

HE INVENTED IT

Harvey J. Burington, proprietor of the 12th Street Body and Paint shop, pointing out stand invented by him for supporting car doors while door is being aligned to hinges on body of the car.

Salem Man's Invention Start of New Industry

The beginning of another Salem manufacturing industry is announced, and the article to be made is the invention of a Salem man. It is an adjustable stand for supporting car doors while the door is being secured to the hinges on the body of the vehicle, an invention of Harvey J. Burington, who has been in the body and paint business for 25 years, nine of them in Salem. Heretofore one man had to hold the door while another applied the hinges to the door. Even with an extra man this was a difficult operation. But with the new device, called Dor-Plac-R, one man can align the door to the hinges and secure them with little effort. The door is supported on an adjustable base mounted on wheels. Arms and guides extend upward from this base, the arms having clamps for fastening the upper part of the door and holding it to any desired vertical angle. Simple adjusting screws and guides raise or lower either end of the door to the proper elevation to apply it to the hinges.

Bodies Not Found in Cab

MAUPIN, Ore. — Attempts continued Thursday to salvage a diesel locomotive that hit a rock slide and plunged into the Deschutes River Jan. 31. For the first time the salvage crew was able to get at the cab of the locomotive. The crew reported the bodies of two missing trainmen were not inside.

No Prostitution In State, Said

Open commercialized prostitution has been eliminated from the state, Atty. Gen. Robert Y. Thornton said Wednesday. The job was accomplished in the past several months by district attorneys and local authorities, cooperating with the attorney general's office, Thornton wrote in a press release. Thornton thanked authorities in Klamath Falls for closing down houses of prostitution in that city. He gave credit to Dist. Atty. Fran R. Alderson of Klamath Falls, the mayor and council of the city, and the Klamath County Ministerial Association. Thornton said "the overwhelming majority of our police will enforce the laws against prostitution if they have the backing of the citizens."

For the first time the salvage crew was able to get at the cab of the locomotive. The crew reported the bodies of two missing trainmen were not inside. The belief is that engineer Ernest Barton, Portland, and fireman Earl Sutton, Wishram, Wash., were thrown into the river in the plunge of the locomotive. The locomotive has been dragged by cables to within 10 feet of the east bank of the river. The next three or four days will be spent in building a lifting device to raise the locomotive to shore.

Free Speech on Fluoridation

Principal speaker at Wednesday night's meeting of the Public Service Forum held at the state library was Dr. Harold Erickson, state health officer. Erickson pointed out that although fluoridation of water was a controversial issue it was not of such a nature that governmental employees would be prohibited from expressing views concerning it. He added that on the basis of established factual data the State Board of Health is in favor of fluoridation as an important factor in preventive dentistry. City Water Manager John Geren explained the costs and operating procedures that would be involved if Salem decided to add fluorides to its water. He said that the cost of a fluoridation program would be about ten cents per person per year.

Dr. John Dyke, Salem dentist, outlined the history of the study and application of fluoridation in this country. The dental profession, he said, would be able to do a great deal more work on mouth diseases other than tooth decay if a fluoridation program was universally accepted. Marion County Health Officer Willard Stone said that surveys have indicated that there is two and one half times as much tooth decay in Marion county as in the rest of the country. The panel was moderated by Howard Kaffun, Salem attorney. In discussing the legal aspects of fluoridation Kaffun said that in no instance has fluoridation been declared unconstitutional.

1953 Tax Topics

No. 9 The Three Types of Income Tax Returns In an effort to fit the income tax returns to the different needs of the more than 50,000,000 persons who must file them, three types of returns have been provided—Form 1040A, Short-Form 1040, and Long-Form 1040. The law expects you to pay your correct tax—no more—no less. It will pay you to think for a moment which of these three types of returns is the best and easiest form in your case. To do this you need to consider the size of your income, the sources of your income, your eligibility to deduct travel and reimbursed expenses from wages (see page 5 of the instructions with your 1953 Income Tax Form), and the size of your non-business deductions, such as contributions, medical expenses, etc. (listed in detail on pages 10 and 11 of the instructions). The tax table used in computing the tax on Form 1040A and Short-Form 1040 automatically allows you approximately 10 percent of your income to cover your non-business deductions.

