

FRAGRANT GIFTS FOR HER

New! She'll thrill to this complete travel kit that's fitted for beauty by DUBARRY! In rich alligator-grain, moire-lined, it holds a treasure trove of luxurious cremes, lotions and fashion-keyed make-up essentials.

A Gift of Cologne, Here's a fragrance that demands a 'yes' for an exciting gift for Christmas. CHARBERT'S "Consent" eau de toilette. Other items in this distinctive fragrance are bath oil, dusting powder and perfume.

Lancome's deluxe offering for Christmas, is its elegant new perfume, "Tresor" . . . in a diamond-cut flacon that flashes brilliance from every facet. "Tresor's" odeur is of Oriental inspiration—with sultry overtones, softly-blended with floral notes.

Jewelry's Been a Male Prerogative for Ages

During the past five years, the American man has shone forth in all his glory in a collection of jewelry to dazzle the eye.

The girls seem to think that the male trend to jewelry is a comparatively new one. Actually, man—even more so than woman—has been 'bejeweled' since he crawled out of his caves.

Goose Also Popular For Christmas Dinner

While turkey has long been the traditional Christmas dish in America, of late the goose has been forging ahead like a shot in many lands as the piece de resistance of the Yuletide meal.

The goose rates especially high in the Scandinavian countries, heading an impressive list of meats and fish served during the Christmas and holiday season. In Sweden, celebrants like to see a suckling pig decorate the groaning board, along with the many dishes associated with the Smorgasbord.

France and Iceland look with high favor on the goose, and the Germans, noted trenchermen, glid the goose with apple stuffing. The Hollander gives the nod to highly spiced dressing for his Christmas goose, with plenty of puddings, fruit cakes, honey cakes and dessert breads to go with it.

Latin countries forego the goose, choosing lamb as the dish of the day, while the Englishman sticks by his roast beef (along with various fowl) to the bitter end. Cuba says "Si, si!" to roast pig, and it's fish and fowl for Portugal.

But here in America, the turkey remains the king of the holiday feast. And most Americans wouldn't have it any other way.

Just a little bit more of that dark meat, please!

GAY CHRISTMAS CAKE . . . For a Christmas-looking Cake, try adding chopped maraschino cherries and nuts to your favorite white cake recipe. Be sure the nuts are chopped fine the cherries are well-drained. Fold into the batter with just a few strokes. Frost the cake with white icing and add a gay Christmas trim.

Buy cellophane-wrapped cans in a variety of sizes and hang them from the branches of the tree. Wire a huge cane in the center of your door spray of Christmas greens. Tuck tiny ones into bows of gift packages!

We mean this literally, of course, for primitive man decorated himself and his weapons with crude jewelry made of stones and shells to keep evil spirits away.

In the highly developed civilizations of Egypt and Greece, jewelry was really important. Men of high rank and station wore rings, brooches, necklaces and amulets—since these were still supposed to hold magic powers against ill-luck and disease.

In fact the Romans made such a showing of heavy opulent bedazzlements that Cato (the old meany) passed laws prohibiting the use of all jewelry except that worn for a utilitarian purpose, such as a badge of office.

During the Middle Ages, the Church, particularly the higher officials, took over the practice of wearing jewelry. The nobility, too, set great store by ponderous jewelry collections.

Further along, love-em-and-leave-em Henry VIII of England, owned hundreds of brooches, necklaces, collars, pendants, and gem-set buckles. And similar male flamboyancies held sway until the French Revolution.

At that time, such lavish display was sure to send the owner to the guillotine. Through the years since, jewelry for men has evolved into the masculine simplicity of present day designs.

Suggestions That Do Not Dent Your Purse

Say "Merry Christmas" to a neighbor or acquaintance without denting your gift budget! Here are some pin-money suggestions:

Buy a tiny casserole at the 10c store and, when making the family fruit cakes, bake a small one in the casserole. Both the delicious cake and the handy casserole will be welcomed!

Pick up an inexpensive glass goblet and fill with preserves or jelly. Tuck holly into the paraffin before it hardens.

A decorated tin box, available at any 10c store, filled with salted nuts or homemade candy makes a tasty Yuletide greeting. After Christmas, the box makes a handy container for sewing needs.

Fill a budget-priced glass cruet with your favorite French dressing and tie a sprig of red berries to the handle. Your neighbor will love the tasty gift and the decorative bottle.
