If you're long of spine and shoot real fine You can be our basketball Valentine. CARDINALS UP WHEN CHIPS DOWN

Sifting through statistics for the six overtime games in which Sacred Heart has been involved this season (all won by the Cardinals), we find that they appear to flourish with pressure. Coach Leo Grosslacques' boys have totalled 29 overtime points to 10 for the six opponents. Central has been the victim twice, one in a double overtime, and Mt. Angel has fallen two times in extra sessions. Final winning margins have been three, four, four, six, one and one.

and one.

Vince Matt, senior guard, has been the difference in four of them, coming in with decisive free throws or field goals. Nearest scare was with Central, in the "sudden-death" overtime when a Central player had two free throws, which, if made, would have ended the game, but he missed the second.

GrosJacques credits his steady guards, Matt and Clyde Fladwood, for taking control under pressure. "I think the boys like to see me sweat," he commented, "but I don't like them so close."

VIKINGS PROVE TO BE GENTLEMEN AGAIN

Salem high schools double defeat at Marshfield wasn't without a silver lining last week, and the good name the basketball players left in Coos Bay is additional proof that Viking athletics this year are on a high moral tone. They're

Coach Harold Hauk received a clipping from the Coos Bay Times, a column by Ken Hess mailed to Hauk by Bruce Hoffine, Marshfield coach. It reads, in part, as follows:

"Much praise was voiced by local fans on the fine sportsman-ship displayed by the Salem High team when it was here, and rightly so. As a matter of fact, we have felt all along that player conduct by visiting teams has been of the excellent variety-Corvallis, Central Catholic, Benson Tech and

Hess then quotes a letter from a Coos Bay fan: "I think the people of Salem would be proud to know of the outstanding sportsmanship displayed by the gallant team of boys sent here by Salem High. Although facing defeat both nights, their sportsmanship never wore thin . . . It was a wonderful series to watch. I, for one, and from the comments I've heard, many other Bay Area fans will be watching the Vikings' basketball fortunes and wishing them well."

SELVY RATES WITH FURMAN

Furman university has been something like Rio Grande college, little known until a basketball star gave it both athletic and scholaslittle known until a basketball star gave it both athletic and scholastic prominence. Rio Grande, for instance, doubled its enrollment since the advent last year of the Bevo Francis who knows where the basket is. Furman has published a slick brochure about its national scoring leader. Frank Selvy, who now holds the three-year record for major colleges and as a guard is averaging 38.3. It must have cost a pretty penny and we're not quite sure of the purpose, for most people will accept Selvy on their All-American team and we're not looking for a school to enroll in it it's to increase enrollment.

HARRY MATTHEWS BACK IN THE SADDLE

We had been wondering wha' hoppen to Kid Matthews since his narrow loss to Don Cockell, the British champion, last summer in Seattle. We saw Harry Glickman, who promoted that light, at the Banquet of Champions at Portland, and asked his opinion of Jack Hurley's maneuvers with The Athlette.

Glickman predicted Hurley would bring him out of mothballs and build him up for one last big fling against the master, Rocky Marciano, and would choose his opponents carefully. Since then Hurley has said he wants one a month Glickman suggested that more fighters ought to be in the same boat with Matthews, who has money piled in the bank, owns a nice home in Seattle and has invested considerable in a welding plant, welding being the Kid's steady trade.

"Harry's a good fighter—not great," Glickman acknowledged, and pointed out that it's in Hurley's contract with Matthews that the Kid must retire from boxing when Hurley tells him to. Hurley gets half the gate from each battle, but he's worth it for his shrewdness and buildup.

Does anyone envy Skip Stahley for his selection as University of Idaho football coach? We've seen Vandal alumni stirred up before over new coaches and predicting more brilliant use of available material, but in 56 years of fielding a team Idaho has never won more than six games. Best showing was in 1927, when Idaho tied Stanford and USC for the PCC title, with a record of 4-13. Saturday: Springfield at Salem.

The Salem high Vikings, still with a slight chance of a Big Six title, tangle with the Springfield Millers tonight at Salem high. The Vikings are a full two games out of first with three league contests left on their schedule.

Harold Hauk's Salem squad will be heavily favored to top the Mil-lers again since Salem beat them at Springfield early in the year, The Millers have yet to get a lea-gue victory as they rest in last with six losses.

The probable starters for the visitors will be Bill Lincoln and Chris Karp at the forwards, Tom Bøurgeois at center, and Danny Sperry and Skip Squires at the two guards. Bourgeois is 6-4. The Vikings will start Phil

Burkland and Tom Pickens at the forwards. Bob Wulf at center, and Jim Knapp and Gordy Domogalla at the guards. Knapp leads the team in scoring with 208 points while Wulf, a junior, is next with

A loss would put Salem two and one half games back of the lead-ing Corvallis five with two games left while Corvallis has three contests remaining.

This year the four Salem loop wins have been over Bend twice and Albany and Springfield while they have lost to Corvallis twice and Eugene once. They still must play Eugene at Salem and Albany there after tonight.

The preliminary game matches see Gustafson's strong Salem high junior varsity and the Springfield JV's in a 6:15 game. The varsity game starts at 8. The probable Salem junior varsity starters are Don Zeh and Mary

Third Quarter Decides

The third quarter was the de-ciding one. The Bearcats went into this period with a seven point lead and when the quarter was over they were behind, 47-42. The Badgers scored 23 points to the Bearcats' 11. Dan French, Pacific forward, was uncanny. Every-thing he threw went up during this part of the game couldn't help but go in. He collected 11 points in the third quarter alone.

It didn't take the Badgers long to overcome their halftime deficit. They came roaring back after the intermission and were ahead al-most before the crowd had settled back into their seats. Bearcat Capt. Dick Hoy fouled out about half way through this per-iod. This was about the same time that the Badgers took over the
