the city-owned ground within the Salem airfield that is being offered for industrial purposes, and pronounced it ideal.

Escorting Dudley about the area were Reynolds Allen, chairman, and Paul Woodruffe, member of the Airport Advisory Committee, and Charles Barclay, airport manager for the city.

The city of Salem has around 18 lots within the field that are not needed for airport purposes, and used industrially would not interfere with navigation.

"It is an outstanding location for industry," said Dudley after the inspection. "The only thing lacking is transportation between the city and the airfield location for persons who might be employed there, and that could be met by City Transit Lines extending a bus service to the area."

"The district has power, water, sewage service, roads and good drainage. It has one spur track and possibilities for three more spurs."

The fact that the location is outside the city is no obstacle, according to Dudley.

"That's what industry wants," he said, "good sites on the fringe of the city."

And the proximity to the airport, he thinks, is a big advantage. It would be a big convenience for executives from other states coming here to visit branch plants, and for the accounting departments of industries would even make it possible for the bookkeeping for the branch plant to be done at the central office.

New York (AP)—Former President Harry S. Truman came into town Monday, apparently in no mood to talk about political feuds.

He arrived by train at Grand Central Station, and was met by his daughter, Margaret, and Edwin K. Hastings, vice president of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, where he will stay.

He plans to be here until Friday. As he "talked briskly from a train to an elevator, and thence to a waiting limousine, Truman said he had no further comment on the Harry Dexter White controversy.

Asked if he had anything more to say about Sen. McCarthy (R. Wis.) and their radio-television exchange of charges and counter-charges, Truman said: "No further comment on that."

Asked what his schedule was for Monday, Truman pointed his thumb at his daughter and said with a grin, "Here's my schedule."

Ike and Dulles

In that testimony, prepared in advance of Eden's statement, Dulles said that "we approach a possible meeting with the representatives of the Soviet Union. I can assure you that we welcome opportunities to settle specific disputes between us; to end the race in armament, particularly atomic armament, and to reduce the risks of war."

"But let me also assure you of this," he added. "We do not look on the conference table as a place where we surrender our principles but rather as a place for making our principles prevail."

There was no immediate comment from the White House.

In addition to talks about the proposed Big Four meeting, Eisenhower and Dulles were expected to discuss in some detail plans for the Dec. 4 Bermuda conference of the heads of state of the three western powers.

Ft. Monmouth Hearing Stated

Ft. Monmouth, N. J. (AP)—A five-member army security board will open hearings here Dec. 7 for 33 civilian workers suspended in a loyalty probe, it was revealed Monday.

The Public Information Office of this Army Signal Corps center said the hearings might last for about three months. Sen. McCarthy (R., Wis.), has charged that a Communist spy ring operated in the radar laboratories here. Army Secretary Stevens has said there is no indication of current espionage here.

Sources close to Ft. Monmouth said that 12 of the 33 workers have been reinstated in the last two weeks because of a 30-day suspension ended for them without any charges being filed, as required by civil service regulations.

The sources said charges have been filed against 18 more of the 33. The status of the other three were not revealed.

Norblad to Address Hotel Associations

Members of both the Oregon State Hotel association and the Southern Oregon branch of the hotel association will be in Salem Saturday night for a dinner meeting at the Senator hotel.

Speaking briefly at the meeting will be U.S. Rep. Walter Norblad.

Invited to attend the meeting as guests of the association will be members of the board of control of the state of Oregon, Gov. Paul L. Patterson, Secretary of State Earl Newberry and Treasurer Sig Underer.

Austin Seavey, manager of the West Linn hotel, is the president of the Oregon State Hotel association and Leonard Rowan, of the Chadwick hotels and manager of the Senator hotel is the president of the Southern Oregon branch.

An aide said the U.S. defense department authorized the new figure on the basis of studies since last June 30. That period was covered by the earlier survey.

Lodge said world communism was a single political movement with world-wide activities and ambitions. Clear Record of Violation

There was a clear record of wholesale violation in Korea of Geneva rules on prisoners of war, he continued, adding, "The violations occurred on such a scale as to indicate irresistibly that they reflected a conscious policy..."

"That these atrocities were due to a conscious policy is strongly suggested by the following facts:

"The mass executions of Korean civilians—in some cases in the same groups with Americans and other prisoners of war—were done by authority of a purely political agency, the North Korean political security police..."

Court Enjoins

In issuing the injunction, the judge said he found the men did not hold patents which they claimed while making their sales. He also found they did not have the extensive timber cutting rights they claimed.

He also said Errior, Holdorf, Carr and O'Connell had diverted funds from National Plywood.
