Associated Press Sports Writer The tallest man in basketball, Oregon State's Wade Halbrook, also was high man on the scoring totem this week in the Northwest collegiate tally derby after pick-ing up 62 points in a pair of games against Idaho.

The barrelful of backels ran his total to 382 counters in 16 games and jumped him into first place around Gonzaga's Jerry Vermil-lion and Seattle University's Joe Pehanick. Chief Joe regained ground in games this Monday and Tuesday against Oklahoma City U, but the weekly scoring figures are calculated on games through the previous Saturday. Pehanick did ease into second with 370 points and Vermillion, dide last week, sagged to fourth but retained the edge in per-game average. His 24.8 tallies per tilt topped Halbrook by ninctents of a point. In third place on a total-point basis is Jackie May of St. The barrelful of backets ran his