Silverton Dog Trades Cigar For Breakfast

SILVERTON—Regardless of all the adverse happenings in a small town, there are certain phases that make life well worth while. This morning in the early pre-work hours when the first stores were open, the swinging door of the Budget Market was opened by a white and black, good-sized terrier dog. "Skipper" had a cigar in his mouth, walked behind the counter, gave the cigar to the clerk, and in turn was given a wiener. He opened the door and went back to the Silverton Drug Store where he had gotten the cigar, sidled up to the proprietor who snipped the wiener into little pieces and fed the mutt his earned breakfast. Skipper belongs to Jeff Hoyt and appears on many programs in various stunts.

Chemawa Will Give Pageant

CHEMAWA — "Canoe Prophecies" is the title of the pageant with which Chemawa Indian School will commemorate its 74th anniversary on Friday, Feb. 26 at 7:30 p.m. in the school gymnasium. The pageant depicts the story of a 12 year old Indian boy of a long time ago, who has just returned from a long quest in his canoe, and the vision he had while away. Patsy Ochiho, whose home is Klamath Falls, Oregon, a full blood Paiute Indian of California, will reign as Queen escorted by George Umtuch, elected Chief. Elected as princesses of the Queen's court are: Marilyn Luke, Lavinia Johnson, Dolores Bennett — all northwest Indians — and Mary Ella Teller and Louise Benally, Navajo Indians from the Southwest. Admission this year will be by ticket only.

