

Mabel Jenkins Passes Here

Mrs. Mabel M. Jenkins, late resident of 3365 View avenue, lifetime resident of Oregon, died Monday at a local hospital.

Born at Shaw, Ore., on January 12, 1902, she moved to Salem 18 years ago after living in various parts of the state.

She was a member of the Chemeketa Toastmistress Club and an employee of the State Industrial Accident Commission for the past 10 years.

Surviving her are her husband, H. H. Jenkins; a daughter, Mrs. Yvonne Taylor, Salem; sisters, Mrs. Emma Brown, Salem, Ella Reynolds, San Francisco, and Ida Williams, Newport; and a brother, Norris Frank, Stamford, Conn.

Funeral services will be held at the Howell-Edwards Chapel. The time has not yet been set.

Recreation Program to Be Discussed at Meeting

A recreation and physical education program in which the City of Salem, the Salem school board, and the City Parks Advisory commission are all interested will come up for joint discussion at a meeting in city hall Tuesday afternoon.

A resolution before the city council Monday night, sponsored by the park commission, calling for a definite agreement for joint operation and establishment of the office of director of recreation and physical education, was referred to the city manager and the budget committee. Another resolution, sponsored by the school board, and providing for a coordinating committee was referred to the city manager. Both will be discussed at the afternoon meeting.

Among routine business the council Monday night tabled an application from the Tidewater Associated Oil company for an additional service driveway at a service station located at the southeast corner of High and Chemeketa streets.

By approval of petitions the council put on the street improvement program Hoyt street from Ford to 23rd, and Rural avenue from 23rd to 24th, both without sidewalks.

Because of confusion over two petitions the council tabled for two weeks the matter of improving Larson avenue from Silverton Road to the city limits to the south. One petition, asking that sidewalks be built, was signed by 70.06 per cent of the assessable property owners, and another, with no sidewalks, by 42.33 per cent. The petitions first came in last August 18 and were tabled, and were tabled again February 8.

Desire of the Willamette Valley Trust company to build a warehouse in the district brought in a petition with 63 signatures for a change of zone from C2 to C3 for the area immediately south of Highway avenue, between Highway 99E and Silver-

Play to Raise Money for Lions Projects

Helping furnish glasses for underprivileged West Salem children, and the control and eradication of poison oak in West Salem residential areas are among current activities of the West Salem Lions Club.

Also being considered is a survey of a proposed swimming pool for the children of that community.

To assist in fund raising for these and other civic and charitable activities of the club, the West Salem Lions are sponsoring the three-act comedy "Here Comes Charlie." It is being produced by the Salem Civic Players at Leslie Junior High School Friday night of this week, starting at 8 o'clock.

The Civic Players, active in comedy play productions in Salem for 16 years, will present a cast of 10 persons in the show, well embellished with a series of incidents which happen to Charlie, who strangely enough, turns out to be a girl.

Bullet Ends Life Of Albany Boy

ALBANY—Services for Michael Dean Neuschwander, 4, who died early Monday from a bullet wound at the Albany General hospital, will be held at a time to be announced. The Fortmler-Fredrickson Funeral home is in charge of arrangements.

The accident occurred at the home of the boy's mother, Mrs. Kate Kauffman Neuschwander, five miles southeast of Albany, when the victim's 9-year-old brother, Dale Jonathan accidentally wounded him with a bullet fired from a rifle. The injured boy was rushed to the Albany General hospital by ambulance, where he died several hours later. The accident happened at around 8 o'clock after the two boys had gone to their bedroom. It was when they were upstairs they found the "forgotten unloaded gun."

The gun, state police officers said, was an old Winchester pump rifle, which Mrs. Neuschwander did not know was loaded.

Surviving besides the mother and brother, Dale, are the father, Herschel P. Neuschwander, Lebanon; a sister, Nancy; two other brothers, David, Albany and Peter Neuschwander, now serving with the U.S. Marine Corps; the paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Neuschwander, Albany, and maternal grandmother, Mrs. Polly Kauffman, Riverside, Ia.
