Eight Killed in Bomber Crash

HONOLULU (AP) — A Navy P2V Neptune patrol bomber with eight men aboard crashed in flames on a cloud-covered mountainside Thursday night and rescue teams found no survivors, the Navy said Friday.

The plane, part of a Japan-based squadron returning from patrol duty in the western Pacific, was en route from Kwajalein in the Marshall Islands when it got off its course for Barbers Point Naval Air Station, a few miles south of the crash.

It had been cleared for a landing at Barbers Point when it smacked into a peak of the Waianae range about five miles northwest of Pearl Harbor, the Navy said.

A six-man army rescue team reached the scene about midnight and reported that the fiercely burning wreckage was too hot to approach — but it looked as though there were bodies inside.

A spokesman said the plane apparently hit the mountain head-on.

Blaze Destroys Home at Airlie

MONMOUTH — The Harvey Eugene Murphy home at Airlie, 11 miles southwest of Monmouth, was burned Thursday and was a total loss.

Only a washing machine and a sewing machine of all the furnishings were saved.

Mrs. Murphy and three children, the latter ill with the flu, escaped through a window without injury. Four other children were in school and Murphy, an employee of the Simpson Lumber company at Kings Valley, was at work.

The fire which was sighted by a neighbor, is believed to have started from an overheated chimney.

Monmouth and Suver rural fire equipment went to the scene but arrived too late to check the blaze.

The children of school age were taken in by neighbors and the others are with relatives at Independence.

The Dallas Red Cross is assisting Airlie folk in providing relief for the Murphy family.

The big plane is the first Comet II to come of the De Havilland assembly line. An earlier model, the Comet I, has been grounded pending investigation of a crash that killed 35 persons two weeks ago, the fourth Comet crash in 15 months.
