Traditional Week-Ends Planned

By ANNIE RITCHEY (Capital Journal Correspondent) UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene (Special) — The weather has been so nice this week that studying is almost impossible. With finals only two full weeks away it's hard to keep studious minds on the seriousness of winter term!

Rewarded for their scholastic achievement for fall term were a group of 10 freshmen girls, among whom was Sally Greig. They made 3.5 or above grade-point averages, and will be initiated into Alpha Lambda Delta, scholastic honorary, on March 9.

The university's exchange assembly traveled to Oregon State, Wednesday. A Salem member of the large cast is Roger Middleton. This week-end will again feature two hard-fought basketball games, when the Ducks meet Oregon State for the final game of our basketball schedule. The game Friday night will be here, and Saturday it will be at Corvallis.

A carnival, centering around a "carousell" theme will be Friday night after the game. It is sponsored by the Women's Recreational association, who recently elected Nicki Trump, from Hawaii, as president for the coming year.

In the other women's elections last week, Mary Wilson was elected YWCA president and Janet Wick will serve as president of Associated Women Students.

Petitions for chairmanships of the two big week-ends of spring term, Duck Preview and Junior Week-end, are already being called. Duck Preview, for which high school seniors from all over the state come to visit, will be April 23 and 24.

Junior week-end, which is always more tradition-filled even than Homecoming, will be May 14 and 15. Features of the week-end are the all-campus sing, luncheon, float parade, queen contest and coronation, terrace dance, junior prom and sunlight serenade.

Arden Parker, who was here last year, was visiting on campus Tuesday, to arrange for transferring her credits. She will attend the University of Mexico, she told friends.

One of the speakers at the press conference on this campus last week-end, under the sponsorship of the Oregon Press Association, was William Johnston. He was the Eric Allen memorial speaker. Marcia Webb was at the lecture with her father, who was attending the conference.

The burning of Frances Willard grade school here last Friday caused an appraisal of the other buildings in the city which are also fire hazards, as judged by Fire Chief Ed Surfus, was the veterans' dormitories group which houses most of the freshmen men living on campus.

HISTORY TOLD

Y-Teen Notes

By MARY LOU HASTINGS (Y-Teen Member)

Although the Y-teen girls of the Salem junior high school have chosen their own titles for their separate clubs each year, the Tri-Y girls of the Salem senior high school have held the titles of their clubs traditionally over the years. These Tri-Y clubs have been named after certain outstanding workers of the Y.W.C.A. These women are living and most are retired from Y.W.C.A. work.

Rhoda McCullough is one club, named after Rhoda McCullough. She was editor in chief of the Y.W.C.A. women's press with her headquarters in New York City. She retired from the Y.W.C.A. work there, 10 years ago.

Abbie Graham, another woman after whom a club was named, was noted for her camp program and specialization in camp work. She also wrote books on camp and published camp programs.

A volunteer worker, Winifred Heard, worked a great deal with the Y.W.C.A. She was the vice president of the National Y.W.C.A. board and also worked locally with the organization.

In the national staff foreign division was Anne Guthrie, lecturer. She traveled all over the world and was especially associated with her work in the Philippines. Now, she is interested in working with the United Nations.

Grace Loucks Elliott was the general secretary of the Y.W.C.A. in New York before she retired just last year. She is now teaching at the University of Southern California. A new club was formed at the beginning of this school year here. The club was named after Julia Brigante, a National Y.W.C.A. worker. Her field was associated with the Y-Teen's division. Esther Little, a former Y.W.C.A. secretary at Salem, resigned in 1949. She is now working in Seattle with the Y.M.C.A. Navy division with girls.

A member of the national Y.W.C.A. board at New York State was Margaret Meade for whom another local chapter is named. She also served on the world's council before she retired.

GUESTS at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney B. Lewis for over the week-end were their granddaughters, Linda and Barbara Lewis of Corvallis.
