

FUTURE TREES

Oregon State Forester George Spaur (left) is presented a bag of about 20 pounds of Douglas fir seeds by the president of the Izaak Walton League in Oregon, L. C. Binford (right). The presentation was made at the IWL's 31st annual convention. The seeds purchased by the Izaak Walton League will be planted in the Oregon Forest nursery.

Waltons Give Fir Tree Seeds

Many Douglas fir trees will be growing in Oregon in the next few years because of the Izaak Walton League members in Oregon.

Some 20 pounds of the seeds, which have been difficult to secure the past few years, were presented the Oregon state forestry department at the league's 31st annual convention in Eugene last week. The president of the IWL, L. C. Binford, made the presentation to State Forester George Spaur, who was at the convention to participate in a panel discussion.

Collected in the Mt. Hood area, the seeds were purchased by the Izaak Walton League as part of the organization's conservation program.

The seeds will be planted in the Oregon forest nursery at Corvallis and after they have reached a size for replanting part of them will be returned to the Izaak Walton League, which will pay for the cost of growing the trees.

The IWL then will plant the small trees in their various reforestation projects. The remainder of the trees will be given to the state forestry department to plant in denuded land. Replanting of the trees is by hand. Each pound of Douglas fir seed contains from 40 to 42,000 seeds. The Oregon forestry nursery estimates that from 60 to 85 per cent of Douglas fir seed germinates and becomes trees of the future.

Lebanon Jaycees To Name Citizen

Lebanon—The joint meeting of junior and senior chambers of commerce will be held in the IOOF hall with a dinner on Monday, Jan. 11, reports Wendell Gronso, chairman of the senior chamber forum committee.

The meeting will include installation of officers for both clubs, and award of the junior first citizen of 1953 by the junior chamber.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little PASTERETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plate. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get PASTERETH at any drug counter.