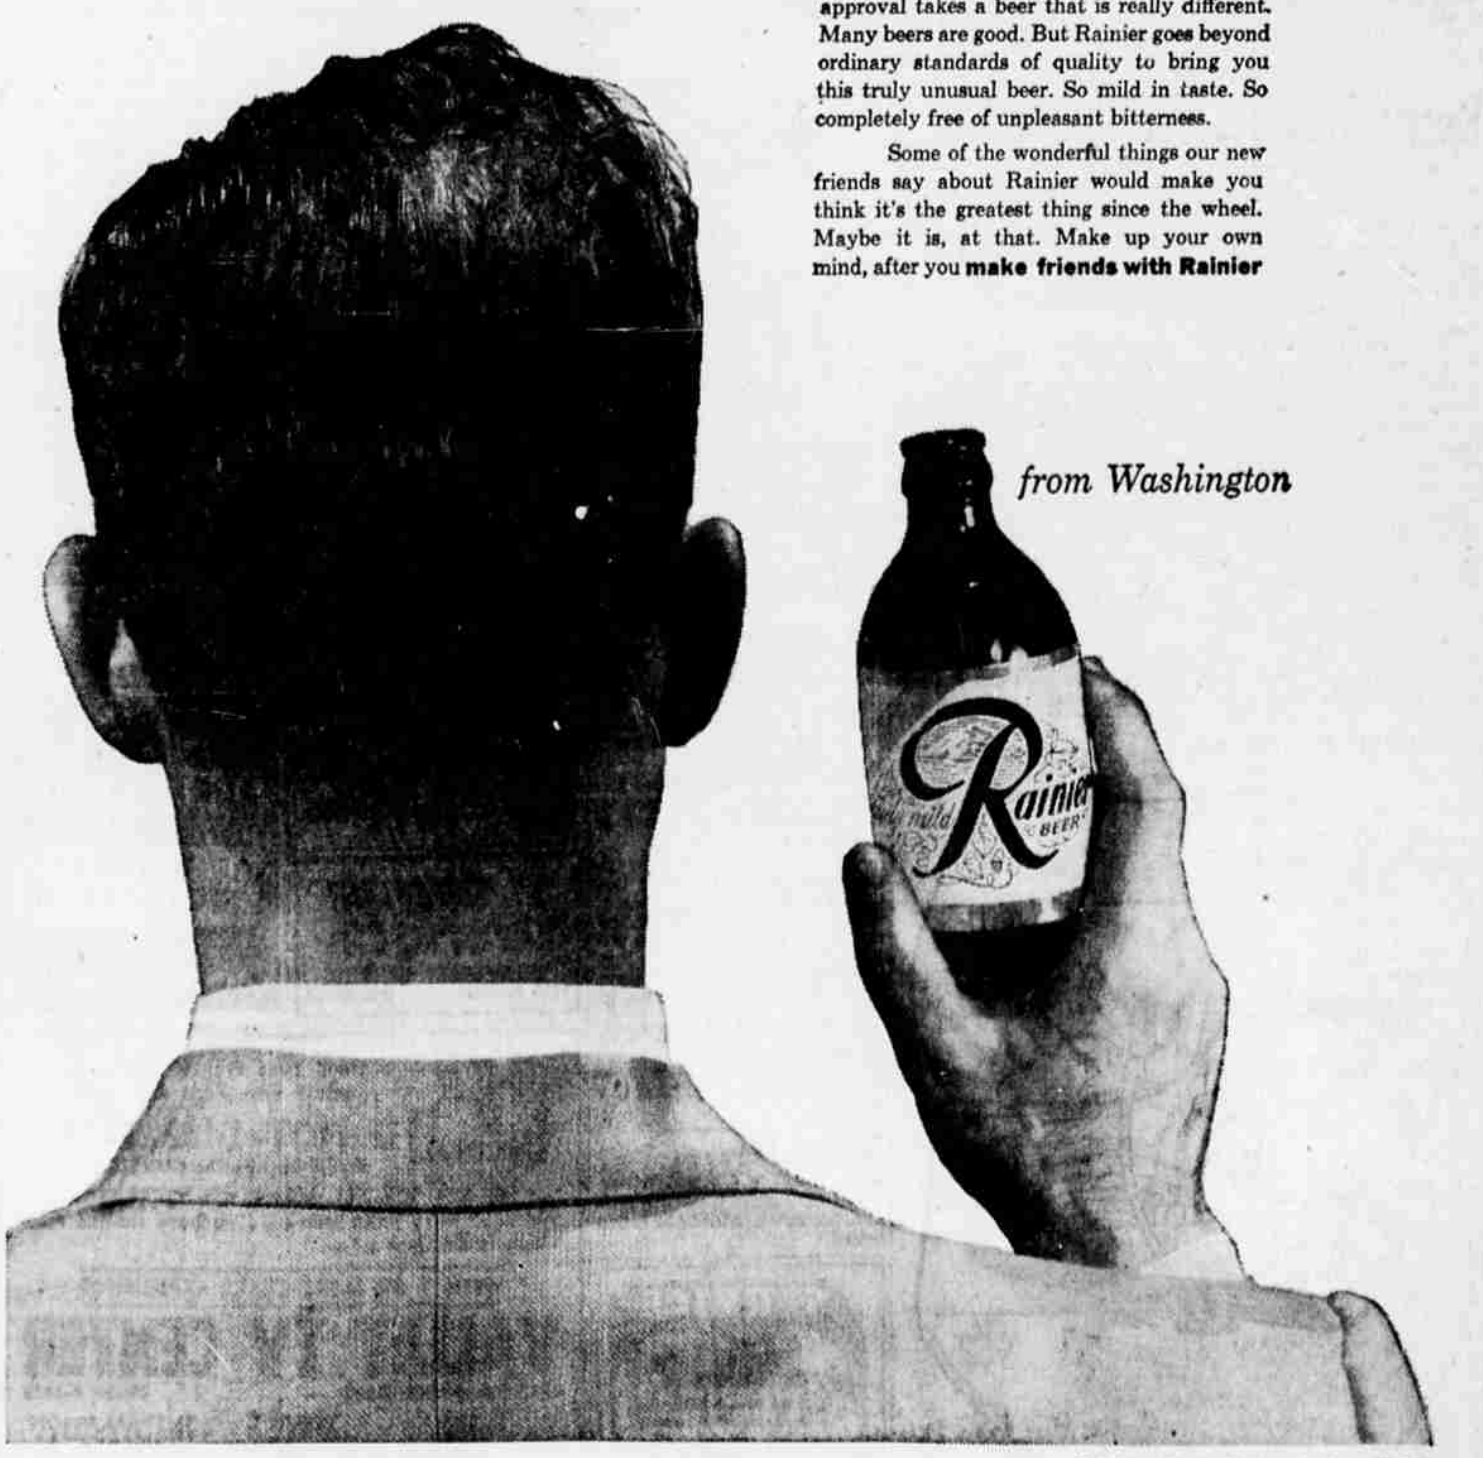

REDS TO FREE TEN

Let's face it: this one is really different

What gives? Why have literally thousands of people changed to Rainier almost overnight? Let's face it. Winning that kind of approval takes a beer that is really different. Many beers are good. But Rainier goes beyond ordinary standards of quality to bring you this truly unusual beer. So mild in taste. So completely free of unpleasant bitterness. Some of the wonderful things our new friends say about Rainier would make you think it's the greatest thing since the wheel. Maybe it is, at that. Make up your own mind, after you make friends with Rainier from Washington
