DUCKS UNLIMITED SPEAKER WEDNESDAY
Salem outdoorsmen will have an opportunity this coming Wednesday, Feb. 17, to listen to a first-hand report on the work being done in Canada by Ducks Unlimited. Rennie M. Harley, western manager of D. U., will be the speaker, according to Robert M. Bishop, Oregon chairman for Ducks Unlimited, who arranged the meeting.

RENNIE M. HARLEY . . . knows his ducks

Mr. Harley will speak at the ILWA clubhouse, as a part of the regular Wednesday meeting of the club. Harley will outline the work of Ducks Unlimited, discuss future plans, and will present a motion picture entitled "The Canadian Goose." The meeting is open to the public, and all who have an interest in our migratory game birds should attend. It starts at 8 p. m. . . Refreshments will be served.

TROUT FEVER BEGINS
Though trout season is still several months off, trout anglers are already feeling the recurrent itch of "rainbow fever." This is evidenced by the many folks who are buying new tackle ahead of time (wise idea) or putting their old gear in order.

For awhile after the advent of spinning tackle, we were afraid that fly fishing was on the way out. And, true enough, spin-anglers far outnumber the fly-rod man. However, the novelty of spinning is beginning to wear off, and anglers are realizing that spinning is not a 100 percent method that works at all times and places. For instance, when the big old brown trout are feeding on the surface of a crystal-clear summer stream, there is no method so effective as the delicate delivery of a dry fly.

There is a pride one feels in the ability to handle a fly effectively that can be experienced no other way. Not everybody is proficient at the art (though most folks could be, if they wanted to), and to be able to woo the trout successfully with the tiny creation of hook and hackle brings a wonderful sense of accomplishment. . . Spin-gear is tops for steelhead, salmon and bass, and fine for deep-feeding trout. . . but when the sun dips to the west, the may flies begin to dance above the quiet murmuring of the stream, and the trout begin to dimple the water—then the fly angler reigns supreme.

BAMBOO STILL TOPS
Thinking about the spring and summer ahead, a number of anglers have asked us how we feel about glass fly rods. Well, for bass-bugging, bait fishing or heavy streamer fishing, glass rods are all right. And some of them have actions suitable for efficient dry-fly work. But we still prefer split bamboo for top fly angling. Nature put bamboo fibers together in a way that produces a "life" that we have never found in glass.

Even aside from the fact that we don't think glass has the best action for fly casting, we prefer bamboo because one develops the same affection for the polished cane as a violinist feels for his instrument. There is something PERSONAL about a Tonkin cane fly that increases with the years—something that we can never feel about glass.

YOU GUESS THIS TIME
In case you haven't noticed, it's wet outside, and probably wetter on the coast. Last week nobody did too well, as streams were low and cold. This week-end streams will be rising—and who knows what to expect? Your guess, brother, is as good or better than mine! Only one thing we can be sure of—and that's the fact that hundreds of anglers WILL be steelheading, come what may. Good luck, optimists!

Friday: Pacific at Willamette, Linfield at Lewis & Clark. Saturday: Willamette at Pacific, Lewis-Clark at Linfield, Whitman at College of Idaho.

Coach John Lewis was figuring today what fun it would be if his Willamette Bearcats could win both games of the series with Pacific.

Giving full regard to the difficulty of stopping all three Badger deadeyes, Lewis pondered what a tremendous boost it would give the Salem team toward the Northwest conference flag which waves at the end of eight more contests. Five of these eight will be on the road for Willamette.

The aces who will badger the Bearcats are Clint Agee, Norm Hubert and Danny French, who joined to tally 53 of Pacific's 64 points which beat Willamette 64-58 on Jan. 30 at Forest Grove. French hit for 21, Hubert 18 and Agee 14 and they are ranked first, sixth and seventh in conference scoring.

Tonight's game at the WU gym will be at 8 o'clock, following the preliminary at 6:10 between the freshman aggregations.

Won Last 4 Games
Pacific lost to Lewis and Clark; 55-53 and 74-65, then to College of Idaho, 66-57 and 56-39, and to Whitman 67-66, before starting to climb upward. The Badgers then beat Willamette, and Linfield three times.

Coach Lewis will start his front-runners, Dick Hoy and Pete Reed at forward, Tom Gooding at center, Jerry McCallister and Duane Shield at guard. Dave Gray, a recent sparker, and Bill Colvard will see immediate action, as will the tall Neil Casibile.

Saturday night they will pack up and play at Forest Grove.

PSC's Porter Leading OCC

Don Porter of Portland State looks like a cinch to win the Oregon Collegiate conference scoring crown this season, holding an average of 26.4 after seven games.

Bob Frantz is fourth, the OCE star averaging 16.3 in nine games. There are five OCE players among the leading 10.

Junior Billiard Lessons Planned Before Tourney

Free practice and instruction classes in pocket billiards are being offered for boys at the B & B Bowling Court each Saturday from 2 to 3 p. m. and 7 to 8 p. m.

Tom Wood, proprietor, said the classes will continue for nine weeks starting this next Saturday. Wood, instructor, said that some of Salem's best players have volunteered to assist.

