'53 Nobel Peace

French Ambassador Louis de Monicault was present to accept the 1952 peace prize on behalf of Dr. Albert Schweitzer, famed African jungle doctor, humanitarian, philosopher and musical authority.

When things quieted down, Jahn calmly continued his speech and handed the Nobel scroll and gold medal, both encased in gold-stamped green leather to Marshall.

Loud Applause

As Marshall accepted the prize, the audience rose and applauded loudly for several minutes. Face tense, and giving his words extra emphasis, Marshall briefly voiced his gratitude for the honor shown him saying:

"I accept this honor with profound gratitude, not so much for myself as particularly on behalf of the American people, who made it possible to realize the European recovery program."

The communist leaflets described Marshall as "the man who decisively contributed to the atomic death of 100,000 people in Hiroshima and Nagasaki," and who "contributed to the division of the world in two hostile blocks by launching his Marshall plan and the Atlantic pact."

"Therefore, any 24-hour reaction by Soviet officials or by Soviet propaganda media cannot be accepted as anything more than a stop-gap, interim statement."

"We are still very hopeful that the Soviet leaders will recognize the President's proposal for what it is—a serious and feasible first step toward atomic peace."

In reply to questions, Hagerly said that while the statement was issued in his name, it represented the official attitude of the government.

Meanwhile, it was learned the State Department has instructed all American envoys abroad including Charles E. Bohlen in Russia to call the attention of foreign offices to the President's address, made to the United Nations.

The actual text of the President's speech has been sent by wireless, it was reported, to top American diplomats in 62 foreign countries with this view in mind.

aminations, Carl, Kenneth and Alvin Dunn of Oildale and Robert Reinhard of Seattle; and a sister, Lulu Young of Wabeno, Wis.

perience and training rating will be invited to Oregon for the oral interviews. Transportation expenses within the United States will be paid to those invited to participate in the oral interviews.

Once this is done, the report said, the Labor Department should take over most duties of the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) and the Federal independent agencies.

The report also repeats with emphasis some of the "hot potato" recommendations which Congress has voted down or has not yet acted on.

These include merger, in the Interior Department, of the Reclamation Service and the civil functions of the Army Corps of Engineers; the transfer of land management from the Interior Department to the Agriculture Department, and a wholesale shakeup of the Veterans Administration.

The survey was made public by J. Robert L. Johnson, president of Temple University, Philadelphia, and for a while in the Eisenhower administration as head of the State Department's Voice of America and other overseas information outlets.

Johnson said the survey was intended as a "bridge" of research between the first Hoover Commission and the new reorganization commission also headed by former President Hoover.
