WE GAZE INTO OUR CRYSTAL BALL

It's a crisp winter day in December, of the year 200 A.M. (After McCarthy). Mr. Robespierre Crawford, great, great, great, great grandson of Lee Crawford, decides to do a bit of duck shooting. He has inherited a duck pond in the Turner flats—a pond that has been in the family for better than two centuries.

Robespierre gets up from his swivel chair behind his desk in the Livesley Cavern (there are no more buildings in Salem—everything is underground) and enters his special Duck Shooting Room. Flipping a switch, he turns on the TELE-AUDIO set, and before him is a five foot screen filled with the image of the duck pond. Adjusting the Birdar (duck radar) receiver, he begins scanning the sky for the tell-tale pips on the small searching screen that will indicate ducks in flight.

Ducks Unlimited, the ancient duck propagating organization, has given way to Ducks Reactivated, the new group. After the birds are hatched, they are fed a special mixture containing material that allows them to be tracked by Birdar.

Pips on the screen indicate birds in the air nearby. Immediately, Crawford throws a switch, and out on the pond fifty loud-speakers, cleverly concealed, began to issue forth recorded duck calls. Simultaneously, the Electro-Duck Deucos leave their underground hangers and fly to meet the oncoming birds. They also emit seductive quacks and chuckles.

INHALE CONFIDENCE GAS

Now they are making contact with the wild mallards, and are leading them over the pond. The flight becomes visible on Robespierre's TELE-AUDIO screen. Quickly, he punches a button and the decoys disappear into the umpteenth dimension. The wild mallards are not alarmed, however, as they have inhaled Confidence Gas that has been emitted from the pond.

They circle happily, as Crawford sets his Automatic Range Finder on the two biggest drakes. They swing in over the pond, and Robespierre, holding his breath in excitement, punches the button marked "shoot". Two invisible beams of the Winchester Paralysis gun, a standard full-choke model, cut through the air and the ducks tumble from the flight.

Immediately, Crawford's Labromatic Retriever leaps into the air, and catches the birds as they fall. There is a whirring, metallic sound, and feathers fly from the rear of the Lab. The robot flies to Salem in a split second, and, entering through a secret compartment, delivers two mallard drakes, cleaned and dressed, packaged in cellophane, to Crawford's deep-freeze.

With a sigh, Crawford leaves the special Duck Shooting Room and returns to his desk. "Good hunting, sir?" asks his secretary. "Yes," replies Robespierre, "I got my limit. I only wish Quadruple-Great Grandfather Lee could be here to see how we've improved the pond."

IKES SLATE WILD FOWL MOVIE

If you're duck hunting has been poor, you'll at least have an opportunity to see some birds tomorrow night at the IWLA clubhouse. "Out Of The North," a topflight movie will be shown. Public is invited, of course. Drop by around 8 . . . fishing prospects look better on the coast, and we'll have a last minute round-up of steelhead reports in this space Friday.

Viking Wrestlers To Open Tonight At Sweet Home
The Salem high wrestling team, coached by Hank Juran travels to Sweet Home tonight to open its season with the Huskies. The meet, which was scheduled for last night, was moved up to tonight because of state athletic rules.

The Vikings have a good squad with a group of returning lettermen back, but they have lost their best wrestlers in Bob Engle, George Meyers, and Fred Stepper. Juran and assistant coach Al Gray have been holding workouts for several weeks.

Monitor Graders Host St. Luke's
Monitor — The Monitor grade school basketball team will play St. Luke's of Woodburn at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Monitor gymnasium.

This will be the third game for Monitor, who has beaten Gervais and Butte Creek schools. The grade schoolers play six-minute quarters.

Total Tally Is 82 to 64 For Victors

By DAVE BARROWS

The North defeated the South, 82-64, last night in the annual Capitol League Jamboree at the Salem High Gym. The Northwesterners got off to a good start as Sacred Heart downed Cascade High, 27-17. Sacred Heart was paced by last year's all-conference guard, Vince Matt, who dropped 7 points through the hoop. Cascade was never quite in the game as the Sacred Hearters handled the ball well and had a high percentage from the floor.

