

SANTA and the FLYING PUP

By LUCRECE HUGGINS BEALE

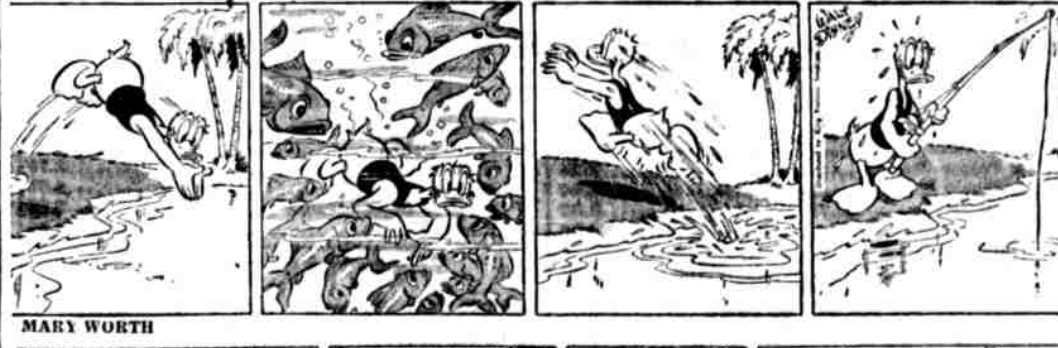

The wings were two giant kites fastened on a harness. While Willie the pup learning his way around Santa Land, Henrietta was still looking for him every day back home. She missed Willie so much her father, uncles, aunts and grandpa worked overtime to make extra money to buy her a new dog. The new dog didn't make Henrietta happy. She still wanted Willie.

CHAPTER 9
WINGS FOR WILLIE
While Henrietta wept for her pup, Willie himself capered madly around in the snow behind the stables in Santa Land. Presently Mr. Not Much and Mr. Very Little appeared. They were sitting on a child's ski and pushing themselves across the snow by shoving on pencils which they used as ski poles. They were so tiny, this was the only way they could travel in the snow without sinking over their heads. "Whatever are you doing?" they called to Willie. "I'm learning to fly," replied Willie happily. "I'm going to fly like the deer." The Dreamlins looked up and for the first time they saw Santa's eight reindeer swooping gracefully above the stables. Then the Dreamlins looked down at Willie throwing himself wildly from one snow bank to another and imagining that he truly was learning to fly. "Oh, come now!" exclaimed Mr. Not Much. "You need wings to fly."
