Marine Officers To Inspect Here

Officers from district headquarters of the Marine Corps in San Francisco will be in Salem Monday to inspect Salem's Marine Reserve unit, the Third 155 mm. gun battery, which meets that night.

It will be the first inspection of the unit by district officers since it was organized here. The district includes Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, Utah, Arizona and California.

Heading the inspection team is the deputy director of the district, Col. Edward L. Hutchinson, who is making his first visit to Salem. The colonel took over as deputy commander of the district October 14, 1953, and prior to that was the officer in charge of the Western Recruiting area.

With the Marine Corps since 1931, Hutchinson was commissioned in the corps in May, 1935. During World War II he served with the Second Marine division on Tarawa and with the Second anti-aircraft battalion on Samoa. In 1952 the colonel was in China as a battalion commander with the Eighth Marines. Just prior to becoming officer in charge of the Western Recruiting area he was commanding officer of the Marine Barracks at Charleston, South Carolina.

Other members of the inspection team coming with Col. Hutchinson are Maj. Ben R. Grandy, assistant officer in charge of the reserve branch for the district, and Maj. Edward O'Brien, supply officer for the district. Both have visited here previously.

The inspection team is to fly into Portland Monday and will come to Salem from that city. While in this area they will have their headquarters in Portland.

Salem's Marine Unit is commanded by Maj. Cecil Gardner and has four other officers and 29 enlisted men. The outfit this year will go to Coronado, Calif., for summer training, departing from here July 25 and returning August 7.

Doris E. Manny Fatally Injured on Salem Street

Death in the form of a car with poor brakes took the life of an elderly Salem woman early Thursday night as she walked across a rain-slicked downtown intersection.

Mrs. Doris E. Manny, 60, 704 North Cottage street, became No. 2 on Salem's 1954 traffic fatality list when she was struck and dragged 120 feet by the car as she was crossing Court Street at the Church Street intersection about 6:20 o'clock. She was employed by the State tax commission.

City police said the 1936 Dodge driven by James G. Greenlee, 72, 495 Hawthorne Street, was going east on Court street when it struck the woman in the east crosswalk. She was dragged under the front of the vehicle until it came to a stop against a parking meter and with one wheel on the curb.

Greenlee told officers he didn't see the woman until she was right in front of the car. He was traveling about 20 to 25 miles an hour, he said. The man, who, police said, walks with aid of two crutches, was cited to Municipal court on charges of driving with defective brakes and failing to yield the right of way to a pedestrian. Officers said the car's brake pedal went all the way to the floor board when the brakes were applied.

First aidmen and police were called to the scene by Dale Mauk of the Stevenson and Mefford service station on the northeast corner of the intersection who reported he saw the car dragging the woman.

With the help of two jacks from the service station, first aidmen and station attendants hoisted the car so that the body could be removed. Mrs. Manny was pronounced dead upon arrival at Salem Memorial hospital.

Mrs. Manny moved to Salem from Bend in 1947, later worked three years for the State Liquor Commission office in Portland and then returned to Salem. She was born and lived in Portland until she went to Bend as a young woman to teach school. She was married there two years later and lived there until her move to Salem.

Surviving are a son, Dr. Vernon Manny, dentist in Eugene; a daughter, Mrs. Rosalind Leuhns, Ontario; a sister, Mrs. W. J. Cottrell, Tigard, and a grandson, Dirk Leuhns, Ontario. Funeral arrangements will be made later by the Howell-Edwards Funeral home.

Ike Backed-up

By and large, GOP orators seemed to take a more moderate tone as their Lincoln Day speechmaking reached its peak on the anniversary of the Civil War President's birth.

Plenty of accusations. There were still plenty of accusations that past Democratic administrations had coddled Communists or been outsmarted by them.

Sen. Jenner (R-Ind.) in an address at Columbus, Ind., asserted that American troops sent to Korea "were supposed to be defeated."

He said "the fair dealers... put every possible handicap on our armed forces" but the fighting men "went ahead and won the war."

He added: "Then the fair dealers and their Communist brain trust made one more mistake. They botched the peace our men had bought with their blood. They ordered our military leaders to ask Red China for an armistice."

Douglas Fir Activities Drop Sharply in Jan.

PORTLAND — Douglas fir production, orders and shipments fell sharply last month.

The West Coast Lumbermen's Assn. blamed snow and cold weather for the production decline. It was the lowest of any month since 1950.

It totaled 769,906,000 board feet. It was nearly 676 million feet in the previous January. Orders totaled 813,272,000 feet and shipments 783,561,000.

South Dakota mines produced 326,406 fine ounces of gold valued at $18,424,210 in 1953.

Sewage Plants In Many Towns

PORTLAND — Seven communities began using sewage treatment plants and 11 others started building them in the past year, the State Sanitary Authority reported Thursday in an annual review.

Many of the 11 started will go into operation this year. The 11 communities are: Albany, Coos Bay, Coquille, Corvallis, Eugene, Lebanon, Myrtle Point, North Bend, Springfield, Tualatin Hills and Grants Pass, where the plant is being enlarged.

The seven that opened last year were at Athena, Cottage Grove, Heppner, McMinnville, Oregon City, Woodburn and the McLaren School for Boys near Woodburn. Portland and West Salem expanded sewage systems in the past year, the report said.

Molotov Asks

Russia's linking of the Adriatic port with the Austrian problem has been described before by Western diplomats as a deliberate attempt to block agreement. Friday's proposal was regarded in most quarters as no exception to this reasoning.

Molotov's Program
Among other "certain additions" that Molotov proposed were:
1. Insistence that economic payments to Russia defined in previous treaty negotiations remain unchanged. Figl had appealed for an easing of this "harsh and inequitable" burden.

2. A new definition of troop withdrawal, so worded that the Russians could remain indefinitely in Austria even after Austria has its sovereignty.

The Russian plan provides for troop withdrawal from Vienna but Molotov said troops remaining in Austria "would not be occupation troops nor would they interfere with internal Austrian affairs. The legal status of these troops would be determined by a social agreement drawn up by the four powers with the participation of Austria."

To Keep Red Troops
Thus, Molotov was seeking to preserve the existence of the Red army on Austrian soil in some legal framework. Once they have to leave, postwar treaties with Romania and Hungary would go into effect, requiring Soviet troops to leave those satellite countries also.

The Romanian - Hungarian garrisons of the Soviet army have international sanction only as forces protecting the line of communications to the Austrian occupation force.

Molotov's proposals amounted to a clear rebuff to Figl's appeal and also one made to the Big Four by Secretary of State Dulles. The American statesman called on Russia to end the "long and shabby story" of its resistance to Austrian independence and to conclude "here and now" a act giving seven million Austrians their full freedom.

The ILA spokesman, who declined to be identified, quoted Lewis as saying "the door was open" to a formal association of the two large independent unions. The ILA official added, however, that such an affiliation is "far away yet."

The Atlantic district embraces Philadelphia, Chester, Pa., Wilmington, Del., Baltimore and Norfolk.

Does Bad Climate Cause Colds?

Does bad climate cause colds? The answer is no. The colds occur in the same percentage of people in one region as in another. Apparently the greatest contributing factor is the change to indoor crowding, especially in schools, during the winter months. Children acquire and transmit the disease more readily than adults.

Your doctor can give you advice which will do much toward protecting you from colds. When your physician writes you a prescription, bring it to us for filling.
