Rites for Mrs. Guthrie To Be at Portland Home

Funeral services for Mrs. George B. Guthrie, who was stricken at her home in Portland Tuesday morning and died Thursday, will be held from the Guthrie home, 6651 SE Scott Drive, Portland, Tuesday at 2 p.m. Friends are invited.

Carolyn Sherman Grimsby Guthrie was a woman of wide interests who served in many ways the communities in which she lived. She was born March 20, 1882, in Chickasaw County, Iowa. Her early education was in the schools of New Hampton, Iowa, and she was a graduate of Iowa State college in the class of 1905 in which she was the highest honor student. From 1905 to 1910 she was assistant librarian at Iowa State, and took a further course at Jane Addams Hull House in Chicago, and was deputy city clerk of Chicago from 1910 to 1915, working in the Court of Domestic Relations.

She was married to George B. Guthrie, November 24, 1915, and came at once to Portland. She was the mother of three children: George B. Guthrie, Jr., of Bartlesville, Okla., Sara Carolyn Wilson of Terrebonne, Ore., and David Gordon Guthrie of Grand Ronde, Ore.

Lebanon Sells Sewage Bonds

Lebanon — Low bidder for $60,000 of general obligation bonds to finance construction of the sewage disposal plant addition was the United States National Bank of Portland. Only contending bidder was the First National Bank of Lebanon.

The winning bid set interest at 2 1/2 per cent on the bonds, and the bid called for payment of $99.30 for each $100 per value of the bonds. The effective interest rate was 2.3772 per cent. First National's bid had an effective interest rate of 2.595.

A city planning commission was proposed at the city council meeting this week in a letter from the Chamber of Commerce. The matter is in the hands of the ordinance committee for study.

City Attorney Kenneth Wilshire will meet with the committee to explain provisions of the state law that deals with planning commissions.

An additional proposal for a new building code was made to the council. It went to the building committee with the suggestion that new codes should be studied with the cooperation of a citizen committee.

The street committee reported that enough money remains in this year's budget to provide 30 additional mercury vapor lights.

At present Lebanon has 172 lights of this type and 52 old style single lamps left. By adding the 30 mercury lights, it will leave only 22 street corners with the old lights. These are expected to be changed when the new budget is approved.

Western Law Schools May Convene Here

That Salem may be the scene of the May 7-8 annual conference of Western Law Schools is the hope expressed by Seward P. Reese, dean of the Willamette law school and chairman for the annual meeting of the western schools.

"I hope the May meeting will be held in Oregon's capital city, but the location will not be definitely determined until the national conference of American Law Schools in Chicago, Dec. 29," said Dean Reese.

Shelden D. Elliott, director of the Institute of Judicial Administration in New York, will be the principal speaker during the May conference. The conference of Western Law Schools comprises 27 schools in the 11 western states.

Advice Given Tree Cutters

Persons who are going to cut their own Christmas trees will soon start heading for the wooded areas.

So that these Christmas-tree-hunters may help in carrying on Oregon's program to eliminate wasteful and harmful Christmas tree practices, Lynn F. Cronemiller, assistant state forester, has provided a few suggestions for their guidance.

Cronemiller advises that Christmas trees should come from marginal lands, which are not being used for timber production, from "Christmas tree farms" where the trees are grown commercially for Yule time use, from pasture lands, or from forest thinnings and farm woodlands.

While commercial tree cutters are required to obtain harvesting permits from the state forester's office, those cutting trees for their own family's use do not have to have such a permit. However, they must secure the permission of the landowner for cutting from either private or public property.

Cronemiller offers a few suggestions on how to cut the tree. They are:

Don't cut your tree close to the road and spoil the beauty of the roadside.

Don't cut all of the trees from one patch.

Don't cut the top from a large tree.

When you cut a tree, leave a branch or two on the stump, because a branch will develop later into another tree and save several years of growing time.

Be certain you are satisfied with the tree of your choice before you cut it. Wasted trees are wasted years.

The assistant state forester also offered one suggestion for the tree after it has been cut and placed in the house. That was "extreme caution in using lighted candles on the inflammable conifers."

