Reapportion

maintains, does not expressly repeal sections of the constitution which provide the limitation of power.

The case is directed against Secretary of State Earl T. Newberry and Attorney General Robert Y. Thornton. After the plaintiff's briefs have been filed, the defendants have 20 days in which to file a reply brief.

Because many prospective candidates for the legislature cannot file until the reapportionment question has been passed upon by the supreme court, inasmuch as many districts are either increased or decreased, and the final date for filing by candidates is March 12, speed is of the essence.

The attorneys filed a motion for advancing the hearing of arguments and asked that such hearings be held on February 25.

Members of the court must then consider the arguments contained in the briefs after which disposition of the case will be made in opinions.

All of this will take time, with the result that the final word from the court on the subject certainly cannot be expected much in advance of the final date of filing.

Dave O'Hara, supervisor of the election department of the secretary of state's office, expects a record breaking filing on March 12, the final day for the candidates to file.

LEGISLATORS DISCUSS THE CHURCH

Four men prominent in the political field of Oregon, who took part in a seminar at the First Christian church Wednesday. They spoke on various phases of "The Church Must Be Concerned." Left to right: Rep. Mark Hatfield, Salem; Senator Richard Neuberger, Portland; Senator Howard Belton, Canby and Senator Phil Hitchcock, Klamath Falls, who was the moderator.

Religion and Molotov Offers

"I do not believe that legislation can control morals or that it is a cure-all," said Belton. "We have gone too far in trying to solve many problems through legislation. It tends to create a feeling of disregard for law. We have made too much of the 'idol of government.'"

Senator Richard Neuberger said all persons, including churchmen, should be interested in what he termed the "tremendous cost of running for office." He asked who "puts up the money" to elect any given candidate? It isn't the man of small means who contributes the bulk of most campaign funds, stated Neuberger. He declared it was the individual or organization that expected something in return for the money involved.

Neuberger said he does not feel that most office seekers want to be hampered with a load of obligations, but declared that once in the race it was difficult to win without financial backing.

"No man has gotten elected to high office in Oregon in recent years unless he had a personal campaign fund of $70,000 and a party fund of not less than $200,000," asserted Senator Neuberger. By high office he included the governorship and U.S. senator.

Race Segregation Mentioned
Rep. Hatfield asked the question "How much do we put our Christian beliefs into actual practice?" as he developed the theme of recognizing the importance of the individual.

While believing that the pulpit should not be turned into a "political forum," Hatfield said political and religious problems should be of interest to all church people.

"We as churchmen cannot condone certain situations in our own organizations while criticizing similar things in the field of politics," he stated. In the connection he spoke of segregation of the races as a matter which the church should not sanction.

Prior to the seminar, Dr. Henry Hitt Crane of Detroit, Mich., talking on the subject: "Can a Nation Be Born Again?" said that the "major dilemma under our present predicament is our fundamental doubt as to the adequacy of God."

Later in his address, Dr. Crane asked: "Do you believe we can fight another world war and get away with it? One would have to be paranoid in the extreme to answer in the affirmative."

Rev. Edwin Bracher, director of the Lutheran Compass Mission, spoke on the subject "The Voice of Faith" at a luncheon meeting early Wednesday afternoon.

The business of the council was taken up during the afternoon. This included the introduction of Rev. Fred Broad, new executive of the Portland council; reports of various committees and the election of officers.

Bishop Lane W. Barton of the diocese of Eastern Oregon conducted a vespers service and at 6:30 officers were to be installed by Dr. G. Henry Green, synodical executive of the Presbyterian church, Dr. Ralph Bridgman of the court of domestic relations, Toledo, Ohio, will address the group. Dr. Bridgman was scheduled to preside over a counseling seminar at 8 p.m.

Thursday's program will include a women's breakfast, arranged by the Salem Council of Church Women at 7:30 a.m.; an address by Dr. Hitt at 9 and a counseling seminar at 10 o'clock with Dr. Bridgman, Dr. Lester Kirkendall of Oregon State college; Dr. George Randolph, chaplain of Emmanuel hospital, Portland, and Rev. Bracher participating.

