Oregon Hops at All Time Low, Will Slip in 1954

(By United Press)

What has happened to Oregon's hop industry? Is it doomed to extinction, or can its slow death be halted and new life instilled to bring the state once again to the forefront as the nation's leading producer of hops?

These are questions facing Oregon's hop growers as they go into 1954.

One thing is certain. Oregon's one thing is certain. Oregon is limited to an all-time low and indications are that still fewer acres will be plant-bring the state once again to the forefront as the nation's leading producer of hops?

The Middle Grove home extension meeting was held Thursday in the home of Mrs. Wilbur Wilson. This was the special Hawaiian meeting for this unit. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson lived on the islands for several years, Mrs. Wilson working in the offices of a mission board. She served for luncheon Hawaiian dishes like poi, salt fish, salted ecocanut, poi, salt fish, salted cocoanut, laulau and papaya shubert. Food was served on her dinner set of Hawaiian woods and eaten with the fingers.

Her special guest was a friend who has recently moved to Sa-lem from the islands, Mrs. D. C. Brandon. They discussed customs of the people, in general and Mrs. Wilson wore a costume worn when living there and the

The project for the day was simple home repairs with leaders Mrs. Harry Phillips and Mrs. Ernest Crum. Guests were Mrs. Lee Dow, Mrs. Sam Meyr, Mrs. John Schafer, Mrs. Cecil Reynolds, Mrs. Loyd Roblin, Mrs. William Kleen and Mrs. Brandon. John Van Laanen, who has been in Salem General hospital for the past two weeks, returned to his home Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Schardein who have been active in Middle Grove community are moving to Hillsboro.

Donald Bassett and Erwin Stahl, two men in service, have returned to bases after their holiday vacations at home.

The 1953 acreage was about half the 1952 planting and fell considerably below the high of 14,900 acres for the last five years planted in 1951. Total production was 6,900,000 pounds last year, compared to 18,800,000 pounds in 1951.

The value of the 1953 crop was $3,159,000, compared to $5,932,000 the previous year and $8,300,000 in 1951.

Why is Oregon's hop industry in such a sorry state?

It isn't because the nation is consuming less beer, into which most of the hops go. The Brewers Institute of Oregon says figures show that 1.3 per cent more beer was produced in the first 11 months of 1953 than during a similar period of 1952.

Marion Thomas, extension agricultural economist at Oregon State College, attributes part of the slump to over-production in years when prices were high. The export trade is holding up. There are no figures for 1953 but in 1952 exports were some two million pounds more than in 1951. But huge surpluses have been built up and the domestic and foreign markets are drawing on these stores for their hops, thus driving the price down and lessening the demand for new hops.