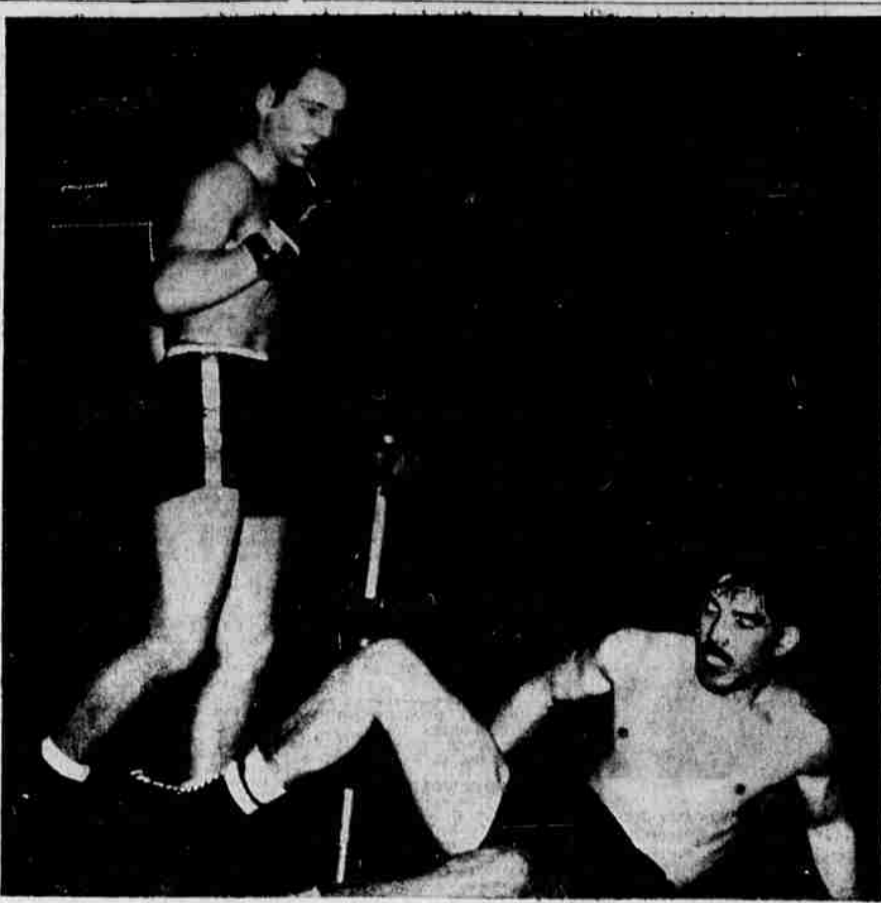

Meanwhile, entries are being taken for the Junior City pocket billiards championship, the deadline being Feb. 21.

Each player will play one match with each other entry in his group, division winners to play off for the city trophy. Matches will be 50-point straight 14.1 rack call shot pocket billiards, and will be played according to Billiard Congress of America rules.

Livingston Mum On Protest Plan

MONMOUTH, Ore. — Bob Livingston, Oregon College of Education basketball coach, declined to say here Thursday night whether or not he is making a formal protest over his team's 54-52 loss to Portland State last week.

Livingston contended at the time of the game that Portland State's winning shot came after time had run out.

He was advised that if he would put the case in writing as a formal protest, it would be submitted to conference schools for a vote. The protest, however, had to be post-marked before midnight Thursday.

Kottre Scores TKO Over Roy in Third at Portland

By A. C. JONES
PORTLAND — Harold Kottre sent the customers home early last night when he TKO'd Canadian Corporal Dave Roy in 2:01 of the third round of what the Silverton boxer did not intend to last 10 rounds.

Some 1500 Portland Army fans watched the 170-pounders in a battle of knockdowns on the National Boxing club show, Kottre being dropped for a no-count in the first round and Roy yielding to the force of gravity three times in the second and three in the third before Referee Ralph Gruman decided the northern guest had enough.

Goodbye to Civilian Life
For Kottre it was eventful farewell to civilian life for a couple of years. The 26-year-old light-heavyweight, granted a 10-day delay in induction, will leave next Wednesday morning for Fort Ord, Calif.

It catches him on the upgrade in professional boxing when he is just beginning to percolate. The convincing of Roy was his 29th victory in 34 fights, two of which were draws.

Kottre, weighing in at about six pounds more than his usual scale appearance, had calculated that he would need the added weight to handle the larger Canadian and it did not impair his condition.

In the fairly even first round, the opponents probed the outer defenses with due respect. Roy had the reach and scored points with his left jab. Each landed a pair of good blows before Kottre began to land with left-right combinations and trying to avoid Roy's tactics of waiting for a move, then counter-punching.

hert's 17.7. Biggest change was in the climb from seventh to third by Ken Servas of Lewis and Clark, at the expense of Willamette in two games last weekend in which he tallied 49 points.

Four Willamette players were bunched between 10th and 14th — Dick Hoy with 101, Pete Reed 98, Tom Gooding 97 and Jerry McCallister 96.
