

Engineer Employed to Check Electric Conduits

An electrical engineer from Portland was scheduled to check installation of electrical conduits at the new South Salem high school Wednesday, according to a report made to the school board Tuesday night by Palmer Hewlett, member of the architectural firm which designed the building.

The action of the architects followed a partial collapse of exposed conduits Monday night which caused a fire that did little damage to the building proper.

Hewlett exhibited a small metal clip, similar to those that were embedded in concrete at the school and the cracking of which were primarily responsible for the collapse of the conduits. He said it was the first instance of this nature that his firm had ever encountered.

The sub-contractor will be responsible for the loss, which is expected to be in the neighborhood of $5000. Precautions will be taken to strengthen all conduit anchoring devices.

Following a tour of the district's buildings in the southern area, Supt. Snyder reported to the board that better lighting was needed at Halls Ferry. During the summer, a stage will be removed to provide more classroom space and a small addition will be constructed for storage purposes.

Snyder found considerable water flowing over the Rose-dale grounds and steps will be taken to eliminate this.

Two quonset huts will be removed from North high school grounds to provide bicycle sheds at Hoover. An old bike shed at the high school will be torn down and the space devoted to automobile parking.

Plans and specifications for the revamping of the stage curtains and grid at Leslie junior high will be submitted at the next meeting. The Leslie auditorium will be used by South Salem high school pupils. The cost is estimated at $7500.

Supt. Snyder said the services of an architect would be needed in connection with the readjustment of certain classroom space at Leslie. It is hoped the rearrangement will result in providing two wood working shops, two rooms for cookery and two for sewing.

The clerk was authorized to ask for bids for basketball goals for use at South Salem high at an estimated cost of $10,000.

Supt. Snyder reported that the Morningside elementary school will be ready for use Jan. 4, immediately after the Christmas vacation.

Having completed their probationary work, Mrs. Emelyn Branson, Mrs. Genevieve Wegner and Mrs. Pearl Salter, all teachers, were advanced to tenure.

The Rev. Brenden Shea, OSB, was carrier of the Metropolitan Cross; assistant deacons were the Rev. Anthony Terhaar, OSB, and Rev. Barnabas Reasoner, OSB, and the Rev. Thomas Brockhaus, OSB, and Rev. Richard Galvin, OSB were the masters of ceremonies.

Albany — A Linn county circuit court jury, after deliberation but a half an hour, returned a verdict of guilty against Basil Francis Carlton, Salem, charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor. Carlton was immediately sentenced to three years in the Oregon state penitentiary.

Carlton's attorney had asked for leniency but Judge Victor Olliver pronounced sentence without parole after Carlton had waived time for sentencing. He was taken to the state prison at Salem Tuesday by Sheriff George Miller.

Carlton was found guilty of molesting the child, who had been left by her parents in their car the night of August 7 while they tarried at Melody Lane, east of Lebanon on U. S. highway No. 26.

The child identified Carlton as her molester, and picked him out of the crowd in the night club building later, according to state witnesses. She also identified him from the witness stand.

Fingerprints from broken glass of the car window were also offered in evidence. Carlton was charged with having broken the car window to open the door that he might gain access to the girl.
