Grade Crossing Hearing Nears

The State Public Utilities Commission has indicated to City Attorney Chris J. Kowitz that it may set a date before March 1 for continuance of the city's grade crossing case.

Spurred by the accident that last Tuesday morning took the life of Fred Kuhre, 76, at the Madison street crossing, city officials are endeavoring to get the case resumed. Some evidence was submitted at start of the hearing several weeks ago.

City Attorney Kowitz Thursday asked the commission for an early date to continue the case, and Mayor Al Loueks said he would add to that his personal request.

Alderman Tom Armstrong said he would ask the City Council to start a new study of the question, with the possible closing of some crossings in view.

The city is asking for protective devices at more than a dozen grade crossings in the city. Salem has had 13 grade crossing deaths in 10 years.

Pope Pius XII, shown at a Vatican audience recently just prior to his latest illness, was still confined as a sense of heightened worry appeared evident in Vatican circles. The lack of fresh and specific news on the Pontiff's health caused considerable speculation on his condition, previously described as nervous indigestion which brought on hiccupping spells. Pope Pius will be 78 on March 2. (AP Wirephoto.)

Albany Court Settles Long Contested F. C. Pate Estate

ALBANY—Mrs. Nathel Irwin of Pebble Beach, Calif., formerly of Albany, became exclusively entitled to the $61,284.08 estate of her late stepfather, Frank C. Pate, as the result of a judgment handed down by Circuit Judge Victor Olliver.

Plaintiff in the suit was Mrs. Irwin, formerly Nathel Donaca, a daughter of the late Mrs. Belle Pate, who died April 13, 1944.

Defendants were the First National Bank of Portland, administrator of the estate; James A. Pate, administrator of the estate of James Pate; James A. Pate and wife, as individuals; Emma Wagoner; Naomi Schissler and Irving Schissler; Naomi Beebe, Minnie Morris, and Mable Beauchamp Pate.
