Barbs Hurlled

Obviously irked at Attorney General Robert V. Thornton's opinion holding the Board of Control to lack power to purchase property on which the new intermediate institution is to be situated, members of the board instructed its newly appointed legislative counsel, Sam Haley, to investigate the opinion, the law and write an opinion for the board regarding the possibility of challenging the attorney general's opinion in the State Supreme Court.

"We are certainly not bound by the attorney general's opinion," declared Rep. Root. "There is no doubt as to the Legislature's intention in making an appropriation for $1,500,000 for planning and constructing an intermediate institution in Marion County."

Five of the seven members of the Emergency Board were at the joint ways and means committee, and all five participated in long discussions on the proposed intermediate institution.

Sen. Howard Belton said Friday that at first the ways and means committee felt that the new institution, designed for young offenders from both the state prison and MacLaren School for Boys, could be built on state-owned property, Haley to decide.

"But we found that the state owned no suitable property located any distance from the penitentiary or MacLaren school and we learned from authorities that it was poor policy to have an intermediate institution located in close proximity to the prison or the school."

The only question unsettled—and this was raised by Sen. Eugene E. Marsh, chairman—was whether the emergency board was authorized to apply to the Supreme Court for the declaratory judgment. This and other related questions will be studied by Legislative Counsel Haley.

The board approved an allocation of $13,428.82 to the Board of Parole and Probation to cover cost of paying for mileage on private cars and rental of cars from the state car pool, which is expected to be established late this year, upon completion of the car pool garage on South 12th street, in Salem.

An attorney general's opinion holding that all state cars, without exception, must have state seals on the side of automobiles operated for state business, brought about the request and action by the board.

H. M. Randall, state director of parole and probation department, said that work of the department would be seriously handicapped if state seals were required on cars operated by that department.

Architect Employed
A total of $5,000 was approved out of a $250,000 appropriation for the proposed domiciliary hospital in the Portland area, for employment of Glenn Stanton, Portland architect, to make studies and estimates of cost of the institution.

The legislature referred a measure to the people to be voted on at the November election providing that the hospital in the Portland area be a general mental hospital, on the grounds that such a hospital could be operated more economically than a hospital devoted entirely to aged patients.

Stanton told the board that the work he proposed to do would be lost to the state, but would provide the 1953 legislature with more accurate information on the costs of the institution, regardless of how

Drive Dated For Members

A meeting of 253 teams of Farm Bureau members in eight Willamette Valley counties will be participating in a mass membership drive on January 26, Cliff Wright, director of organization for the Oregon Farm Bureau Federation, announced.

"We are going to put on a membership campaign to invite every farmer and rancher in these eight counties to join our organization," Wright said.

"We are not only interested in getting new members, but we are also interested in better acquainting the farmers of the Willamette Valley with the importance of a prosperous agriculture and the efforts of the Farm Bureau to improve these conditions."

The membership goal of the Oregon Farm Bureau Federation for 1954 is 7501 farm families. Last year the federation had a membership of 6160 families in 29 counties. Nationally the American Farm Bureau had a membership of 1,591,777 farm families in the 48 states and the Island of Puerto Rico.

Leaders in the membership drive for the various counties are:

Benton County, Eddie Ivers, Albany; Clackamas, Walter Hardy, Molalla; Linn, Gerald Detering, Harrisburg; Lane, Kenneth La Fon, Fall Creek; Polk, Don Bisbee, Independence; Marion, Clarence Zielski, Salem; Washington, Alfred Delancey, Cornelius; Yamhill, Wally Johnson, Yamhill.

Pro-Ped POW

come home. "Their pay is going to be cut off very shortly," he said.

Pentagon officials said that only the Reds' refusal to take back the 21 had given them a few hours or days of grace before "undesirable" discharges become effective.

Cpl. Edward S. Dickenson, a 23-year-old Cracker's Neck, Va., soldier who originally stayed with the Reds but later changed his mind was arrested in Washington and accused of "intercourse with the enemy" to get "favorable treatment." The court-martial charges were filed Friday.

The Far East Command said in Tokyo it has no knowledge of whether similar action would be taken against Cpl. Claude J. Batchelor, a second American who renounced the Communists and is now in Tokyo.

Indian Lt. Gen. K. S. Thimayya conferred at Red headquarters Saturday with Communist Generals Lee Sang Cho and Ping Kuo Yu, on his suggestion that the Reds accept custody of the 347 POWs under protest.

Situation Unchanged
"The situation remains the same," he reported. "Nothing short of continued custody by the Indian Command would satisfy them. They made it quite strong."

He said, however, the Red generals crossed personnel into the camp to care for the men, which he agreed to provided it is in accord with the armistice. Thimayya said no further meetings were scheduled with the Reds.

Although Thimayya said he no longer has control over the 347 pro-Red soldiers, he disclosed that a token guard of 20 Indians was left behind to "ensure law and order."

Seek Switch to Tea From Costly Coffee

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UP)—Thousands of signs appeared on restaurant tables in Rhode Island today urging patrons to switch from high priced coffee to tea.

"We've got to stop the coffee price spiral now," said Executive Secretary Walter W. Fortner of the Rhode Island Restaurant Association. "If we can get people voluntarily to stop drinking coffee for a while we can drive the wholesale price back down. Otherwise restaurants will have to raise the price themselves."

Although Thimayya said he no longer has control over the 347 pro-Red soldiers, he disclosed that a token guard of 20 Indians was left behind to "ensure law and order."

Many Ideas, No Decision In Meter Feeding Meet

By VIC FRYER
Lots of ideas but no definite solution came out of a meeting of city authorities and merchants Wednesday afternoon trying to solve the parking meter "feeding" problem in downtown Salem without hitting customers who need more than an hour to shop.

Ideas ranged from giving police a list of license number of merchants, professional men and employees so that their cars could be tagged for meter feeding to letting stores validate the "feeding" tickets for customers while the downtown personnel care for their own tickets if they continued to use parking meter stalls as private garages.

After each proffered solution was discarded after finding serious faults an agreement was reached for police to tag only "known" meter feeders until next Wednesday to allow merchants to discuss the problem and advance some new proposals at another meeting.

President Dick Schlupp and about 20 members of the Downtown Merchants association were present to meet with Mayor Al Loucks, City Manager J. L. Franzen, Police Chief Clyde Warren, Police Captain Glenn Bowman and Officer Marion Brown in the city council chambers.

The merchants are behind the city's drive to stop meter feeding and leave more parking spots for customers, Schlupp said, but feared that it might drive more customers away from town than it helped. He agreed with Mayor Loucks' opinion that a merchant must be "nuts" to take up a parking spot in front of his store that would otherwise be open to several customers a day.

A proposal by Mayor Loucks that in heavy business areas the meters be changed to two-hour meters but that rates be increased to a nickel for a half-hour prior instead of an hour met with mixed approval and disapproval from the merchants.

Schlupp said the merchants would discuss the problem and meet with the city again next Wednesday to advance any possible solutions. Meanwhile Mayor Loucks directed city police to tag cars that they recognized as regular meter stall holders.
