Peg in Washington

BY ALENE (PEG) PHILLIPS

Washington, D.C., February 1.
Dear Marian:

Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Chambers of Salem have been in town visiting with the former's brother, Ralph Chambers, and with the Douglas McKays. They arrived Friday, driving from Lansing, Michigan, where they picked up a car, and spent the week end at the McKay apartment, moving to his brother's home Sunday for the remainder of their stay.

The guests and hosts have been busily touring the historic sites and other spots of interest. This noon the Secretary and Mrs. McKay entertained for the three Chamberses in the interior dining room. Additional guests were Lee Ohmart, of Salem, who is here for the Real Estate Board meeting; Speaker Rudie Wilhelm, Jr., of Portland, who has been seeing some of his friends from the years between 1927 and 1940 when he studied at the American University here and worked at the Department of Commerce; and the Vics MacKenzie, and this Oregonian who was eagerly listening to news from Salem.

The MacKenzies entertained the McKays and Chamberses at one of their famous French pancake breakfasts Sunday, and on Saturday evening the McKays and their guests dined at Mrs. K's Toll House, a great favorite in suburban restaurants.

A third Oregon legislative member in Washington during the last week was State Senator Truman Chase of Eugene. He was attending a Farm Labor Advisory Board meeting, and with Mrs. Chase dropped in at the Department for a chat with the Secretary, L. E. Coles, of Prineville, member of the National Reclamation Association's board of directors, was an office visitor, as was Frank Heath of Coos Bay, who was in the 361st infantry with Secretary McKay. Charles L. Paine, another former Eugene resident, now living in Portland, called today to present an official invitation from the Royal Rosarians for the Secretary to attend the annual Rose Festival. L. L. Rizzo, Portland, president of the State Board of Health, is due tomorrow, as are Mr. and Mrs. Dean Pape and Mr. and Mrs. Ehrman Giustina, all of Eugene. The latter four have been in New York for the convention of the Association of Equipment Dealers, and Mr. Rizzo is here for the annual meeting of the American Pharmaceutical Association. So goes the roll call from home.

A special treat this week was the concert of Anna Russell, Canadian singer, trained in the Royal College of Music in London, who has put her excellent voice and lively personality to use as a comedienne of song. Her interpretations of the mannerisms of other concert singers, whether French, Spanish, British or German, were devastating. One wondered how other singers must feel about her humorous satire of their typical programs. The "music appreciation" number was a recounting of "The Ring of the Nibelungs" and she told the story of the Wagnerian opera and sang the briefest of lines to illustrate the development of the plot. Huge Constitution Hall was packed and the place echoed and reechoed with laughter from beginning to end of her program.

The T. S. Eliot comedy, "The Confidential Clerk," evoked the usual mixed reactions of an Eliot play, but with Ina Claire, Claude Rains, Aline MacMahon, and the clever young English actress, Joan Greenwood, it was beautifully done and as far as I was concerned, a most worthwhile evening. Particularly appreciated was Ina Claire, after her seven-year retirement from the stage.

In addition to the concert, the play, and the Turkish luncheon, I managed to include an Alpha Phi buffet, a dinner of a federal personnel management organization, a business dinner, meeting of the American Newspaper Women's Club, and an evening of dinner dancing at the Shoreham with Oregonians, which certainly rounded out the week with considerable variety, to put it mildly. And it has been wonderful weather, too. I must report, as your Washington correspondent.
