Peg in Washington

BY ALENE (PEG) PHILLIPS

Dear Marian:

"The greatest statue that has come out of World War II" was the way Secretary Douglas McKay characterized the two Jima statue that was featured in a ground breaking ceremony Friday afternoon on a knoll across the Potomac from Washington. Exactly nine years to the day from the date on which the Marines went ashore at Iwo Jima, the ceremony included talks by General Lemuel C. Shepherd, Jr., commander of the Marine Corps, and General Merrit A. Edson, of "Edson's Raiders," as well as brief remarks by Secretary McKay. The Department of the Interior approved the location of the memorial on the Nevius tract in Arlington and the statue when completed will be one of the largest cast bronze monuments in existence. Felix de Weldon, Vienna-born sculptor, designed the statue from the famous photograph taken by Joseph Rosenthal in 1945. Dedication of the memorial is planned for November 10th, the Marine Corps birthday anniversary. At the top of the 70 foot high statue from the flagpole will be flown a real flag and Congressional approval will be sought to permit it to remain up after sundown with flood lights illuminating the statue. At present only the flag on the Capitol and the emblem that flies on Fort McHenry where Francis Scott Key wrote "The Star Spangled Banner" are permitted to be left up after sundown. The sculptor, who served in the Navy during the war, devoted five years to the completion of the first model of the Marine memorial, another famous shrine will be added to the Washington area to be viewed by countless millions in the years to come.

In addition to participating in the marine ceremony, Secretary McKay joined in another event having to do with the National Capitol Parks when he attended a luncheon of the Washington Monument Society today at the Metropolitan Club, marking the Washington birthday anniversary. He marked the holiday further by getting an additional week-end ride on Eugene Peavine in Rock Creek Park.

One of the programs of the past week especially enjoyed by Secretary and Mrs. McKay was an evening of songs by Eddie Fisher and other television stars at the Stater Hotel ballroom. In addition to the usual telecast of the Fisher program, an after show followed the buffet dinner and the young singer was generous in his numbers to the delight of the audience. Governor Paul L. Patterson of Oregon was a guest of the Vie MacKerries for the show.

Thomas P. Campbell, Oregon State Commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, was host to the Secretary at the annual dinner given by the organization in honor of Congressional members and other officials last Thursday evening.

This has been a beautiful day—temperatures in the upper fifties, clear and lovely. The annual Washington birthday sales in the downtown area brought out the usual flocks of people—some standing in line from early dawn to be first in the stores for the "com-on" items among the bargains, such as typewriters and sewing machines for 99 cents, $55 suits for $5, a $71.50 wrist watch for a penny, TV sets for $5, $12.95 shoes for five cents—just a few "teasers" in each store to bring out the crowds. The stores keep open for only three to four hours and I'm sure the clerks could stand no more than that. I just caught up with the morning papers and discovered the items listed—believe it or not, this thing has been going on for 30 years back here.

It was a good day not to go shopping, in my opinion, but a wonderful day to catch up with the home work after the continuous festivities of the past week. Several of the legations and chancery offices of other countries are in "my" block on Massachusetts and in honor of our first president their flags are flying in the breeze this afternoon providing an international note as I close this letter to you.
