13 New Tree Farms Okayed

Thirteen new West Coast tree farms totaling 10,440 acres were certified Friday afternoon in Portland by the Industrial Forestry Association board of directors. Six of the private forest properties are in Oregon and seven in Washington.

Four additions to existing West Coast tree farms, adding up to 3,717 acres, were certified, bringing 16,157 acres of forest lands under the private taxpaying program.

There are now 203 tree farms in the Douglas fir region of western Oregon and Washington, with a total of 4,296,833 acres. Of this total 129 are in Washington and 74 in Oregon. Oregon now has 1,685,228 acres.

New Oregon tree farms are scattered in six counties. The owners and their locations are: Sams and Stella McCauley, Coos county; Timber Products company of Oregon, Linn county; Stokes Lumber Company, Lincoln county; John R. and Norma Thompson, Benton county; Bruce MacGregor Hall, Washington county; and Marcus P. Heckman's Enchanted Forest Christmas Tree Farm, in Columbia county.

30 Families

At that time the Red Cross paid for moving houses and new foundations in cases where families could not stand the costs. The city of Astoria is offering the same arrangements it made then: to trade city-owned lots for deeds for evacuated slide land, which it condemned.

It was believed that 21 of the 22 buildings affected by the slide can be salvaged by moving. The other will be abandoned.

$700,000 Spent Since '48
Wesselus estimated that the Red Cross had spent $100,000 since 1949 to aid Astoria slide victims.

Meantime the city's business district continued to slip despite the fact there had been no rain since Thursday evening. An eight-inch water main broke Saturday morning, further soaking the soft earth.

Two of the families moving Saturday lived in the center of the slide area. The other two lived on Bond Street, on the fringe of the area, from which one family moved Friday.

Houses Split Apart
One of three houses which had been abandoned in a previous slide on the hill came apart Saturday when it was moved to clear the way for salvage operations.
A moving company aided by a city bulldozer continued to crib up houses to keep them level preparatory to moving them.

No Comic Section this Week Or Next, Then Four Colors

The Capital Journal has no Saturday comic section and will have none next week, but beginning Saturday, Jan. 23, it will have a four color section, the finest it has ever offered its readers.

The Goss press upon which the Capital Journal is now printed cannot print such a section without additional installation which could not be made within the next two weeks and will not be needed now that a contract has been entered into to print the section on the large color presses of the Arnie Color Printing Co. of San Bernardino, Calif.

It had been planned to publish the sections locally today and next Saturday until the mechanical difficulty became known to the Capital Journal management.

Dismantling

ters will be before the council Monday night.

Of most importance will be the presentation of petitions from business and professional men headed by A. R. Mefford striking at the one-way grid which they demand be abolished. A letter to the council will ask that the city refrain from further expenditures on the grid until public opinion is more fully determined. Petitions are signed by about 800 persons.

Other measures involving the grid include:
Resolution to be introduced by Mayor Loucks providing for overhead illuminated one-way market signs at intersections of Church and Chemeketa, Church and Court, Church and State, and Court and Cottage.

Resolution to reserve the north traffic lane on Marion east of Capitol for vehicles making a right turn, by Mayor Loucks.

Reserving lane nearest curb for vehicles making left or right turn as the case may be on one-way streets having four traffic lanes, by Mayor Loucks.

Ordinance bill for final action introduced by City Manager J. L. Franzen at request of traffic safety council to include Ferry street from Cottage to Winter in grid system.

Recommendation from mayor that Church and Cottage between Ferry and Trade be made two-way blocks.

Other traffic measures include:
Resolution to prohibit parking on the east side of Broadway from Columbia north to the city limits.

Resolution to establish a one-hour parking meter zone on the west side of Winter adjacent to the public library.

Resolution establishing one-hour parking meter zones four spaces on north side of Chemeketa east of Winter and two spaces on east side of Winter north of Chemeketa so as to restrain all-day parking around First Presbyterian church.

One of the important measures will be a resolution making North 17th street from State to Market a through street and providing for car parking on one side of the street only. It will prohibit parking on the east side of 17th street, on the west side of 17th between A and Center, on the west side between Center and Mill, and on the east side between Mill and State.

Among ordinance bills up for third reading will be the bill providing that ties in city elections, either primary or fall election, shall be decided by lot.

Anderson Chairman Of Religious Week

Charles Anderson, Willamette University sophomore from Salem, has been named chairman of the annual religious observance week on the campus, February 23-26. The appointment was made by the Interfaith Council.

Tentatively termed Christian Resource week, the religious activities will be observed in "various settings," according to Anderson. The Methodist, Presbyterian and Congregational churches in Waller hall and the music recital hall will house the meetings.

Fire Destroys Liberty Home

LIBERTY—Fire of undetermined origin completely destroyed the Albert George residence at 4685 Jones road, early Saturday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. George and Mrs. George's mother had left the house at 6 p.m. Friday, to visit relatives at Yamhill and a son Jerry, was in eastern Oregon, leaving the property tenantless for a long time.

A large dog owned by the Georges is believed to have been burned. He had access to the story and a half dwelling and was not found early Saturday.

The building was owned by Dr. Belle Redrick of Vancouver, Wash. It had recently been completely redecorated inside.

The Liberty-Salem Heights fire department that responded to an alarm at 2:45 a.m. found the building almost completely engulfed in flames. At 6 a.m., a second alarm was turned in when it was discovered the woodshed was on fire. Paint cans stored in the shed might have caused this fire.
