

Pike Found in Cowlitz River

PORTLAND (AP) — The Oregon Game Commission expressed some alarm Monday over a fish caught over the weekend in the Cowlitz River of Washington. Biologists identified the fish as a northern pike.

It is the first of that voracious fish ever reported in the lower Columbia River watershed.

"Of all the fish that might be introduced, this engine of destruction is the worst," said Dr. John Rayner, who heads the commission's fishery division.

The pike is native in the Great Lakes area and waters north of that. They grow fast, reaching 36 inches in length and sometimes weighing 25 to 30 pounds. A voracious eater, the pike has been compared with the barracuda in fierceness.

Rayner expressed fear over what the pike might do to the native salmon and trout population, if the pike becomes established.

He said this pike obviously was planted in the Cowlitz, since the pike lives only in fresh water and could not have made the voyage by the ocean. It was caught near Kelso, and brought to the commission by a fisherman who suspected planted at the same time.

Rayner said the only question

Protest Bids By Canadians

Washington (UP) — Four republican congressmen from Washington state today protested a Foreign Operations Administration decision to allow Canadian mills to bid on an order for 10 million board feet of lumber.

The FOA is buying the lumber for shipment to Formosa. The congressman said Canadian mills, if allowed to bid, will get the entire order because of lower timber, labor, shipping and tax costs.

The protest was made by Reps. Russell V. Mack, Thor C. Tollefson, Thomas M. Pelly and Jack Westland.

"One reason American tax costs are higher," Mack said, "is that American industries and workers are taxed to provide funds for these foreign aid programs, whereas Canada which provides none of the funds apparently is to get a lion's share of the business."

He said the order should be given to American mills to relieve unemployment in the lumber industry and thereby "lessen unemployment insurance costs for the government."

Some 6000 lumber workers in Washington and 6400 in Oregon have become unemployed in the last year, Mack said.

Junior Class Will Sponsor Movie Show

The Salem High School Junior class will sponsor a full-length movie Wednesday for the student body.

The movie, "Winning Team," will help the class build up its treasury. Each year the classes and several other Salem High organizations sponsor movies with a 20-cent admission.

Also planned by the class are a rally dinner before the Eugene basketball game February 19, an after-game dance this month, and another after-game dance in February.

Kay Ruberg, class vice president is in charge of the dances.

Glenn McArthur to Start Oil Comeback

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Texas oilman Glenn McArthur was due today in Bolivia, where he expects to start his comeback with an oil discovery on a 970,000-acre concession granted by the South American country.

McArthur left here yesterday morning by plane with George Underwood, geologist for Glenn McArthur, Inc., to supervise drilling of his first Bolivian wildcat.

Third City Judge In Portland Office

PORTLAND (AP) — Portland's third municipal judge took office Monday. The position was added recently when the number of cases became too much for two judges to handle. Most of them are traffic cases.

The new judge is Philip Michael Bagley. He appeared fully recovered from a recent collapse from overwork.

Mrs. Oswald Lord To Talk in Portland

PORTLAND (AP) — Mrs. Oswald Lord, the U. S. Delegate to the United Nations Commission on Human Rights, has scheduled two talks in Portland Jan. 21.

She will speak at a luncheon meeting sponsored by the World Affairs Council of Oregon. A dinner meeting that evening also is being arranged.