Timber Tracts Sell at 34 Percent Above Appraisal

Prices averaging 34 percent above the appraised values were bid on four tracts of timber at the monthly Bureau of Land Management auction conducted in the Salem Forest District Friday.

The tracts, containing an estimated 11,661,000 board feet, received bids totaling $265,378.78. Seventy people attended the sale.

Geil Logging Company of Sweet Home submitted high sealed bids for two tracts of salvage timber in Linn County. The prices bid for Douglas fir were $37.55 and $23.55 per thousand board feet. The first tract attracted seven competitors while the second had six bidders.

Competition for 3,704,000 board feet of timber, mostly

Douglas fir, in Clackamas County south of Molalla, raised the appraised price of $20.40 per thousand board feet for the Douglas fir to $31.11 on an oral auction sale. Competitors were Avison Lumber Company, Molalla; Stallings Lumber Company, Fossil; and Kropf Lumber Company, Molalla. The latter firm submitted the final bid and was subsequently declared to be the high bidder.

Willamette Valley Lumber Company, Dallas, was the only bidder at the appraised price of $20.10 for 5,344,000 board feet of timber including Douglas fir, western hemlock, western red cedar, white fir, Noble fir, and western white pine located near Snow Peak.

Two tracts of fire-killed salvage timber — one of 235,000 board feet in Lincoln County and one of 1,460,000 board feet in Tillamook County — received no bids. These tracts will be available for purchase at not less than the appraised price during the next 90 days.

A tract of 1,675,000 board feet of timber in Benton County was withdrawn from the sale pending verification of property lines in that vicinity.

Seven other tracts in the Salem Forest District will be offered at the next monthly timber sale on Tuesday, January 5.

Powder Magazine Resists Burglars

Lebanon — An attempted forced entry into a powder magazine near the river proved unsuccessful during the past few days. Employees of Kellogg's company discovered the padlock shot from the door when they were after blasting powder Wednesday morning. Entry into the powder room had been thwarted by inside doors.

At first believed the work of professional yeggs, police now believe that the damage may have been done by youths. State police were called to investigate.

Salem Industries

expansion and prosperity of the institutions already located here.

There are many reasons why communities do not prosper but, there are only few reasons why a community cannot progress. One of these reasons is the lack of proper appreciation by the community as to what the mills, factories and workshops mean from the standpoint of regular employment and the distribution of earned wages. Salem is the capitol city of a great state and, this resume of the industrial employment and payroll does not take into effect the more than 8,000 people employed by the state. This fact has, naturally, attracted much attention to Salem's livability and importance.

Fortunately, however, there is, today, a growing consciousness of what the industries mean and a greater number of citizens are finding the time to take an interest in the policies that control the management of these local industries. Since the close of World War II, there has been competition between industrial communities in the Pacific Northwest for the securing of additional industries and commercial establishments. The greatest success, however, has been experienced in those communities, such as Salem, that recognize the importance of industry and with a general civic industrial policy of encouragement rather than discouragement of industrial expansion.

Salem is fortunate in having a ample cheap power, good transportation facilities, a substantial labor pool from which to draw workers and the proximity of raw materials. It is therefore, in the opinion of those familiar with Salem's industrial possibilities, that a successful industrial future is as much a matter of expansion as acquisition.

First Citizen to Be Announced Jan. 20

The search for Salem's First Citizen of 1853 has started and the identity of the man or woman who weathers the scrutiny of the committee in charge will be revealed at a public banquet scheduled for the night of January 20 at the Marion hotel.

Because of the mechanics involved, only one member of the committee will know the identity of the No. 1 citizen and this single individual will not be informed of the final decision until a few hours prior to the public announcement. The committee was aided materially in its task of making a decision by nominations made by the general public through the Chamber of Commerce.

W. L. Phillips, named First Citizen, will present the No. 1 person for 1853 at the banquet.

Los Angeles (AP) — Charged with escape and evading arrest on a speeding charge, actor Robert Mitchum has been ordered to appear in court next Tuesday. He obtained a continuous yesterday after his lawyer had posted $250 bail.
