Inheritance Show Increase Scelba's Plan

Unander Reorganization Brings Tax Payments From Evaders

By JAMES O. OLSON

Through reorganization of both the office and field staffs by State Treasurer Sig Unander, inheritance tax collections during the 1953-55 biennium are expected to reach $6,500,000 and pos-sibly a top of $7 million, 'ar in excess of the anticipated revenue from this source set at the beginning of the biennium at

Treasurer Viander said Fri-Multnomah county and some of the larger Oregon cities were properly and completely investigated, leaving a 1 rge section of the state untouched by inspec-tion of county records, the principal sources uncovering trans-fers of property which had es-caped taxation. I these areas, caped taxation. I these areas, the inheritance division was de-pendent completely on the reported taxable assets as furn-ished the office. Eases Tax Burden

In commenting on the expect-ed large increase, Treasurer Unander calls attention to the fact that an of these taxes un-collected places an additional tax burden on the general tax-payers of the state. "Because of the loss of large revenues n the past that did not come to the attention of our office, either through ignorance or the part of the people or by persons who were actually delibate in tax evasion, arrangements (Continued on Page 5, Col. 6) considering legislation to create an Air Force academy Friday exacted three commitments from Secretary of the Air Force Talbott, and indicated readiness to approve the measure. It has already passed the House. In a session with the Senate Armed Services Committee, Talbott agreed to:

Accept recommendations of proposed commission as to a a proposed commission as to a site for the academy or else explain to congress why he did not.

2. Put a ceiling of about 145 million dollars on construction costs. Construction is expected to be a five-year job. The bill submission of the commission of the commis outhorizes 25 million dollars for the first year.

3. Submit within a day or two a proposal for an interchange of some graduates of service academies among the Air Force, the Army, and the Navy. The thought is that unification will be improved if some air academy graduates serve in the Army or Navy and vice versa.
