

Here's What Happens When You Join American Red Cross

(From Ladies Home Journal)

What happens when you join the Red Cross? A volunteer solicitor takes your money and gives you a card. You have "done your duty" for the year. It is a simple procedure, hardly exciting. You don't feel heroic or noble. You do not see the light of relief in the eyes of a single disaster victim; you do not feel the steady pulse of a wounded soldier when life-giving blood plasma flows into his body; you do not hear the words which so many have spoken in time of disaster: "What would we ever do WITHOUT the Red Cross?"

Because we cannot do without the Red Cross, because life is such that at any time the Red Cross may be called upon for disaster aid, because what the Red Cross does must be done immediately—not later when the plight of disaster victims makes everyone want to help—because there is no better way to do it, something DOES happen when you make your contribution and join the Red Cross.

Just as surely as if you had extended a helping hand yourself you are answering calls for help from your neighbors, near and far. When you join the Red Cross you identify yourself with each individual act of mercy this great organization performs anywhere in the world. You are there—
