Synopsis: The secret of flying. Santa tells Willie the pupines in being able to de an unselfish deed. So Willie takes benes, carrot tops and fruit skims from Santa's garbage can and puts them in front of Patrick Tweedleknees' doorway instead of eating them himself. That, thinks Willie, is truly an unselfish deed.

CHAPTER 12
THE DRAGONS

Patrick Tweedleknees was in a rage.

"This — this dog!" he acreamed to Santa. "This dog has put garbage all over my front porch."

Santa was disturbed. He said "Willie, why would you do such a thing to Patrick Tweedleknees?"

"I did it so that I could fly "said Willie eagerly. "Watch!" He gave a running leap into the air but instead of scaring away he shoped back to earth with a whack.

"I don't understand," Whimpered Willie. "I gave all that attiff away and never kept a taste for myself. That was a great and unselfish deed. Why can't I fly?"

Santa couldn't help laughing. "Tweedleknees doesn't want the garbage, Willie. You didn't do anything for him."

"I abould say not!" chimed in Tweedleknees doesn't want the garbage, Willie. You didn't do anything for him."

"I abould say not!" chimed in Tweedleknees, "And you'll please clean away that mess at once."

Poor Willie. He was left in disgrace to clean up Tweedleknees, "And you'll please clean away that mess at once."

But of all the gleaming anakes lined up on the tracks, only one was alive.

It was going round and round a small circle of track, puffing smoke from its nose, rattling its sides, and throwing off sparks from its feet.

Willie's eyes rolled with fright. Nevertheless he leaped toward the fearful creature.

He landed in the center of the ring of tracks—directly on top of the main switch box of the Train Shoo. Alast instead of halting one snake Willie had brought all the others to life!

He gazed in astonishment at the furor he had created. Hundreds of dragons hurled themselves round and round the shop covering Willie with sparks, blinding him with smoke, deafering him with smoke, deafering him with whatles and the ratting of tracks.

Desperately Willie pushed and pulled at the switches but the uproar only worsened.

"The whole of Santa Land will be destroyed!" thought Willie in a panic.

At this moment he noticed a draw bridge on the tracks, Quickly he raised the bridge with his mouth and jumped out of the way.

The first snake tore down the mouth and jumped out of the way.

The first snake tore down the track, leaped into the open space and crashed to the floor. The second snake followed. And the third.

In no time st all every single dragon lay crumpled and silent on the floor.

Santa Land has been saved by Willie the pup.