Another petition against the proposed improvement of Candlewood drive has been received by the court. The petition was signed by Frank and Lucy Parkhurst, Clarence and Celia McCall.

The matter of water spilling over a ditch into the fields along Market Road 9 near Whiskey Hill was referred to the engineering department for investigation.

Religion and Molotov Offers

It was a powerful appeal to Germans weary of foreigners on their soil, however friendly they might be.

Secretary of State Dulles fired back at Molotov that the Russian's attitude against free elections first to unify Germany is perpetuating a dangerous situation. He said the time has come to realize that the continued division of Germany means "very great peril to all of us."

Dulles asked Molotov to rid himself of suspicion of Western motives. He said the West is trying to get at the hub of the problem in such a way that it will benefit both East and West.

He declared a Germany unified by free elections to create a new all-German government would have "a genuine choice" as to its future course in foreign affairs, including membership in the proposed European Defense Community—a Western alliance linked with the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Earle, Molotov attacked EDC and indicated he wanted clarification of various points in a German unity plan laid down last Friday by British Foreign Secretary Eden.

Dulles said he was sure such clarification could readily be provided by the Western powers but added:

"I am afraid that what is really giving Mr. Molotov concern is the fear that the choice which we offer Germany would be exercised in a sense favorable to adhesion to the (European Defense) Community, which apparently the Soviet foreign minister fears, and it is that which is primarily causing him concern."

"There has unfortunately developed among us a deep-rooted suspicion that any result which is sought by the Western powers is automatically something which is undesirable or dangerous toward the Eastern powers and vice versa."

"I hope that that suspicion can to some extent be dispelled and that it could be recognized here that the result which we are seeking is a result which, while it would be beneficial to the Western powers, would be equally beneficial to the Soviet Union."

University of Idaho Alumni Gather Here

Alumni of the University of Idaho, who live in the Salem area, held a luncheon meeting Wednesday noon with Jim Lisle, alumni secretary of the university.

The meeting was the first to be held in Salem by the alumni of that institution, though they have always met in Corvallis or in Eugene when the teams of the Idaho school played either of the state schools. Eight alumni were in attendance at the Wednesday luncheon.

Lisle had been in Eugene to attend the Alumni council meeting there and was en route to Portland when he stopped here.

of atomic weapons. Big talk and bombastic statements are not the way to deal with the situation, the President said, adding that a calm attitude is the better course.

4. Said that if the people of Indochina are determined they want to be free, they probably will be in the long run. If they don't have such determination, the President declared, the outcome of the struggle against Communists there may well go the other way.

5. Put it squarely up to the Senate to decide whether Albert C. Beeson, his controversial choice for a post on the National Labor Relations Board, is qualified for the job. Eisenhower said the administration searched for a good man, believed at the time it was selecting a good man, and that now it's up to the Senate to decide.

Commends Dulles
6. Declared, in reference to the Berlin Big Four conference, that Secretary of State Dulles is doing a good job and has his full confidence. As for Dulles' talks with Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov on the President's atomic pool proposal, Eisenhower said it's still too early to tell how the matter may turn out.

7. Said he has received no detailed report on the case of the Soviet agent who disappeared in Tokyo and doesn't even have any information as to whether the man, Yuri Alexandrovich Rastvorov, is in American custody.

8. Confirmed reports the United States has air technicians in Indochina, as it has, the President added, in many other countries of the world. The units are entirely technical and are not fighting units, he said.

Butter and Coffee
9. Asserted something has to be done about the cost of butter before that commodity prices itself out of the market, but he advanced no specific solution to the problem.

10. Laughed off an attempt to find out how he takes his coffee—whether with cream, sugar or black—but added that he is a great lover of the beverage, as most soldiers are.

He repeated he is most interested in getting the price of coffee reduced.
