Swart Probes Grade Hazard

An investigation into the grade crossing of Lancaster Drive and the Salem-Geer branch of the "Southern Pacific lines," for the purpose of determining hazardous conditions will be made by County Engineer Hedda Swart.

Swart was asked to make the investigation after the county court had read a letter from L. P. Hopkins, Portland division superintendent of the S.P. company. The letter stated that the utility had received requests from residents of the area suggesting that some action be taken.

Hopkins suggests that Lancaster drive be used to a greater extent than usual during the past year or so because of the construction of the bypass east of Salem. He believes the volume of traffic will diminish after the bypass is placed in use.

Raid Warning Signal to Get Test for Two Days

School teachers and a group of 28 citizen-volunteers will act as monitors for a test of Salem's air raid warning signal Thursday and Friday when the whistle and siren are sounded during the noon hour.

The signal will be made at 12:15 p.m. both days for a three minute duration, in accordance with rules of the Federal Civil Defense Administration. The big ship's whistle mounted on the Oregon Pulp & Paper Company plant and the fire siren in the tower of City Hall will comprise the coordinated system.

Colonel P. W. Allison, chief deputy of Salem Civil Defense, has made arrangements through School Superintendent Walter E. Snyder for two teachers at each of the 29 schools in the public school system to audit the signals.

One teacher will report on audibility outside the building and the other inside.

In addition Colonel Allison has secured the services of 28 volunteers, living in various parts of the city, to monitor the signals and make reports. Those volunteering are:

State Files
The attorney general further argues that the "underlying allegations appearing in Baum's brief are not based upon an existing state of fact."

Thornton holds that the appellant would have no standing in court if he was attempting to base his rights entirely "on what he designates as the temporary re-appointment." The brief states that this section is clear and explicit and holds that the people had the full right to enact such legislation as an amendment to the Constitution for the same purposes and to the same effect as that the legislative assembly would have had the power to do under prior existing provisions of the constitution.

The amendment in controversy, Thornton points out, clearly shows that it is not to have operating force until the next session of the legislative assembly following the enumeration of the inhabitants of the state of Oregon by the United States government or in 1961.

Thornton quotes sections of various court decisions, including those of the Oregon supreme court, in his efforts to show that the court, as a general rule, will not render a declaratory judgment as to future contingent rights "but will wait until such rights have been fixed under an existing state of facts."

The Baum case was brought against Secretary of State Earl T. Newberry and Attorney General Thornton. In his brief Thornton declares the question raised by the appellants concerning the secretary of state's power to reapportion is an obvious answer, for the reason that this official will have no power or authority to affect any rights that may arise in 1961, as his term of office expires in January, 1957.

As compared with 1939, the average American ate 1,250 per cent more frozen vegetables, 900 per cent more baby foods, 738 per cent more frozen fruit and fruit juices, 218 per cent more canned fruit juices, 80 per cent more canned soup and 71 per cent more ice cream.

Students and Faculty Help Victims of Fire
Willamette University students, faculty and staff members last week came to the aid of Mr. and Mrs. Sydney S. Wagers and their two children, whose home was destroyed by fire.

The fire, believed to have started from a defective furnace flue, destroyed almost all of the family's household furnishings and clothing.

Contributions of clothing, money and household goods were made by the Willamette group and given to the family, now residing in a house at 1065 Ruge street. James Hitchman, student body president, headed the drive for the contributions.

McClure Says Sun Will Rise Behind Old Jeff

C. A. McClure of the city engineering staff is a patient man. And a student of nature.

To most vulgar souls a sunrise is just another sunrise, when you have to get up and wash yourself to work. But not McClure.

For a year now Mac has been lying in wait for the sun. He wanted to catch it as it was coming up behind Mt. Jefferson. He's got it cornered now, and Wednesday morning of this week it will rise behind that mountain. About 7 o'clock, Mac says.

A year or so ago he caught it coming up behind Mt. Hood, glorious and beautiful in colors, as Mac sees things.

He predicts that the sunrise behind Mt. Jefferson will be just as beautiful.

Weed Control Advance Made
The Marion county weed control district turned in some real accomplishments during the past year, according to a report submitted to a county court by Hollis Ottaway, secretary of the district.

Under the direction of Supervisor Jake Neufeldt the roadside campaign against the spread of ragweed was reported "good."

The tansy ragwort cleanup has proved encouraging in many areas. One of the principal problems involved in the control of this pest is finding the location of weed areas. Many of the former spots have been virtually cleaned up.

It is suggested that Granges, Farmers Unions, Farm Bureaus, FFA and 4-H groups interest themselves in finding places where weed control is needed.

The suggestion is made that a small power unit be provided the supervisor to use on small areas and for demonstrations. Use of county equipment at a nominal cost to individuals and groups was also suggested.

McCarthy Says
Assuring himself that a plainclothes "representative of the Army" was in the hearing room, McCarthy called the man forward and asked him to tell Stevens "I think he was grossly misled" in making the accusation.

McCarthy added: "I don't think Bob Stevens wants to protect Communists in the Army any more than any member of this committee does."

The story of the Pentagon code room employe was developed in this fashion:
Mrs. Mary Markward testified that while serving as an FBI undercover informant in the years 1943-1949 she knew an Annie Lee Moss as a Communist Party member.

McCarthy said this Mrs. Moss is, as his subcommittee understands, now working in the Army Signal Corps code room "handling top secret messages."

Subcommittee Counsel Roy M. Cohn and Francis P. Carr said there was no doubt from other investigations, that it was the same Mrs. Moss. They told reporters Mrs. Moss is a Negro.

Cohn announced to the subcommittee that Mrs. Moss' attorney had advised she was ill but would appear as a witness at some later time.

Cohn said records showed that Mrs. Moss was appointed a "communications clerk" in the office of the chief signal officer on Dec. 19, 1950, and "has been there ever since."

An Army description of her job at the time of her employment, Cohn said, showed that her duties included the receiving of messages from all over the world, including those in code, and determining if they were in the proper sequence and if they reached their proper destination.

Red Army Day Brings Blast at United States

MOSCOW (AP)—Russia's military leaders marked the 36th anniversary of the Red Army today with new blasts at the United States and repeated assurances that Soviet armed forces are sharpening their skill with the "newest weapons."

The army chief of staff, Marshal Vasily Sokolovsky, charged Americans are preparing a new war against the Soviet Union and the people's democracies. "He warned that Soviet forces are preparing for combat in the atomic age."

Soviet defense minister Marshal Bulganin, in a special order of the day, called on the armed forces for increased vigilance, military preparedness and competence in using the most modern weapons.

Spotlight New Weapons
Adm. Nikolai Kuznetsov also spotlighted new weapons, writing in Izvestia that the Soviet army and navy had received new arms and equipment "which are greatly superior to the arms and equipment of the second world war."

The parade of special articles also included an interview by the Soviet news agency Tass with Marshal M. Chistyakov, who charged "reactionary circles in the United States and Britain treach-

Withdrawal

From these positions inside the little town the French panted the Communist-led Vietnam with heavy mortars. The B26 bombers unloaded heavy cargoes of bombs on them. A reconnaissance in depth Monday revealed that the Vietnam had withdrawn, lifting for the moment the menace of battle in northern Laos.

The bombers, seeking out the retreating Vietnam, located a battalion in close formation east of Muong Sai and lambasted it, inflicting severe losses, the French said.

Elsewhere in Indochina, French Union forces struck at two Vietnam posts west and southeast of Hanoi, claiming to have inflicted heavy rebel losses.
