

Varied Social Activities Noted . . .

An interesting gathering in the Gold room at the Marion hotel Thursday evening was the fashion show staged by a local store to show a glamorous array of spring and summer cotton styles. With the exception of a few pure silk models, all the some 90 styles presented were in various cotton materials, featuring many unusual fabrics and textures.

More than 200 were on hand for the show. Mrs. Herbert Adler was commentator. Preceding the presentation of the fashions, punch and cookies were served from a long table colorfully decorated with red carnations and white setting.

Models for the fashions were Mrs. Karl Becke, Charlotte Blum, Janet Gustafson, Judy Loucks, Jane Moorefield, Lorraine Ray, Mary Rauk, Julie Shinn, Mrs. William R. Shinn, Alice Warrick.

One of the memorable pictures of the show was the appearance of a grandmother-mother-and-child trio, Mrs. Becke, Mrs. Shinn and Julie. Mrs. Shinn and Julie were in identical mother and daughter costumes, Mrs. Becke in an identically styled dress but in another color.

The cottons shown were of all styles, sports and sunshine attire on to tea time costumes and formal and dancing dresses, showing cotton materials definitely are year-around fabrics.

Closing of Races Because of Fog Is Issue Before Board

By WILLIAM WARREN
(United Press Correspondent)

The theme song of this might be: Crazy over horses, horses, horses.

A small group of horse owners is reported to be attempting to put Cecil Edwards, racing steward for the State Racing Commission in the dog house. A metaphor that is not too inappropriate inasmuch as Edwards also presides as steward when the Multnomah Kennel club holds its dog races.

Complaints against Edwards have not been made in writing as yet, but in an oral petition to Gov. Paul L. Patterson—the man who appoints the commissioners and who is responsible for the commission—Edwards has been represented.

Garden Road Church Starting Commissary

The Garden Road Christian church is starting a commissary of supplies to meet any need here and elsewhere. Just now a call is being made for clean, used clothing, all types and sizes. It may be delivered at the church, 4085 Market street, or pick up service may be obtained by dialing 4-6453.

PROFOUND ANSWER

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—A fourth grader raised his hand to tell Mrs. Ruth Clark, Rancho Village teacher, exactly what an atom is. "That's what you mine from uranium," he explained.

Lumber Cargo Goes to Korea

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Cordon (R-Ore.) says it has been agreed that nearly half a proposed 21 million board feet lumber shipment for Korea will be purchased in the United States.

The 21,278,000 board foot order is to be used for reconstruction and rehabilitation work in Korea. Cordon aides said initial plans called for the lumber to be purchased without restriction on its source. But discussions with the military, they said, have resulted in agreement that at least 9,074,000 board feet will be purchased in the United States.

This portion of the shipment has been taken from present Army stocks and is to be replaced. Efforts are under way, they said, to place the same restriction on the remaining 12,204,000 board feet.

PRISON GOES MODERN

INDIANAPOLIS (UP)—Prisoners at Indiana State Penitentiary at Michigan City have been placed on an eight-hour day and a five-day week.

Officials said prisoners could devote Saturday and Sundays to "education, baths and haircuts."

Edwards is convinced that the real start of the trouble goes back to the 1953 Legislature when a group of breeders sought legislation to increase the number of days of racing from 100 to 105 as the maximum for any county, fairs excepted. Edwards then was a member of the Board of Directors of the Breeders Association and opposed the added days. He reasoned that in earlier days more than 100 days were permissible.

Edwards says that as long as he is racing steward he will try to keep on aiming at the objective of the sport of kings — the improvement of the breed.

From Hawaii: Just returned from town and was nearly caught in a terrific tropical downpour. Water is over the curb here at our corner, the drains can't carry it away fast enough; all in a half hour! It's still thundering as the rain clouds come down the mountains. It's terrible as it sinks into the ocean.

We're loving every minute of our stay, and beginning to boast a fairly decent tan. The beach where we swim is wonderful. The water has been about 74 degrees every time we've been in! It's terribly hard to tear ourselves away to go sightseeing.

We're fortunate to have friends here. They've extended true Hawaiian hospitality. The other day they drove us around this island, Oahu, Past Pearl Harbor, through the largest pineapples fields, and around the north side via the Kaneohe highway which circles the island. The breakers on the rocky and coral-reefed northerly side reminded me of our breakers on the Oregon coast, but broken by quiet days where swimming and fishing were possible. We enjoyed a picnic lunch on the sand at Kewala Bay, where we watched little dark youngsters hunt for interesting marine life among the rocks and coral and also fishermen casting out their lines for surf fishing. A beautiful sight against the blue of the bay, palm trees swaying in the breeze. Passed by fishing nets drying in the sun, where they have "hukilau" for the fishing village and tourists alike, fish and poi feasts after the catch.

Most intriguing to me was the garden club tour open to visitors last Friday. Four different homes are opened twice each month. Like a postman on a holiday, I wouldn't have missed this opportunity for anything! Each home on this tour was on Diamond Head and had been designed for island living. A combination of outdoor and indoor living that is thoroughly delightful. One new home was planned with a central lanai which overlooked the beautifully landscaped gardens and on to Waikiki Beach and the blue ocean. The lanai was outdoor living space, garden room, party room (with bar), entrance hall and pass hall. The front door opened onto this lanai, with the dining room and kitchen area forming one wing, and the large living room and bedrooms forming a completely separate wing.

The picture windows in the living room were installed with shutters while the french doors to the lanai and to the bedroom walk were curtained with patterned drapery fabric, contributing to the overall airy and open feeling.

It was interesting to note the use of white walls and woodwork. All four homes were in white, with much of the upholstery in white also. It was obvious that white made everything look fresh and cool, and a perfect contrast to the lush greenery and brilliant floral hues everywhere.

Each home shown had treasures from the Far East. Beautiful teakwood tables, and pearl inlaid pieces that made the sight lovely. Chinese screens and hangings, priceless imports which were given the proper importance against the simple background of white coral brick or panelling. The gardens and courts were fabulous and breathtaking bursts of bougainvillea, hibiscus, spider lily, and on and on, against the luscious backdrop of foliage. It's hard to describe.

One more week and I'll be back in my old stamping ground, renewed in spirit and enthusiasm. Right now I hate to think of leaving this garden spot in the Pacific, but when the time comes, I know I'll be glad to be home.
