Record Year for 312 Lost and Found Timber Sales

PORTLAND (#) — National for-ests in the Pacific Northwest had a record year in 1953. They sold more timber and suffered less fire 316 Personal loss than ever before.

Regional Forester J. Herbert
Stone said the sales totaled 2,455,007,000 board feet, valued at 36 million dollars. This was 438 million feet more than in the previous high of 1952. It was 9t per cent of the allowable cut under the Forest Service's sustained yield plan. With no long dry spells, the fire loss was held to 1.552 acres. That was 50 per cent under the previous low year of 1948. For the first time not a single fire reached 300 acres in size.

Stone said entomologists report-ed that bark beetle infestation decreased. As part of the control program, the Forest Service sold 387 million board feet of timber that had been blown down or been killed by beetles.

More than 1 ½ billion feet remain to be salvaged, but the For-est Service intends to push an accers road program to speed up the

Hot Water Yielded By Coos Bay Well

COOS BAY, UP-Two local well owners today were trying to solve the mystery of the appearance of hot water in their well, where it comes from and why.

The men, Clayton Driscoll and ucien Cuc, dug the well three cars ago and it has been an excellent source of irrigation water and cool drinks, but when Driscoll cleaned it out Sunday learning to the company of the cool drinks, but when Driscoll cleaned it out Sunday learning to the company of the company of the cool drinks, but when Driscoll cleaned it out Sunday learning to the company of the Lucien Cuc, dug the well three years ago and it has been an excellent source of irrigation water and cool drinks, but when Dris-coll cleaned it out Sunday, he found it filled with lukewarm

Driscoll and Cuc pumped out the well and let it fill up again but still the water tested about the water tested ab 75 degrees

Only possible source for the arm water is a hot spring, the men say, but there has never been a hot spring in the area.