Sacred Heart jumped to an early 6-1 lead and then just kept pushing them through a little faster than the Cascaders. Crusaders Lead Early

In the second game, Salem Academy kept the Northern cause alive as they dumped Philomath, 25-13.

The Salemers led 13-0 before Philomath was able to score a free-throw. They added another before the period ended, while the Academy was adding three.

Not having scored a bucket in the first quarter, Philomath opened the second period with a field goal and a free-throw by Dave Vincent. But the combined strength of Harold Allister, who was high man with 11, Ken Schreder, who tanked 6, and Dave Phillips proved to be too much for Philomath.

The final contest proved to be the most thrilling as Central High dropped Stayton, 34-30 in a hard fought battle that saw the lead change several times.

Stayton Substitutes

Stayton dominated the first period, leading 16-8 as the second quarter began. Central got hot and in short time had cut Stayton's lead to 19-17. It was at this point that the entire first team of Stayton's was pulled out and Central went on to win.

Marc Nelson led the scoring with 10 markers for the winning cause, while Wayne Minton paced the losers with 9.

Central was the high individual team with 34 points. Salem Academy's Allister led the scorers for the evening with 11.

The teams now return to their regular schedules with quite a few games being on the slate for this week. Tonight Sacred Heart travels to Mt. Angel. Salem Academy hosts Waldport and Central plays Sheridan on Central's floor. Cascade also plays host to North Marion.

Friday Cascade goes to Wy'east. Saturday, Silverton is at Sacred Heart, Stayton is at Sheridan and Central travels to Dayton.

Up and In Jim Borsberry (No. 5), 5-foot 9 guard for Sacred Heart, drives around Neal Kinion, Cascade center (No. 23), for a lay-in and two points in the Capitol league jamboree last night. Sacred Heart won 27-17. At left are Gene Winkle (No. 14), Cascade guard, and Vince Matt, Cardinal forward.

Bearcats Stressing Ball Handling for Chico Series

The Willamette Bearcats are practicing to speed up their offense and stressing ball handling this week as the Wednesday and Thursday series with Chico State nears.

Coach John Lewis said that he would like to see more aggressive tactics on the part of his guards to keep the opposition off balance.

A tendency Lewis would like to see eliminated is that of waiting until the opposition is far ahead before settling down to serious point making. Sometimes the lead gets to be too great to overcome, Lewis pointed out, as in the most recent game against College of Puget Sound.

Both Chico contests will start at 8 o'clock. The preliminary Wednesday will match Jerry Frey's Bearkittens against Associated Plywood of Sheridan. Thursday night, Dallas high school will play the Willamette frosh.

Spartans Keyed Up To 'Ruin the Bruins'

East Lansing, Mich. (AP) — Michigan State's sparkling Spartans, with a vow to "ruin the Bruins" were ready today to lead a noisy invasion of followers into the Rose Bowl against UCLA, the pride of the coast.

Biggie Munn's 44-man squad will fly to Pasadena tomorrow and they are keyed so high they could almost go without benefit of airplane.

"We're going to be at our best for this game," chirped Biggie. "We aren't going to travel all that way just to lose a football game."

Dallas-Stayton Game Postponed; Gym Not Done

Dallas — The Dallas-Stayton basketball game scheduled for tonight in the new Dallas gymnasium has been postponed until Saturday, Jan. 30, Coach Gordon Kunkle said Monday.

Kunkle explained that the backboards and baskets have not arrived and the painting of lines on the floor has not been completed. It should be ready next week.

That means, Kunkle added, that the Thursday night game with Willamette freshmen will be moved from Dallas to Salem as preliminary to the Chico State-Willamette game.

First game in the Dallas gym will be Dec. 29 against Tillamook.
